Pestoffe Plans.

The plans of the new pestoffe building which is to be erected here have been given to the contractors, failing to make bids, for some time, but so far no bids have been turned over to the department. These plans will still be open for the contractors, failing to make bids for a few days, but it is thought that they will be sent to Washington, and the contract given there. Very little change has been made from the original plans, the main one being the side door to open on Commerce street. This change was made by the request of a number of citizens.

The Merry Company.

This is the title of a little playlet to be given in the tenth grade of the High school next Friday night at the school auditorium for the benefit of school library. The young performers are entering very heartily into the spirit of the little play, and they expect to render it in the very finest style.

Third Prize For Amateurs.

Another half day was lost in Superior court yesterday on account of the absence of lawyers making a total of three days spent in this fashion since the present term began. Much inconvenience was caused by yesterday's delay, for on Tuesday the case of H. L. Kermode against J. P. Williams and J. D. Kermode was begun the evidence having concluded at adjournment. Witnesses were given no intimation Tuesday night of a possible delay, but yesterday morning it was announced that Attorney G. V. Long of Alamance had gone home to attend a marriage and after a time it was found that it would be impossible to go on with the case and witnesses were sent to make the best of it.

The meeting was spent in one thing and another, and in the afternoon the clock at the home of the bride on King street, by the Rev. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the dining room, where a sumptuous dinner was spread. Archdeacon Webber contemplates attending the play again this summer while abroad. It is given only once in every ten years, and always attracts considerable attention.

STRAUSS "ENOCH ARDEN."

MUSIC FRIDAY NIGHT.

Richard Strauss, the great German composer, and author of "Enoch Arden," composed for the pianoforte, really a transcription tonally of Tennyson's lyric, has had more written about him in the last 20 years than almost any composer except Wagner. The eminent critic, W. J. Henderson, in speaking of him says:

It was long ago conceded that music could depict the broader emotions. It has generally been denied that it could go into details or explain the causes of the feelings which it expresses. Yet in the judicious use of titles and the establishment of a connection between a composition and some well known drama or poem, the imagination of the hearer is stimulated to conceive the meaning of many details otherwise incomprehensible. Strauss goes to the turtledove in the elaboration of detail. In this reverie music has taken three definite themes and developed them in a most wonderful way to tell us the story of the lives and love of the characters of the poem. He has overtaken the caprice of the instrument, nor has he gone into extremes of compositional difficulty to tell us a simple story with the power and force that the musical dramatization of it conveys. "Don Quixote" would indeed be having his story in a most appealing way, and that the music seems part of the text even afterward.

PROF. NOBLE PLEASED

Three Twins

The "Three Twins," which comes to the Grand for Wednesday, May 4, with the full prestige of metropolitan success, having had a run of six months in Chicago at the Whitney opera house, and one year at the Herald Square theatre, New York, where it scored such tremendous success with its beautiful music and wonderful electrical novelties. It is said to be the handsomest costumed company in America, including eight Parisian director's gowns, which Josephine Gaites purchased in Paris especially for this production, which presents a ray of beauty when worn by the beautiful and shapely girls. The company is a tremendously large one and owing to the vast amount of heavy electrical equipment and scenery it requires two baggage cars to transport.

The electrical aerial swing weighs 4,000 pounds and is illuminated with 2,000 electric lights and when revolving with six beautiful girls in the basket, it is said to present a most beautiful picture.

There are many musical numbers that are hits. "The Cuddle Song," showing the seven ages of childhood, is one of the most elaborate and sentimental stage pictures that have been produced in recent years.

"Yama-Yama" girls and their funny clown acts is a distinct novelty, and Ashton Stevens of the New York Journal said it was the most titillating piece of boshness that had been produced in Broadway in many years and he devoted an entire column to this one musical number.

What the Edison May Records Offer.

Would you be amused by a clever vaudeville sketch, interspersed with the latest song hit inspired by a patriotic band selection entitled by the lovely voice of an operatic songbird or impression to the resonant strains of a solo violin? Whenever you will you can find in the May book of Edison Phonograph records, in pleasing pronunciations and variety.

What's the epitome of the lists, which comprise 45 two and four minute records. There are five records of well-known grand opera selections by such brilliant stars of the operatic stage as Carmen Melis, Marguerite Sylva and Blanche Arnal soprano, Ricardo Martin tenor and Gustave Huberman bass.

So much for the grand opera enthusiast that he may not be compelled to live in pleasant memories more than the operatic season is at an end.

To him who revels in the popular stuff are offered such satisfying numbers as "Hail! Australia! Here! See! Kelly!" "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," "The Cuckoo Chorus" and "Midnight in June" in the two-minute list, and "That Lovin' Rag" by Sophie Tucker, the vaudeville "star" and "Come to the Land of Bohemia" in the two-minute.

Then there are instrumental pieces, band selections by Sousa and the National London Military bands, orchestra numbers by Victor Herbert's galaxy of musicians and the American Standard orchestra, and a gem of melody and harmony by the internationally famous Vienna Instrumental quartette.

Sacred hymns, sentimental ballads, high-class vocal selections, recitations, vaudeville sketches in short anything and everything in the visual and instrumental line and by the best artists before the public can be had in the lists.

Inevitably, it should be known that Edison dealers are now offering an attachment which "Andersons" makes it possible to play both two and four minute records on an Edison phonograph together with ten splendid special four minute records at an advance of but $1 over the original price of these attachments. In other words with an Anderson attachment an Edison phonograph owner can now secure 50 records of exceptional merit in respect to selection, artists and recording and which can not be obtained except through the purchase of an attachment.
