

DR. WHITE ADDRESSES STATE HISTORY BODY

Anderson College President Tells of Epochal Annals of North Carolina.

HE TELLS OF PROGRESS

Raleigh, Dec. 7.—North Carolina's 16 years which turned the tide for popular education were the epochal annals from 1858 to 1900, so Dr. John E. White, of Anderson college, told the Literary and Historical association tonight, when he, an exotic refugee, came back to make the annual address to the association, President William K. Boyd's address being historical could not refrain from mixing up with the great preacher's subject, notwithstanding the fact that the two had not met since Dr. White pitched a shutout game of baseball against Dr. Billy's team in the pre-historic age. Dr. White's purpose was to remark the changing state attitude toward popular schools, which revolution in public thought he was happy to observe was about the end of the denominational warfare against state aided institutions. Quoting a university president as sponsor for the idea that educational ends are best obtained by training a few who will allow education to percolate from the top to the bottom, Dr. White told the familiar history of the early nineties when a few Baptist associations began to thunder against the top-heavy system of state schools in which nobody took the elementary system seriously and nobody had done so since Calvin H. Wilby and Archibald Murphey gave them their great lives. The Supreme court in 1855 had held that schools are not a necessary expense and state superintendents had despaired of anything better. But when these associations got in action and the state convention 23 years ago memorialized the legislature to do something for the elementary schools, followed by the championship of the Biblical Recorder under J. W. Bailey's editorship, the state superintendent, Charles H. Mebane, joined with them and by 1858 the state was definitely committed.

The Methodists under Bishop John C. Kilgo joined the Baptists, and when the state took a stand the way was clear. The campaign led by Charles D. Melver and J. W. Bailey as chairman and secretary of an organization to promote local tax districts, failed miserably, but the legislature of a year later settled the state's participation. Aycock came the year following and he had the Democratic view not only of education, but of life itself. Talking about North Carolina he said by common consent she is the premier state of the south in progressive work and is in the national eye more and more.

UNUSUAL DANCING IN "THE PASSING SHOW"

Big Massive Production Pleases Audience That Packed Grand—But They Will Be Late.

"The Passing Show" presented to a packed house at the Grand the best dancing that has been seen here this season and some of the finest effects in scenery and costumes. Sam Howard, on whom the bulk of the fun-making devolved, had to warm up his crowd. In the beginning he was not received half as well as his second in the business, Will Phillips; but he put more and more of his stuff across in each succeeding scene, until before the final curtain fell he had the audience in his hands, and in his last long appearance rendered it helpless with laughter. The burlesques were excellent, especially "The Bat," "Spanish Love" and "Mecca," and special mention should be made of the comedy work of Alexandria Dagmar, all the way through. No great things can be said for the music, but then who looks for music in a revue, provided the chorus and costumes are reasonably pretty, the comedians clever, and the dancers really on the job? "The Passing Show" met all these specifications.

The triumph of the evening, though, belonged to the dancers. Jack Dempsey, Margaret Woods, Frank Masters, Peggy Brown and Mary Gleason made up a quintet of extraordinary ability. Probably the climax of the show was reached in the Apache dance of Mr. Dempsey and Miss Woods; but there was plenty of first-rate work scattered all along. Frank Masters' eccentric pas seul being especially notable. It was a big, massive show, full of gaiety, color, amusement, and without any particularly raw spots. The ability of the comedians to keep their humor about the usual low-water mark is worth special praise. Once or twice they skated on thin ice, but not often; and they never broke through.

The first number was of course ruined for 99 per cent of the audience by the mannerless 10 per cent who came in late. But that is an old story in Greensboro.

LEGION OFFICERS TO BE ELECTED MONDAY

Nominating Committee Will Report And Two First Officers Will Be Elected.

The Henry K. Burnett post of the American Legion will meet Monday night at the legion headquarters for the election of officers for the coming year. Only two officers, however, will be elected at this meeting, and the others will be nominated to be elected at the next meeting. The new commander and vice-commander will be chosen by the body assembling Monday night. There is evidence of very little politics regarding these officers. The nominating committee was appointed by Commander Jack Stevens at the last meeting. The only definite statement obtainable regarding the new commander is that Dan McLeod, who recently left Greensboro for work in Fayetteville, was being prominently mentioned for commander for the year 1923. Since Mr. McLeod has left this post, it is a matter of speculation as to who will succeed Commander Stevens. The name of P. A. Hutchinson, present adjutant, has been suggested from several sources as a possible commander. Mr. Hutchinson has shown great interest in the work of the legion since he has been an officer, and the end of the Capt. Billy McKenzie case is credited largely to his efforts. While it was impossible to learn that action the nominating committee has taken, it is believed that the name of Hutchinson will be read.

Other possible candidates for the command of the legion post have not been suggested, albeit some members of the legion here state that a dark horse may be run in from the outside at the election meeting. The meeting Monday night will open promptly at 7:45 o'clock.

MOTHERS GUESTS OF SONS AT A BANQUET

Brilliant Function, Sponsored By Hi-Y Club Held In Y. M. C. A. Building.

To acquaint the mothers with the efforts being made for the betterment of the community through the creation of clean speech, sportsmanship, scholarship and a Christian character, about 100 mothers were guests of their sons at a banquet held in the Y. M. C. A. building last night. It was the marking of the first annual mother and son banquet and was sponsored by the Hi-Y clubs of the local association. The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, which was converted into the banquet hall, was decorated with the Yuletide colors. Lee H. Edwards, principal of the Asheboro street school, presided at the banquet table. The invocation was pronounced by W. E. Blair.

Mr. Turner gave a splendid outline of what the Hi-Y clubs stand for and their accomplishments in the social, religious and physical movements. Mrs. Phillips, member of the high school faculty, reported the plans underway for the future. Mrs. J. D. Whinnie talked on the cooperation of the mothers in the Y. M. C. A. from a mother's standpoint. Mr. Clyde Turner, pastor of the First Baptist church, delivered a short address. Robert Irvin extended greetings to the mothers. The evening was furnished by the high school quartet.

AUTOMOBILES CLASH IN GLENWOOD SECTION

Car Belonging to J. A. Dillon Was Turned Over Resulting From Langly Blow.

Four automobiles belonging to J. A. Dillon and E. Langly, of Greensboro, were involved in a collision last night shortly after 9 o'clock in Glenwood. Both cars were driven by their respective owners. The Dillon car was completely wrecked, having been turned over with several parts torn off. The Langly car was not so badly damaged.

Mr. Dillon, who lives at 942 Silver Run avenue, was coming toward Greensboro on the right-hand side of the road, according to information learned at the police station last night. The street car track in that section, on the left-hand side of the asphalt, and Dillon declared last night that Langly was driving toward his home in Glenwood with only one light. Neither of the men was hurt, other than a few minor scratches. The police made an investigation but did not arrest either of the drivers.

GOV. RUSSELL DECLARES HE'S AN INNOCENT MAN

With Great Dramatic Emphasis He Declares the Charge "False As Can Be."

MISS KIRKHEAD TESTIFIES

Oxford, Miss., Dec. 7.—Bringing to a climax a day crowded with tense situations, Lee M. Russell, governor of Mississippi, proclaimed from the witness stand in federal district court his innocence of charges of seduction and other wrongs made by Miss Frances Birkhead, stenographer, and with dramatic emphasis declared the charge "false as can be." "If Miss Birkhead was seduced in the office of the lieutenant governor it was by some one besides Lee M. Russell, because I was not there at the time. It is as false as it can be," he declared. Governor Russell was called as one of the first witnesses for the defense after counsel for Miss Birkhead who is suing for $100,000 damages, rested their case shortly before three o'clock this afternoon. He still was on the witness stand, under cross examination, when court adjourned for the day.

Governor Russell, turning his eyes from the jury at one point in his testimony toward the counsel table where Miss Birkhead was seated with her attorneys, in answer to a question as to whether he had authorized a compromise. "It is a deliberate falsehood and she knows it," he declared.

Miss Birkhead had testified that Governor Russell told her that he had authorized Theodore G. Bilbo, and one or two others of his friends, to effect a settlement with her. "I never authorized any one to pay her a dime," Governor Russell declared.

Miss Birkhead was on the witness stand, under cross-examination, for greater part of the morning session of court. She admitted that during the campaign for the governorship in 1919 she informed Oscar Johnston, who was opposing Mr. Russell for the gubernatorial nomination, of alleged wrongs and Earl Brewer, former governor of Mississippi and a political opponent of the governor, of the wrongs she alleges. She explained, however, she did this because they were lawyers and she was seeking advice and counsel. She also admitted that she received a monetary consideration for information by which a newspaper would be enabled to print the story of her allegations first when the suit was filed and score a "coop."

Other than the actual court hearing one of the developments of the day was an announcement by counsel for Miss Birkhead that a citation for contempt of court had been issued for Theodore Bilbo, summoned as witness by the plaintiff but who had not yet reported.

NORFLEET TRIO WILL PLAY FOR CHILDREN

Euterpe Club Arranges Concert At Grand Saturday Afternoon Especially For Children.

Following a custom in vogue several years, the Euterpe club, of Greensboro, has brought to the city a special musical event for children, the Norfolk trio, the members of which will give a concert Saturday afternoon at the Grand at 3 o'clock. The trio consists of Miss Mabel, pianist; Catherine Norfolk, violinist; and Leeper Norfolk, cellist. They are all young, but have been widely acclaimed as musicians of unusual ability. In many of the cities, such concerts have been a pronounced success.

Representatives of the Euterpe club have sent notice to the schools of the city about the concert and have made unusual efforts to bring the matter to the attention of the children. The club believes that such concerts have a strong effect on the development of musical taste and interest among children, and the present concert is designed not only for entertainment, but for musical education.

CLERK KILLS A MAN AND INJURES WOMAN

Paul Funderburk Killed And Miss Olene Courson Wounded By M. D. Wood, Of Macon.

Macon, Ga., Dec. 7.—Paul Funderburk, of Roma, Ga., traveling salesman for a tobacco company, was shot and instantly killed and his woman companion, said by officers to be Miss Olene Courson, was seriously wounded, when the couple returned to the woman's boarding house shortly after 10 o'clock tonight.

M. D. Wood, clerk in a local department store, was placed under arrest by sheriff's deputies and charged with the shooting. Witnesses told the officers, they stated that Wood went to the boarding house during the absence of Miss Courson, and awaited her return. As the automobile bearing the couple returned, according to the witnesses, Wood opened fire, Funderburk falling dead across the steering wheel. The young woman was taken to the hospital in an unconscious condition. There, it was said, she was wounded in the stomach and in the left arm.

Virginia Roads' Association Wants a Special Legislature

Richmond, Va., Dec. 7.—A resolution urging Gov. E. Lee Fisher to convene the legislature in extraordinary session "as early as possible to provide ways and means to meet the emergency in the state's highway construction program, leaving to the members of the assembly the method of meeting such emergency," was adopted at a meeting here today of the executive committee and board of directors of the Virginia Good Roads' association, which was attended by several members of the legislature.

J. L. Powell, convicted of Murder, Draws Term 20 Years

Tallahassee, Fla., Dec. 7.—J. L. Powell, convicted in circuit court today of second degree murder in connection with the killing of James Legette, of Cairo, Georgia, was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary. Judge E. C. Love denied application for a writ of habeas corpus. The defendant was killed during a quarrel while he and Powell were hunting in Lake Isomonia November 19.

Negroes Rob Homes. New York, Dec. 7.—The theft by a gang of negroes of $150,000 worth of supplies from the summer homes of Harry Payne Whitney and other wealthy New Yorkers was revealed tonight by detectives after a battle in "Hell's Kitchen," on the edge of the uptown theatrical district. The detectives made two arrests and recovered loot valued at $50,000.

CONSIDER MUNICIPAL LAWS AT CONFERENCE

Mayors And City Managers To Assemble At Raleigh For Meeting Tuesday.

Laws on the statute books affecting municipalities and additional legislation designed to protect the interests of the cities of the state will be discussed and considered next Tuesday, December 12, at Raleigh, at the regular meeting of the North Carolina Municipal association. City Manager P. C. Painter will attend the gathering.

City managers and mayors from cities and towns representing every section of North Carolina are expected to attend the meeting at the state capital, when a general exchange of ideas and a discussion of plans for the improvement of municipal government will take place. A legislative committee from the association will be appointed to appear before the general assembly when it meets in January in an effort to have certain amendments added to the municipal finance act, which was passed at the last session of the legislature. The method of procedure under the act which is said to have revolutionized municipal financing, will be outlined at the meeting.
