The situation. Differences of opinion arose among the Democrats as to how they should proceed.

Senator Paul Harrison, of Mississippi, has shown an inclination to support the Capper and Lowrey bill, which commences Monday and lasts until Friday.

Some of the older members of the North Carolina delegation in the house said the highest handed act of gross partisanship they had ever witnessed since coming to Congress.

Thomas W. Harrison, Democrat, and representing the seventh Virginia district, was unopposed for John Paul, Republican, the Representative.

Winkle declared that 7,000 voters in that district had been disfranchised in the election two years ago, by the act.

He said that Harrison had conclusively shown by check stubs drawn in favor of Bascom Siemp, and letters written by Siemp's secretary that Siemp had been trafficking for his party in securing positions as postmasters to persons in Virginia who would put up the money.

Siemp issued a statement denying Harrison's charge, and said the money was collected had been turned over to the Republican national committee to help cancel its deficit.

Mr. Bulwinkle said Representative Siemp's explanation failed to explain these check stubs and what the nature of sort of trafficking postmaster positions had been going on in South Carolina, North Carolina and Tennessee within the last two years.

He pointed to the fact that the congressional committee was now about to investigate Mr. Tolbert, the South Carolina dispenser of government jobs in that state.

Mr. Bulwinkle was generally referred to as the "stomach" of the highest congressional committee was now about to investigate Mr. Tolbert, the South Carolina dispenser of government jobs in that state.

Today Major Steadman and Uncle Johnson were to the White House to urge the President to appoint Representative Siemp, of Mississippi, as a member of the Supreme court of the United States.

could be 100 per cent American because you are a Catholic, I dare say he would say to me they never did me anything like that when I stood in line with my gun, waiting to go over the top.

Speaking of the appeal made by organizers of the Klan along lines of what they call 100 per cent Americanism, he said:

"In many places the appeal to creed has brought into the organization some excellent men who believe that they are addressing themselves to a real problem when they draw lines of religious prejudice."

Sketching the progress of the Klan, he continued:

"It grows very rapidly when it strikes a community and it requires a year of experience to convince its best members that the organization has no real place of usefulness in America. It arouses the intensest bitterness."

"In some communities, where I am acquainted with its activities, friends of a life time have become estranged, families have been divided, men have become suspicious of their neighbors, and intolerance have become poisoned pens and serpent tongues have been busy spreading scandals. Women and children have been taught to hate the members of the neighborhood and different religious faith are plotting their destruction."

"The old American spirit of enterprise, co-operation and neighborly good will and what the neighbors of its bigoted teaching and the spirit of religious intolerance, hatred and suspicion enters into every civic activity from the deliberations of the chamber of commerce to the political primaries. Sermons of hate are thundered from pulpits, where, in other years, was taught the doctrine of great commonality."

"The organization is as dangerous to the Protestant as it is to the Catholic, the Jew or the negro. It exists only when the authority of the government has been broken down and destroyed. It brings chaos and hatred and menace to every law abiding citizen who may fall victim of the private quarrels and animosities of the men who hide their identity behind a mask."

"The essence of our opposition to this organization is not in the fact that it fights the Catholic church or expresses its antipathy to the Jew or the negro, but in the fact that it does the vilest and most heinous of all things—the protection of a mask and through the process of terrorism and violence.

"It is incredible that this country should have passed through its baptism of fire and devotion which was called into action four years ago only to sag back now into this most lamentable species of disorder.
