

CLUB FOR FARMERS IS URGED BY MR. PARKER

Agricultural Man Believes People of Country Should Have Meetings.

ASKS TOWN FOLK TO HELP

(By Associated Press) Raleigh, Nov. 30.—"We have the Rotarians, chambers of commerce, Kiwanians, Merchants' associations, Civitans, Women's clubs, Lions and other organizations whose purpose is to build for the public good. But have not all of these overlooked the biggest, nearest, most economical and remunerative investment of them all—the farmer?"

This question was asked by Frank A. Parker, agricultural statistician of the North Carolina and United States departments of agriculture, in issuing a statement today appealing to city residents and organizations to manifest more interest in the farmers of the country districts and to extend them more co-operation.

"North Carolina is an agricultural state," said Mr. Parker. "There are no real cities. The towns depend entirely on the farm interests for their prosperity. Yet how many of the organizations I have named have made a real constructive plan toward helping the farming interests as they would for a far less deserving and essential industrial interest in their limited city districts?"

"As soon as the farmer gets a real start toward an organization of the same kind and purpose, that the city enjoys, the selfish business interests say 'It can't be done; it must not be done.' This destructive propaganda is started. Money for the 'anti' work becomes plentiful, whereas that for the good of the deserving and prosperous farming farmer is all too rare except by country-reared men."

"What would happen if our cities, Raleigh for instance, should first improve their streets that connect with all the major country roads and have a large sign at the city limits, 'The Farmer's Interests Are Ours—Welcome?' What if they all had a square for the farmers to congregate, offer shelter and a meeting place, curb market and the evidences of sinistery in their 'welcome'? What if all the business men were to deal as brother to brother with their country neighbor and have, as well as show, a real interest in his affairs?"

"Too few do this. 'Because the farmer has to wear soiled clothes by virtue of dealing with the soil, is no excuse for thinking him ignorant and one to be ignored and belittled. A clerk in a store recently was riding in his fine car and a farmer passed in his dingy Ford. The clerk remarked: 'It makes me tired the way these farmers complain of hard times when they all have automobiles and pay cash for their purchases. Who deserves an automobile more than the farmer? Who should criticize the farmer for wanting to save a few cents by offering his hard-earned cash for his few purchases? Who has the most freight and largest turnover of capital and profit in sales, the farmer or the urban commodity dealer?' Which is the most essential industry?"

"Opportunity lies right at our doors. Investments in farmers' affairs pay the best interest. The basis of our national prosperity begins with the farm," he declared.

The official explained that he did not wish his remarks to be interpreted as unfavorable criticism. The statement was issued, he said, "with the hope of securing united efforts on the part of civic organizations to co-operate and assist the farmers of the state."

Hinton Expected at Para.
Para, Brazil, Nov. 30.—Lieut. Walter Hinton, the American aviator flying from New York to Rio Janeiro, was expected to arrive today from Cayenne, French Guiana. The stores were closed at mid day in preparation for the event, and the governor and mayor made plans for his reception.

"If we are wise enough and great enough to do this thing we should very carefully safeguard our generosity through the demand that the nations of Europe should balance their budgets so as to wipe out the present annual deficits. They cannot do this however, without a very substantial reduction of all their army and navy appropriations."

"I do not know whether to regard it as a tragedy or a comedy that we should in the present world situation be represented at the various conferences abroad by one whose function is that of a spectator. We are the only nation of the world that can act with striking power, and yet we are satisfied to look on."

"We may delay and delay and delay, taking those steps assuring us that the world war was a war to end wars until it is too late to avert such a war, and too late to guard ourselves against participation in it, or from the disastrous effects upon us and upon the generations yet to come, of another world war."

DEBT CANCELLATION IS FAVORED BY MR. HIBBEN

President of Princeton University Thinks United States Should Agree.

TO PREVENT OTHER WARS

Houston, Tex., Nov. 30.—Declaring that America should cancel at least part of her war debt from the allies in order to make sure that the world war was a war to end wars, John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University, in an address today asserted that "now is the time for the United States to gauge whether the war sacrifices of the country have been in vain."

A great toll, he said, was paid by the allies in the year when we were in preparation to enter the war.

"If we exact further payment in money we will be demanding that the allies pay the debt the owe us twice over. It may be said by some that while this is a generous solution on our part of some of the difficulties of Europe, it is not right that the nation should forego a contractual debt, that the government is the trustee of the funds of its people and must safeguard the financial interests of its citizens. But if the people themselves demand it, they have the right to waive their own interests in view of a higher and possible realization."

"We have already manifested this spirit on a small scale in our history. The indemnity given to us by China on account of the boxer rebellion was found to be larger than the claims of our American citizens. Consequently, we returned $13,000,000 to China."

"A similar action now on our part would not only give new courage and hope to Europe but would bring to our American people again the same elevation of spirit which we experienced in the years of 1917 and 1918, during the world war. It is a great day in the history of mankind when a powerful nation shall rise up and speak to all the world that it has a soul."

"If we are wise enough and great enough to do this thing we should very carefully safeguard our generosity through the demand that the nations of Europe should balance their budgets so as to wipe out the present annual deficits. They cannot do this however, without a very substantial reduction of all their army and navy appropriations."

"I do not know whether to regard it as a tragedy or a comedy that we should in the present world situation be represented at the various conferences abroad by one whose function is that of a spectator. HARVEY OUTLINES PLAN FOR NATIONAL CONDUCT

Ambassador Sees No Reason Entering Needless and Entangling Pacts.

MUST PRESERVE FREEDOM

(By Associated Press) Manchester, Eng., Nov. 30.—George Harvey, the American ambassador speaking as the guest of honor at a Thanksgiving dinner of the Anglo-American society tonight, outlined in his points what he considered a good formula for the national policy of the United States. The points are given by Mr. Harvey were:

First: To foster the strength of a republic by just legislation and economy at home.

Second: To preserve to the nations of the world the blessings of peace.

Third: To strive to cultivate and maintain a concert of Europe.

Fourth: To avoid needless and entangling engagements.

Fifth: To acknowledge the equal rights of all nations.

Sixth: The foreign policy of the United States should always be inspired by love of freedom.

Mr. Harvey also responded to the toast 'Cordial relations,' said a very few words would comprise a comprehensive adequate response.

"The relations between Great Britain and the United States, both before the war and since, are people ought to be cordial, and they are," said Mr. Harvey. "They should continue to be cordial and they shall. What more need be said. The toast has been proposed and the response has been given. Argument is unnecessary. The assertion is accepted, and the incident is closed."

But having disposed of the subject of the toast, Mr. Harvey proceeded to comment at some length on the present international situation, as compared with the period immediately following the Napoleonic wars. The ambassador emphasized that, although conditions now admittedly were bad, they are vastly better than in fact the present situation, and that "15 long, dreadful years" following the Napoleonic wars.

Sparking of trade conditions and the exchange rate, the ambassador quoted a list of figures. He declared that $20,000 would buy more foodstuffs from the United States now than £20,000 would have bought a year ago. The chase of the pound sterling after the dollar had been a fascinating one, and, although the price of the pound sterling had somewhat slackened last summer, its stride had been resumed and the goal, parity, although hardly within striking distance, nevertheless was in sight.

"The day when it has been reached," the ambassador continued, "will indeed be a happy day and worth of celebration on both sides of the Atlantic. We want all the people of the world to make money, but not to make money by work, but not by lying down or by pleading the baby act. Uncle Sam resembles the Delft in one respect, at any rate: He prefers to help those who lean to help themselves."

"The United States has become what has been called a creditor nation. What of it? She was a debtor, and a very hard working debtor through many generations. It isn't the fact of being a creditor that you Englishmen; you ought to know! If it is, beware the hereafter. 'Great Britain has been, and as Sir George Paish demonstrated the other day, after having provided for all her obligations, still is far and away the greatest creditor of the world. That's right; that as it should be. You sturdy, capable, far-seeing Englishmen have fairly earned your wealth and are justly entitled to keep it to use as you see fit. We quite humbly, but somewhat firmly, claim a like privilege."

For First Time in History Pope Observes Thanksgiving
Rome, Nov. 30.—(By Associated Press)—For the first time in the history of the Catholic church, the pope joined in an American national festival when he insisted this evening upon receiving the students of the American college and addressed them on the topic of Thanksgiving day. The students, numbering 150, were accompanied to the audience chamber by Cardinal Bilelet, their protector, as well as by the rector and the rectory of the college.

In his address the pope said: "National Thanksgiving! It is a noble idea on the part of your people—choosing this day for prayer, men who pray lack one of the essentials of life. Your country must indeed be blessed by Almighty God."

In accepting an offering of 1,200 lire from the students and their superiors, he thanked them "for the help you have given me for the suffering Russians, mown down by pestilence, famine and misery."

The pope said that, through the American students, he wished to congratulate the entire American people and express his gratitude for the generosity they had shown on every occasion of need.

ANTI-CRUELTY SOCIETY HAS LARGE MEMBERSHIP

12,000 Men Deputized As Special Constables to Care For Work Horses.

TRACK DOWN THIEVES

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Twelve thousand Illinois men have been deputized as special constables in one of the most highly organized anti-crueity societies in the United States. Formed four years ago as the department of constabulary of the state Society for Prevention of Cruelty and Apprehension of Horses and Automobile Thieves, the organization has been extended into every county and is now branching out in Indiana and Wisconsin.

Organized along semi-military lines, the constabulary forms an adjunct to the regular paid peace officers, ready to assist in any emergency, or to take charge in the absence of the regular authorities.

While the original purpose of the movement was to prevent cruelty and track horse and automobile thieves, the department now maintains auto-patrols, 18 second lieutenants and intelligence service to ferret out vice, gambling, bootlegging and other offenses, and furnishes men to keep order at fires and in other emergencies.

Among the cases brought by the constabulary, and now pending in Chicago courts, is one in which a large teaming contractor is accused of underfeeding 500 horses. As a result of the society's work, according to Walter P. Stuart, general superintendent of constabulary, diseased, overworked and underfed horses have practically been eliminated from Chicago.

The constabulary has a troop in every police precinct in Chicago, several in the outlying townships, and a troop in each downstate county, a total of 150 troops.

The maximum strength of each troop is one captain, four first lieutenants, 18 second lieutenants and 224 constables. In addition there is an inspector commanding each of the 20 divisions into which the state has been divided, and a county superintendent of the society in each county.
