BORROWED BRIEFS

All husbands in Lafayette county are divided into three classes, those who duck hunting, those who stir apple butter and those who do neither.

Most any man is willing to give three cheers if that will discharge his obligation in the circumstance.

Now and then you meet a man who doesn't imagine he is public opinion.

Our guess is that the bolsheviks can lead the Turks all kinds of support except financial and moral.

A man can drink it or let it alone; but it takes the constitution, the state law, the revenue department and a force of armed men to help him let it alone.

To most of us it is beginning to look as if the crime wave in this country is being marcelled and made permanent.

Our spirit plies for reform, but our body doesn't enthuse over it much.

PARAGRAPHS

Those Turkish ladies take their politics immediately.

At any rate, you can't accuse the Turk of indecision.

The affair at Rocky Mount wasn't a strike. It was a balk.

The weather Monday: Continued warm and increased haziness.

The Red Cross roll is an honor roll. Have you got your name on yet?

Did somebody give those Wake Forest boys a lump of sugar, as Dr. Wiley recommended?

A report from Brother Bill Allen White on what's the matter with Kansas now would be of interest.

The present course of the Turk shows that a vast difference there is between "unspeakable" and "speechless."

At any rate, something has been discovered in the New Jersey murder mystery. The world has found out what a lot of fancy liars live in that neighborhood.

The war in Ireland, a Dublin dispatch asserts, has entered upon a new phase. Reminding us that there is always the war in Ireland.

There is continuation of the persistent improvement in industrial conditions throughout the country, but Wall Street refuses to be assured.

Another thing the election results indicate is that old Mr. Bonus is not nearly as dead as numerous of those who participated in his funeral considered him.

Again we give thanks that, since we were apparently destined to edit for a livelihood, our lines were cast in North Carolina, instead of in Turkey or Germany, for instance.

Seeing a headline in this paper to the effect that Doughton wins in seventh by 7,000, the Raleigh Times inquires to know, "What's Bob doing over in Bowlipus Hammer's district?"

The only time recently when we have felt our stern opposition to the practice of lynching jarred in the slightest was when somebody out in New Mexico said something about a shophen's strike.

Now that the trees no longer obstruct the view of the front of the federal building, it is more apparent than ever how badly Greensboro needs a new one, as Representative Stedman will agree.

While it is none of our business we feel sure that the Baptists could take their women's college elsewhere to good advantage, but there is no argument about the capital's need of the uplifting and refining influence of Meredith.

The police judge is getting rougher and rougher on chauffeurs who attempt to mix alcohol and gasoline, and when a white woman was convicted yesterday of driving an automobile while drunk he gave her four months on the roads. Sharp medicine; but if it does the work it will be well worth while.

Greensboro postoffice clerks are obliged to work in the open air, there being no room inside for all the clerks and all the work. This would do very well if Indian summer continued all the year around; but the seasons being what they are, the earliest that Uncle Sam can give Greensboro a new postoffice will be none too early.

A CHANCE FOR THE CANCER PATIENT.

The modesty of the claims advanced for the new treatment of cancer discovered by Professor Bell predisposes the layman in its favor.

Of 50 cases treated for three years, Professor Bell believes that he has cured four and benefited 11 by the use of colloidal combinations of lead. This sounds like the cautious statement of a scientist, rather than the reckless fabrication of a quack.

Nevertheless, a percentage of cures no higher than eight is sensational if, as we understand it is the fact, the cases treated by the English physician were exclusively types which surgery could not hope to save.

One of the saddest duties of the conscientious surgeon is that of telling an appallingly great proportion of the victims of this scourge who are brought to him that his knife cannot help them. At present that announcement is practically a death sentence; but its gloom would be wonderfully lightened if Bell could demonstrate that there is still a chance, even if the odds are twelve and a half to one against the patient.

At the same time the announcement that perhaps eight in the hundred of non-operable cases may be saved by the lead treatment will not be in the minds of the public such false hopes that they will be inclined to abandon the old stand-by of early diagnosis and prompt operation.

Of those victims of cancer whose ailment is recognized early and who are operated on promptly, the surgeons can save a great many more than eight per cent. It is therefore criminally negligent to ignore this easy and comparatively sure treatment.

More than 90,000 persons died of cancer in the United States last year, and the death rate from that disease has been steadily rising during the last quarter of a century.

These figures are sufficiently shocking as they stand; but what makes them worse is the certainty that many thousands of the dead need not have died had they been given prompt treatment.

Cancer is like tuberculosis in that in its early stages it can be cured; but, like tuberculosis, it is claiming thousands and tens of thousands of lives simply because it is neglected in the beginning and allowed to get out of control before the surgeon is called in.

WAKE FOREST. But, says Mr. Bost, "if further removal than the Tucker site (at Method) is proposed every-body expects Raleigh to make music."

The objection to locating the college at Method is that Method is outside of the city of Raleigh, beyond the reach of the city's fire and police protection, and the campus on one side runs down to the borders of the state prison farm, so that if there ever should be a wholesale jail delivery Meredith would risk having her campus over-run by a horde of escaped convicts.

This, obviously, is not an ideal site for a women's college; but the present site, in the city itself, has long since been outgrown, and the city of Raleigh has not seen fit to provide the college with another.

Indeed, the college authorities have contracted to pay a considerable sum—some $60,000 we believe—for the site in the shadow of the penitentiary.

Any other town in the state, of course, would be delighted to provide a site free, and Greensboro offered, not only the site, but $135,000 in cash to help erect the new buildings.

But a large proportion of the trustees of Meredith are citizens of Raleigh, and at the meeting at which the Greensboro offer was presented a majority of those present were citizens of Raleigh.

Naturally they could hardly be expected to vote to remove the college from their own town, for a college like Meredith brings several hundred thousand dollars a year into the town in which it is located.

So no proposal to remove the college farther than Method has even been considered. At Method the college will be outside of Raleigh, to be sure, and therefore the city will be under no compulsion to furnish it fire and police protection, water mains and sewers; yet it will be close enough for the Raleigh stores to retain the students' patronage.

Pretty soft for Raleigh. Dr. Paschal's proposal has the same inherent weakness that defeated Greensboro's, namely, that it expects a Raleigh board of trustees to remove the school from the vicinity of Raleigh, and in addition it proposes a venture in co-education. It will hardly receive even honorable mention.

PRISON LABOR AND PROFIT. The city prison labor force will be sent out to Reedy Fork to clear off the creek bottom that is to be the bed of the lake from which Greensboro will in future receive its water supply, and after that it is indicated that Greensboro will go out of the convict labor business, mainly, it is gathered, because this labor, which costs no wage, does not pay.

Thereafter men deprived of their liberty by the city court, and able to work, will be delivered to the city. Wonder if the county, if it kept a strict accounting as to costs and results of its convict labor, would reach a similar conclusion? It would be a distinct advance if the conclusion were to be reached by all the authorities that prison labor is not "profitable."

PLAINTIFFS SCORE IN CIVIL COURT ACTIONS

Jury Awards One a Verdict of $800—Another Gets $500 by Consent.

The last lap of the November term of Superior court for the trial of civil cases started Monday morning and when court adjourned for the day several matters had been disposed of with the plaintiffs scoring decisions.

A jury yesterday decided that F. W. Graves, trading as F. W. Graves and company, Williamstown, damages from the defendant, Raleigh, in the sum of $800. The plaintiff asked for judgment in the sum of $2,050.

The plaintiff was employed by the defendant as an architect, chief engineer and superintendent in connection with the construction of a re-drying plant and storage building to be erected at Williamstown. Under the contract terms the defendant agreed to give the plaintiff a commission of three per cent of the general cost of construction.

The construction of the re-drying plant cost about $140,000 while the storage building cost near $25,000. The defendants paid the plaintiff $1,100 and stated that some of the work in the construction of the plant consisted of machinery of which the plaintiff knew nothing about.

By consent of both parties Carditer Spencer, by next friend, Alexander Spencer, defendant, damages from the Southern Railway company as the result of an accident which occurred March 29 on the Southern Railway near the Lumber company plant and Bettinger street.

The plaintiff, who is five years of age, was playing with other children near the defendant's tracks when a push car and severely injured. Her removal to the hospital was necessary. In the complaint the defendant was charged with negligence in that no warning was given the children of the approaching push car. Judgment was sought in the sum of $3,000.

Paula Carter Perry obtained a divorce from her husband, John Perry, the nuptial knot being untied in Superior court Monday morning by Judge W. F. Harding.

By consent of both parties the cases of Home Baking company vs. Raymond Arnold and W. G. Goley vs. D. C. Suggs and Henry T. Scott were continued until the next term of civil court.

FORWARD MONEY FOR CITY BALL FRANCHISE

Forfeit Money Required by League Is Sent to W. G. Bramham—May Hold Meeting Soon.

Greensboro's baseball franchise, which departed from this city because fans did not rally to the support of the old baseball club in its last appeal for funds, will be returned to this city probably before nightfall.

The club franchise was forfeited to the league and yesterday the forfeit money, required of each team in the city, was forwarded to W. G. Bramham, president of the Piedmont league, by C. Wistar Stockard, acting in behalf of the new stockholders and the local Merchants' association, which was instrumental in collecting the required amount of money to bring the club franchise back to this city.

It is possible that a meeting of the stockholders will be called in the near future for the purpose of mapping out plans for the coming season, such as the naming of a manager and the seeking of additional funds.

While the club was assured that for Greensboro the club must raise considerable more money in order to take care of the expenses incurred in spring training. However, this expense will be waived when the new stockholders assemble for election.

The election of a manager for the coming season is the chief item that will be attended to at once for during the off season, in that the trades are made for the strengthening up of the club for the coming season.

New York, Nov. 13.—Hearing of the plea of Carle Carleton, industrial promoter, to control the operation of a desirable alien of Pat Somerset, English actor, was conditionally closed by a board of inquiry at Ellis Island today and the papers will go to Washington for the decision.

Witnesses today included both Somerset and Carleton, who charges that besides being intimate with Somerset, Carleton had committed a fifth day Somerset committed acts of forgery in England. The hearing was behind closed doors.

"When this thing is over Carleton will see what we do," Somerset said on leaving Ellis Island. "Any man should know that a man can't forge a check in England and get away with it. It is like most of Carleton's statements, a matter of course."

Carleton, after bringing the charges, requested immigration officials to drop them, but his request was denied.

A CASE OF CAREFUL DIAGNOSIS

MRS. FELTON MAY SERVE IN SENATE

Formality of Counting Election Returns May Give Woman an Opportunity.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 13.—That there still is a probability of Mrs. W. H. Felton serving a few days in the United States senate—the first woman to have that honor—was indicated here tonight by developments in connection with making the election of Walter F. George, former justice of the state Supreme court, a matter of official record.

Mr. George was appointed by Governor Hardwick as an interim senator succeeding the late Thomas E. Watson until a successor is elected by the people. Mr. George was nominated in a special Democratic primary on October 17, and his nomination confirmed in the general election on November 7.

It is necessary for him to have that certificate in his hands at Washington, according to information from the office of Secretary of State McLenahan.

Pappy Sale On Armistice Day Was a Huge Success In City

The sale of poppies in this city on Armistice day by the local American legion auxiliary unit was a big success. Every poppy placed on sale on the streets found willing purchasers, the greater majority of them being disposed of before noon. However the poppy sale at the North Carolina college was not as large as the committee had anticipated.
