Aw, what is a comet without a tail? But what difference is the mist was bitter? Good news from the strawberry crop all said. Mint, mint everywhere, and not a drop to drink. Warm insurgents are being thoroughly demoralized. Many a good man has crippled himself by harboring a foolish jealousy. There is always trouble for the man who allows his imaginations to become real. If J. Pluvius belongs to the union he must be drawing a lot of pay for overtime. A man can not make a hole in the water by pulling his finger out—he must keep it there. Something new this, the sun rising in the afternoon, but that's the way with the Durham bun. The Wake county insurgents evident. I think it's a poor tool that can't be worked both ways. We like the candidate best who is at least friendly enough to speak to his acquaintances in off years. People are wondering what Will Bailey's particular ambition is that makes him yoke up with Joe Daniels. We don't suppose Halley's comet will want to come any more if the frost is going to bite its tail off that way. Joe Bailey, of Texas, the ablest man in the Democratic party, sees only defeat for the party unless it quits puffing him.

JUSTICE HUGHES. The people of the United States are fairly well acquainted with the man President Taft has appointed to succeed Justice Brewer on the Supreme court bench. Governor Hughes, of New York, is best known as a man of courage and conviction. His fine legal attainments have remained in the background so far as his national reputation is concerned. As Governor of New York he has attracted world wide attention. He has crushed political machines and leaders who have won their spurs by manipulation. He has stood for an honest administration and a square deal, regardless of precedent and demands of political bosses. The elevation of such a man to the Supreme court bench is a boon for both rights and civilization. Perhaps an object estimate of the situation as we have seen is that given in an editorial in the Baltimore Sun which says: The selection of Governor Hughes for the bench of the Supreme court of the United States is an admirable one. It would have been difficult, perhaps impossible, for President Taft to have appointed a man better suited for the bench than Governor Hughes. He is a man of sound and discriminating judgment, learned in the law and of that exalted character which is demanded by the high office he is to fill. Nevertheless, the removal of Governor Hughes from the political arena is a distinct loss to the country. While it is true that this appointment to the bench will take but a few months from his term as governor of New York, it will remove him from active politics, and that will be a loss not only to the state of New York but to every state in the union. Few men in recent years have done more to purify and exalt political affairs and to strengthen good government than the present Governor of New York. His precepts and example have been accepted in many states. From the day he went from his private practice into public life he has never ceased to stand for what he believed to be sound politics, for public honesty and for the true principles of popular government. He has illustrated to his countrymen all over the land how in politics, as in other affairs of this life, honesty is the best policy. He has proved that political success can best be achieved by relying upon the people and not by relying upon political machines. He has proved that the man who enters a political contest as a thrice armed if his cause is just, and that a strong man can beat into submission a political machine of his own party and the spoilsmen and those who make a trade of politics by making his appeal to the people. A man of the character and courage and strength of Governor Hughes is more needed in the political arena than he is on the bench. It is not surprising that President Taft should appoint him. He is looking for the best man to fill the vacancy on the Supreme bench. But the country had other work for Hughes to do, and it is unfortunate for the people that he should be withdrawn from it. Great judges are comparatively rare, but public men of the intellectual stature and moral strength of Governor Hughes are rarer still. The United States Supreme court is richer and the country poorer through his appointment.

ABLE AND JUST. We have it in mind to say, and we are going to say it, that in the person of Judge N. J. Fore the City court of Greensboro has an official that in the matter of clearness, discriminating judgment and a sense of fairness and justice ranks with the ablest men on the Superior court bench in North Carolina today. He has a high conception of the duty and dignity of the position he occupies, and holds the scales evenly poised. After closely watching his course through many months we are convinced that for courage to stand by his honest convictions he has no superior. Judge Fore is a quiet, mild-mannered gentleman, but he has demonstrated the fact that he is constructive on unbecoming material. He listens and is interested, he deliberates carefully, then speaks pointedly and positively. He may make mistakes, but it is doubtful if he ever does. He is his own man and we believe honest ones. He is not swayed by fear or favor or dissimulation. He presides over one inferior court where no boss can step in and run things. These things being true, the justice loving and law abiding public have grown to a high degree of respect for the Greensboro municipal court. A notable case in which Judge Fore showed wisdom and courage was that of the gambler brought before his court last Tuesday. The verdict in that case was such as will make the good table artists sit up and take notice. It was not cruel or without mercy, but strong enough to have a demoralizing effect upon the gambling profession. It has been very generally and very properly commended. DROPPED DEAD. The following sparklet came from the sanctum of the Durham Sun: "A Pennsylvania man died the other day reading a newspaper. Can't imagine what he could have been reading, unless it was an account of a quiet day in Roosevelt."

Photo-Era For May. Those who would make pleasing transcripts of nature robed in her best will find Photo-Era for May quite interesting. Beautiful wood interiors by J. Sully, Frederick H. Evans, Th. Hofmeister and Joseph Brown, and landscapes by J. B. Whitehead, F. F. Sornberger, John P. Jones and W. Zenker, will delight the picture maker. A superb female head, by Duhrkoop, is the frontispiece. Chester A. Reed, the eminent ornithologist, contributes a series of rare bird pictures and tells how they were made. An article on the autochrome process, by J. E. Burnham, is helpful to those interested in color photography. Noteworthy, too, are articles on photographing spring flowers, moving objects and panoramic views—all by eminent authorities. The Rowland Hobbs Field department prints the names and pictures of the winners in the regular monthly prize contests, open to everybody, while other sections offer their customary wealth of practical help. A free specimen copy of Photo-Era will be sent, postpaid, to anyone interested by the publisher, Wilfred A. French, 379-83 Boylston street, Boston, U. S. A.

Shot His Stepson. (Special to Daily News.) Wadesboro, April 27.—Charlie Meachum, a negro, who lives on Mrs. J. T. Walls' plantation in Lilesville township, shot his stepson, Frank Ratliff, a few days ago, after giving the boy a severe beating because of the fact that he had loaned a buggy to one of his friends. Ratliff is painfully although not dangerously wounded and Meachum has not been arrested.

After La Grippe. "I had suffered several weeks with LaGrippe. Had pains in my head and eyes. It felt as though there was a heavy weight on the top of my head, until it seemed that my brain would burst. I was so nervous that I could not rest or sleep. When I dozed off I would awake with a sudden jerking of my whole body. Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Remedy and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. A number of friends have since realized the same benefits. MRS. ALVIN H. LOCKS, Seabrook, N. H. The after effects of LaGrippe are often more serious than the disease, as it leaves the system in a weakened condition that invites more serious troubles, such as pneumonia, etc. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine should be taken for some time to thoroughly restore nerve strength. Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle does not benefit, your druggist will return your money. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.
