Ed Powers sweeps Dial Awards for Scholarship and Community Service

PEMBROKE, N.C. - Business management Professor Edward L. Powers has an outstanding record of scholarly work at UNC Pembroke. In a past several years, he has published dozens of papers in his area of academic expertise- human resources and organizational behavior. He is an outstanding instructor in UNCP's undergraduate and master's programs in Business Administration and Public Management. For this, he was awarded the 2001 Adolph L. Dial Award for Scholarship. Dr. Powers has found that teaching somewhat younger students has its rewards too.

For his volunteer work at Pembroke Elementary School, Dr. Powers was awarded the Dial Award for Community Service. He is the first professor to win both awards at the same time. The awards carry a $1,000

"I just love the wonderful people over there," Dr. Powers said. They almost feel like family to me.

He contributed 112 volunteer hours during last school year and 300 hours this year. Volunteering in an elementary school was an idea that began with a chance meeting.

A friend invited me to attend church," Dr. Powers said, "Her five-yearold daughter sat with us during the service, and I realized that since my daughter is grown how much I missed children."

'My wife suggested I volunteer at school, so I went to Pembroke Elementary," he said. "Assistant Principal Jennifer Freeman assigned me to Donna and Ronda Locklear's first grade class. "This was a class of 21 students who were repeating first grade," said Ronda Locklear. "Other volunteers had tried and failed, but he was a godsend. We really needed him. Dr. Powers said he had few adjustment problems moving from college students to first and second graders.

"It was magic from the start," Dr. Powers said. "I don't know why, but I connect with first and second graders.

He enjoys tutoring so much he does a variety of other duties at Pem-

"Lunch is my favorite because I get to hop from table to table," Dr. Powers said. "They call me 'Mr. Ed' and gave me a t-shirt with my name

Ms. Locklear agreed that lunch with Mr. Ed is a fun time. 'All the kids want to sit with him," she said. "They ask for him every day."

Many school children don't have men in their lives, Ms. Locklear said.

Dr. Powers concluded.

More male role models are needed, Dr. Powers concluded. "There are more things I would like to do for these children," he said Getting more people form the university to volunteer- especially men- is one project.

'More people should try it," Dr. Powers said. "This is the nicest place I have ever been. I spend as much of my free time there as I can. Dr. Powers also volunteers in two Lumberton schools and conducted volunteer tutor workshops. And, he is just beginning to tap the connection between scholarship and community service. He and Dr. William Gash, assistant vice chancellor for Academic Affairs, are coauthoring a paper on classroom management for an academic journal.

Dr. Powers' scholarly record is outstanding. In the past two years, he has published or presented papers titled, "Human Resource Selection: The Foundation for Managing in a World of Change," "The World is Changing, Why Can't We Change How We Account for Human Re-'From Personnel to Human Resources: Not Yet a Done Deal,' 'Guidelines for Identifying Line-Staff Imbalance in Organizations" and

"Employee Loyalty In the New Millennium."
A 13-year veteran professor at UNCP, Dr. Powers teaches undergraduate business management courses and graduate courses in the Master's of Business Administration and Public Management programs.

He received his B.S., B.A and Master of Business Administration degrees from West Virginia University and a Ph.D. from the University of South Carolina.

Youth Mentors Are Being Sought

If you're the type of person who would like working with young people, are dependable, have a good sense of humor and would enjoy sharing ideas and talents with others, mentoring could offer you the opportunity

Monitoring is a structured one-to-one relationship that focuses on developing the assets of the mentee. It fosters caring and supportive relationships, encourages students and individuals to develop to their fullest potential, and provides students with the tools to become caring, responsible adults. Being willing to commit as little as one hour per week to mentor can make a significant difference in a child's life. Studies indicate that at schools where there is a mentoring program in place attendance improved by 25%, academics and grades improved by 59%, disciplinary referrals were reduced by 66% and the overall dropout rate was reduced by 50%.

If you'd like to help, call Dr. Rona Leach at (910) 671-6000 Extension 268. You can make a difference.

Brooks- North Moore High School Salutatorian.

Sherri LaChelle Brooks, the daughter of Rev. & Mrs. E. Ray Brooks, was North Moore High School 2001 salutatorian, Robbins, NC. She is the granddaughter of Mr. & Mrs. Peter Brooks of Pembroke. Sherri was recognized with a trophy as the senior athlete with the highest Sherri is the recipient of the following scholarships: James M. Johnston Scholarship of UNC-Chapel Hill ($6,670.00 per year). Hackney-Juliber Scholarship ($1,000.00), and Sandhills Business and Professional Women's Scholarship ($500.00). She will be attending the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill this fall.

Historical Markers being erected as memorials to HBL

Shown above is a marker that is located on Oak Grove Church Road. The memorial is on the site where Henry Berry Lowery and four of his friends met the night that he left Robeson County. James B. Locklear is shown with the marker. He is the nephew, fifth generation, of Henry

This marker is one of four that will be placed in different areas. The second one will be placed at the old home place of Henry Berry Lowery. The third one will be on Chicken Road in the Union Township on the McKenzie Farm where Lowery's father and brothers were kept the night before they were killed. The farm is now owned by Henry Lee Locklear, Rev. Sanford Locklear and James B. Locklear.

The Committee spearheading the erection of these markers includes: Rev. Sanford Locklear, Rev. Welton Lowry and Ms. {Pauline Thomas.
