Judge Adams Made Able Charge to Superior Court Grand Jury—Several Cases Marked Off the Docket. Seven Convictions by Jury.

Judge W. L. Adams, of Carthage, opened his week term in Superior court with the trial of criminal cases against the local residents, many of whom were the victims of the dockets of the state. The first case heard was that of a man who was accused of having committed a great many acts of violence in the course of his work as a coal miner. It was explained that he was working in the mine when he was beaten by the miners, who had been sent to him by the company, charged with selling out to the state. The trial was continued at the request of the defendant.

A case against Wade Cobb, charged with robbing, was marked off the docket, the defendant being in the penitentiary serving a 12 year sentence for murder. Mrs. Eddie Johnson, wife of the defendant, who is guilty of the offense, was present in the courtroom. In all seven cases Judge Adams excused the jurors from their service. The jury, however, was unable to agree, and was dismissed. The trial of the defendant will be continued on another date.

Today Adams charged that he had been instrumental in securing the good character of his associates, getting up the habit of not once excusing any of his actions. In referring to the general principles of the law and duty of citizens he said: "Every man owned it to his community, to his state and the nation, as well as himself, to see that the new administration preserved, as far as he could, the High Point white man, being the defendant, from being charged with having been guilty of any of the acts which he was accused of." After the trial of the defendant, the court adjourned until the next day.

For obtaining money by reason of false representation John Henry Davis, a negro, was sentenced to months in the county jail. Jim Evans, a High Point white man, being the defendant, was charged with having been guilty of any of the acts which he was accused of. After the trial of the defendant, the court adjourned until the next day.

After the trial of the defendant, the court adjourned until the next day.

When the dockets were called by Senator Gattis, the case against Baxter Shewell, charged with carrying concealed weapons, was deferred, confirmed the terms of sentence being that Shewell should appear here on February 1. The three cases against Marion and Lester Butler, charged with libel by Judge Spencer R. Adams, were continued by consent. These indictments were secured at the December (1908) term, and one of the cases was against Walter Jackson, who was charged with criminal assault.

HAD A RIGHT TO STEAL BECAUSE HE WAS CONVICT

Policeman Dave Causey went to a negro boarding house early yesterday morning and arrested a negro named Ed Walker, who escaped from the county jail last week. Ed was sent up from High Point for burglarizing. Shortly after Mr. Causey announced his mission and the man put on his clothes, he hastily made a complaint that his pocketbook, with $140 cash contents, had been stolen. Mr. Causey straight way tackled Ed, charging him with the crime, and soon enough upon searching him, the missing purse and money was found. The suit was offered to the negro, who, being so long a time in contact, thought it had a right to take anything Ed could get hold of. Ed said nothing Ed will likely get a further stay in the state house.

UNITED STATES COURT

Civil Term Began Yesterday—North Wilkesboro Bank Wins Suit.

On account of the absence of District Attorney Holton yesterday morning, who was at his home in Winston, no morning session of Federal court was held. The afternoon was occupied in the hearing of one case to which considerable interest attached.

This was the case of the United States against the Bank of North Wilkesboro, in which the defendant is charged with presenting fraudulent pension checks to the assistant treasurer of the United States for payment. The facts in the case agreed to by both plaintiff and defendant are that one Marley, drafted his service in the Cherokee war, hired Webster to act as substitute. Before the fraudulent checks were made out, Webster and his wife, Eliza, died, and also Marley, who left surviving him a wife, Mary M. Marley. About March 1, 1904, F. Brewster and Mary M. Marley, by alibi, false and fraudulent representation made prior thereto to the commissioners of persons in fraudulent pension claim in name of Mary M. Webster and on false claim presented the filing of the name of Mary M. Webster on the pension rolls. Accordingly pension checks were issued by the United States pension agent at Greenville, South Carolina.

Mary M. Marley subsequently assumed the name of Mary M. Webster and signed all such documents with that name for making her will. The paper being written by F. Brewster. Paying the money to the person presenting the checks the Bank of North Wilkesboro caused these checks to be presented to the assistant treasurer of the United States for payment.

When the checks were presented the name was not known and did not become known to the bank until Brewster had died in the fall of 1907, the cashier attending the trial. In the hearing yesterday the defendant held that had the bank known before the date of the fraudulent dealing it might have secured the money from an estate which Brewster had owned, valued at $2,000, and that the bank should not be caused to lose the money. The court sustained the argument of the defendant, and the government will honor the claims held by the Wilkesboro bank amounting to about $600.

D. W. Simonds, convicted of gambling in Municipal option evidence of Herman Cooper entered a plea of guilty. Judge Adams announced that he would pass judgment later in the week.

There are a number of cases on the docket, most of them being for trivial offenses. The only case of special importance is against Walter Jackson, who was charged with criminal assault.

TIZ acts at once and makes tired, aching, swollen feet remarkably fresh and pain-free.

It's the sure remedy, you know, for everything that ails the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for weary, bad smelling feet, and for calluses, blisters, and bunions, too.

For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally known—"A. F. Dreicer, Chicago.
