Senator Fall's Resolution Would Give President Authority to Call For 500,000 Volunteers

IN FORCE FOR SIX MONTHS

Wilson was expected to ask of Congress some time before its adjournment, but its introduction at this time by a Republican senator while the administration is forming its course, came as a surprise. It promised to further complicate and embarrass an already much mixed up situation.

The Republicans, resentful of what they construe as President Wilson's wish not to have Congress on his hands in an international crisis, are said to be ready to force an extra session of Congress in order that nothing may be done by the President without house and senate in session. To the end that an extra session may be necessary Democratic leaders say the Republicans are seeking by delay and filibuster to kill important legislation which must be passed even if it requires an extra session.

Williams Arouses Republican Ire. After Senator Poindexter had been talking for five hours on minor amendments, Senator John Sharp Williams, aroused the ire of the Republicans by charging that they had received orders from the munitions makers to defeat the revenue bill Senator Lodge, made a point of order that the Mississippi senator was violating a rule in attacking the motives of senators.

"Well, I'll try to proceed in order," replied Senator Williams. "It is reported," he continued, "that the Republicans are filibustering to force an extra session because they do not want to leave President Wilson to handle a foreign situation just as the copper heads didn't want to trust President Lincoln."

"However that may be I do not think it is the reason for this filibuster. The real reason I think, is that you Republicans have received orders from the munitions manufacturers saying that heretofore they have contributed generously to the Republican party and that you should remember that now."

"It has been said that Nero fiddled while Rome was burning. One senator has trawled here for five hours in the face of a threatening foreign situation and another has been sitting here twiddling his thumbs."

Too Much Fiddling. "You have seen the Kaiser's ukase, and yet you gentlemen are talking here about postmasters and surgeons in the navy."

Senator Poindexter, who had been discussing putting postmasters in the civil service and about the promotion of Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the President's naval aide to be a rear admiral, wanted to know why the President had allowed "this deplorable international situation to continue."

"The principal reason," replied Senator Williams, "is that his advisers in the senate and house are fiddling all the time and for the reason that they can't help that fact. If a plebeian were taken today among the American people between Woodrow Wilson and the Congress of the United States, 10 out of 11 would vote for the President against Congress and against its inefficiency, ineptitude and waste of time and waste of words."

"What does the party in power or the President want of power that it has not already?" asked Senator Poindexter.

"It wants Congress to do business; to provide the revenue necessary for the government; it wants Congress to stand bona fide behind the President while he faces a grave international situation."

Senator Williams said the danger lies in the interpretation put on the American attitude in Germany by those who rule that empire, and the feeling there that Americans are not united in their stand against foreign aggression.

"From Bryan Down." "When there has been in the last few months to give Germany this impression, the Mississippi senator replied: "Oh, a thousand things, from Bryan down."

"I want America to unfurl Germany on this point," Senator Williams continued. "If we do that he will avoid an expensive and perhaps bloody conflict. If we can't unfurl Germany we won't avoid it."

"If I were President, I would give American ships guns with which to arm their ships and I would give them money."

"I wish to God the senator were President if he would do that," interjected Senator Sutherland, Republican, of Utah.

"I am very glad and the American people may be very glad that I am not President," retorted Senator Williams, "because there is a man in the White House much abler and wiser than I who has demonstrated his greatness to the nation on more than one trying occasion."

"The American people may be glad, too, that Bryan was not President with his idea that he could overcome a European tornado by pouring sweet oil on its turbulent waves. They may be glad, too, that Roosevelt is not President, for we would already have been in war with Germany and England and France and Russia and Mexico."

"If the President of the United States will act," declared Senator Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts, "he will have the country and Congress behind him as he did when the break came with Germany. But when he hesitates and disputes and discusses and lets things go by we are bound to have differences in Congress and in the country. We are bound to have distrust. There is bound to be a feeling that it would be safer and better for the country that the Congress of the United States should remain in session."

He denied that there was a conspiracy among the Republicans, and added: "I will support the President to the utmost when he takes a stand against a foreign nation, but I will not be led under the blackmail of a threat of war to support an objectionable treaty."

Germany Has Blackmailed Us. It is true, he said, that Germany "has blackmailed" the United States, but it is because ship owners cannot get guns which are in the hands of the navy department.

"Why don't they have the guns?" he asked. "Congress can't give them."

Senator Lewis, the Democratic whip, replying to Senator Lodge said: "The senator from Massachusetts would lose as the captain patriot of the Republican side, as a senator ever supporting a Democratic President in a country's crisis. He says he supported the break with Germany. Yes, this was because he might mean war and serve the purpose of those who would drag us into an alliance with Britain for our life or death."

"When did the senator support the President in his efforts to save the country from war, and to bring peace to the warring nations of the world? I charge him with every effort to dishonor these attempts."

"When the President sent his first peace messenger to the warring nations and a resolution was introduced here to approve the action of the President, it was the senator from Massachusetts who led the opposition and sought to have the President condemned for his effort."

Ready For Submarine Attack.

GUN ON STERN OF S.S. CHICAGO.

With a modern naval rifle mounted upon her stern, as shown in the photograph, the French liner Chicago, is now fast approaching the zone barred by the German U-boat decree, on her voyage eastward from New York. The Chicago carries both passengers and a cargo of war munitions. She relies upon the accuracy of her guns to protect her from U-boat attacks.

ed the Republicans for their filibuster. The Democrats, he declared, proposed to die fighting for the revenue bill and preparedness legislation and would hold the senate in continuous session until a vote could be had on the revenue bill.

"We are witnessing here," said Senator Simmons, "the most determined filibuster I have ever seen in the senate. If this revenue bill shall fail and as a result the great program to put this country in a condition of defense is held up and suspended for another year, I think it due to the American people that they should know who is responsible for such a miscarriage of this great purpose to the part of the government."

"We are told this is not a filibuster. The senate knows and the country knows it is a filibuster to defeat the revenue bill carrying taxation amounting to $248,000,000, of which $228,000,000 is placed on the backs of the great, rich and powerful corporations."

"I would be derelict in my duty if I did not tell the people of the country, those who have demanded and backed this great program for defense, of this threatened effort to break that program down. We want the American people to know it was your dagger that pierced the body of this great program and brought it to its untimely death."

"Go ahead with your filibuster, but we shall not content ourselves to submit to the consequences of defeat until we have exhausted every resource and every weapon at our command."

Senator Penrose, ranking Republican of the finance committee, replied with a declaration that "there is absolutely no intention on the part of the minority to defeat the revenue bill."

When Senator Simmons asked what date for a vote would be acceptable to the minority, however, Senator Penrose said he could not make such an arrangement.

"I don't think the senator from North Carolina need worry," said Senator Penrose, "he may be able to pass it Monday or Tuesday."

ROBBERIES ON STREET FOLLOWED BY ARREST

Two Men, One Negro and the Other White, Reported Highwaymen Active Last Night

OFFICERS GOT PRISONER

Late last evening the police arrested Melvin McColum, a negro, and they hold him for carrying concealed weapon and also as a suspect in highway robbery cases which occurred during the evening.

McColum couldn't deny the heavy Smith and Wesson revolver he packed and which was taken from him, but he did assert that any charge of robbery was unfounded. He declared he was innocent of the crime suspected.

Will Caley, a negro, reported to the police that he was held up on East Market street by five negroes and made to deliver over his money. He said the robbers got $7 away from him. When arrested McColum declared that he had a $5 bill and two dollars more, but the officers found concealed in his sock $7 as he claimed but the $5 bill was absent.

There are other bits of circumstantial evidence which lead the officers to suspect him of being one of the highwaymen and Caley identified him.

Another robbery reported was related to the police by W. A. Inman, a white man who said his home is in Proximity. He declared that he was held up by negroes and assaulted, but that the highwaymen got no money.

The worst element of the city population was very active last night. The police discovered that fact early and ran down the highwaymen. It was due to the fact that special efforts were being put forth by the officers that McColum was arrested. Captain Tom McCuiston and Patrol Driver Bob Jones found him with other negroes in an East Market cafe. They were looking for concealed weapons. McColum tried to run, but was seized and held. The search which followed revealed the dangerous looking weapon and the money.

The negro stated at headquarters that he bought the revolver in West Virginia and had it with him trying to pawn it. He "carried it in his hand" until the minute before he was held. He declared that the police brought the negro Caley, who told of his robbery, to headquarters about 1:30 o'clock this morning and he identified McColum with positiveness as the highwayman.

IRVING PARK NEWS

Published Weekly by Irving Park Co., Southern Life and Trust Building (Phone 833).
A. W. SPALISTER, President W. E. BLAIR, Manager
Vol. I GREENSBORO, N. C., SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1917 No. 249

Mr. John Nolen, in his excellent talk on "City Planning" at the "two-bit dinner" of the chamber of commerce last Wednesday evening, said that in providing a city plan we "must plan ahead and plan comprehensively;" that skill and experience are necessary in making the plan, and that the final purpose of city planning is to save money.

In the Irving Park Company's development we have "planned ahead and planned comprehensively," every step taken being considered with reference to its effect on the property a generation from now.

In planning the development, we have the "skill and experience," our consulting landscape architect being no other than Mr. Nolen himself.

And the final purpose of our planning is to save money—to save it for the company and for the people who build homes in Greensboro's great suburban development.

There's simply no chance for a mistake, if you buy a lot and build a home in Irving Park. And our plan enables you to do it without undue financial strain. Give us an opportunity to tell you about our Easy Payment Plan.

Probe Into Print Paper Delayed.
New York, Feb. 24.—Investigation into the high prices of newspaper paper has been delayed here, it was learned tonight, because the federal grand jury which has undertaken it, also is engaged in hearing evidence concerning alleged pro-German spy plots. United States District Attorney Marshall said tonight he would confer with Rainbridge Colby, government prosecutor, in the paper inquiry, to see whether an arrangement could be made by which the time of the grand jury would be divided between the two cases.

University of Virginia Leads.
Baltimore, Feb. 24.—The University of Virginia won two of five indoor South Atlantic intercollegiate Athletics association track events held here tonight and was second in three others. Georgetown university had two firsts and two seconds. The other event was won by Johns Hopkins university.

Selling of Relief Boats Resumed.
London, Feb. 24.—The Belgian relief commission announces that the sailing of relief vessels from overseas ports to and from Rotterdam has been resumed. The vessels will proceed by way of the northern route and will be furnished with German safe conduct passes as heretofore.

Want Food Seized.
Boston, Feb. 24.—Fifteen hundred persons at a mass meeting in Faneuil hall tonight passed resolutions demanding that federal, state and municipal authorities seize food and supplies and sell them to the poor. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Westend Mothers' club.
