Famous Mine Shown in Film.
A famous old mine known in history and started in the days of '48, during the gold rush to California, is seen in the William Duncan production, "Where Men Are Men," which will be shown at the Grand theater today and tomorrow. This mine has been worked for many years and has turned out tons of valuable ore.
The mine at present is abandoned, but every few years prospectors work in the shaft and secure considerable pay dirt. It is believed by many old settlers that a rich vein lies just beyond the present diggings, and several are convinced that soon this mine will be in full swing and one of the principal sources of ore in the state.
The story of "Where Men Are Men" deals with a plot to jump a claim owned by the hero, who, according to circumstantial evidence, believes the girl with whom he is in love is acting as a tool of the villain. He later learns, however, that she is the daughter of his dead partner and that a former sweetheart is responsible for his misfortunes.

Duncan fights his way to success through the entire film, and the production is one that will be enjoyed by all red-blooded Americans.
The eleventh chapter of the serial supreme, "The Miracles Of The Jungle," will be the added attraction with "Where Men Are Men."
"Where Men Are Men."

Harold Lloyd At The Isis.
The management of the Isis brings to the theater going public of Greensboro today and tomorrow a big double feature show in Benj. Hampton's latest drama, "The Killer," and the Harold Lloyd and Bebe Daniels in their comedy, "The Pinched."

Tod Sloan, the world-famous jockey, is now proving that he is as much at home before the motion picture camera as he has been in the stirrups of a thoroughbred. Tod makes his first how to shadow stage audiences in Benjamin R. Hampton's new Pathé feature, "The Killer," adapted from Stewart Edward White's well-known novel of the same name. Playing the role of an ex-jockey in a company of such splendid artists as Jack Conway, Frank Campeau, Claire Adams, Milton Ross, and others of like calibre, Mr. Sloan's work proves his ability to take his place among silver-screen celebrities.
Mr. Sloan was born in Kokomo, Indiana. His racing records are remarkable both in this country and Europe, and have not been broken to this day. In 1895 he had 442 mounts and won 122, or about thirty per cent. The next year he scored 26 per cent wins. In 1896 he won five races in one day, and on three successive days at Coney Island he won each of three races in which he rode. His sensational career on the turf brought great wealth and he soon became known as "The Millionaire Jockey."
Another added attraction for these two days are Warner Oland and Juanita Hansen in the 14th episode of "The Yellow Arm."

Charles Ray in New Portrayal
Charles Ray may well be called one of the most versatile stars of the motion picture world. He has played the coward, the country boy, the small town bean brummel, the pugilist, the traveling salesman and a score of other characters.
And now in his latest First National attraction, "Two Minutes to Go," which comes to the Bijou theater today for an engagement of 2 days, Ray has the role of a college football hero who is earning his way through school by peddling milk in the early hours of the morning.
"Two Minutes to Go" is a story from the skillful pen of Richard Andre. It is filled with the spirit of romance, adventure and pranks of college life, with that great American game, football, as the victor backbone of the plot. Many humorous situations have been developed in this photoplay, and, of course, the gridiron gladiator who is the central figure has a sweetheart, Charles Ray personally directed "Two Minutes to Go" as well as enacted the star part, which in itself is evidence enough of his versatility.
He has surrounded himself with an excellent cast, Mary Anderson appearing in the leading feminine role. Other well-known players who support Ray in this production include Lionel Belmore, Lincoln Stedman, Truman Van Dyke, Gus Leonard, Tom Wilson, Bert Woodruff, Francois Dumas and Phillip Dunham.
Extra attractions are the latest Pathe News, Aesop's Fables and continuous music by the Bijou concert orchestra and symphony pipe organ.
Doug's Production Next Week.
A picture with a universal appeal. Such is "The Three Musketeers," according to C. D. Buckner, manager of the Grand, who has booked this feature for a week's run, starting next Monday, Nov. 21.
"In this story," said Mr. Buckner "Douglas Fairbanks does the greatest work of his career. Those who have read the famous Dumas' novel from which it was taken will be delighted to see their hero, D'Artagnan, match wits with the cunning Richelieu and crush through the Cardinal's seemingly insurmountable barriers. The intrigues of a monarchy are laid bare in this thrilling tale.
"For those who have never read 'The Three Musketeers,' this photoplay will have a great appeal, because it is a perfect plot, standing on the firm foundation of drama and comedy based on fact. It is a play in which the expected never happens. Kings and queens and royal personages are given human attributes that will long endure them to the hearts of those who see the picture. The dominating impression is that the thing is real."
The lavish presentation which the Grand will give this photoplay will add much to its charm.
Seats are now on sale at the Grand box office. No seats will be reserved for the matinee.
