The big show will disband and leave for winter quarters immediately after giving the last performance of the season is staged here tonight. Current rumors yesterday said the circus had planned to remain in Greensboro two or three days after elisbanding, and that decision to leave earlier had been reached because the city was planning to levy a neavy tax on the outfit. It was also said that no parade would be staged nere because the city expected to place a heavy tax on this feature. Both of these reports are entirely without foundation, the investigation disclosed.

The circus will pay off a majority of its 2:100 employes here tonight and a part of the huge payroli will be spent in Greensboro. Several leading merchants will keep their establishments open tonight in order to accommodate the circus people. Nearly all of the performers with the show will leave Greensboro on one of the other of the special trains which will be operated for their convenience by the Southern railway. The first of the specials will leave at 1 a. m. Trains carrying the circus equipment, animals and attendants will begin to roil early to morrow morning.
