ARRANGE FOR GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

Delegates Appointed and Speakers Secured for Meeting in Raleigh

Charlotte, N. C., March 26.—Though more than two months must elapse before the holding of the good roads convention at Raleigh this day the legislature convenes in special session...

In addition to the interest attracted to the convention because of the importance of its purpose, the fact that it will have present the leading representatives of the two political parties in this state is serving to direct still greater attention to it.

ard, of the federal district court, Richard H. Edmunds, editor of The Manufacturers Record, an official of the national highway association and several prominent men of this state are expected also to be present and deliver addresses.

Colonel Kirkpatrick supplemented today his recent announcement regarding provisions of the bill he has been providing for the expenditure of the proceeds of the proposed minimum bond issue by explaining that this bill would abolish the office of township trustees in every county of the state, and vest their authority in the boards of county commissioners. These boards also would be given authority to construct highways within corporate municipalities and require those municipalities to provide for the repayment of the cost of such work to the county government when such work is essential to the completion of a trunk road.

LUMBER MEN LOSE BATTLE IN COURT

Government Wins Suit from Association of Dealers in First Court

Memphis, Tenn., March 26.—The high court of justice that today has been called to hear the case of the American Hardwood Manufacturers Association against the government has won the first battle in its suit against the hardwood lumber dealers on a charge of restraint of trade.

Granting of an injunction against the association's "open competition plan" by Federal judge John E. McCall is expected by government attorneys to destroy real competition in the lumber business and create an influence toward lower prices.

Appeal has been taken to the circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati, where the final battle will be staged.

The court found that hardwood lumber prices had increased from $50 to $55 per cord in little more than a year. The decision forbids the association from holding out market letters and price reports and holding price meetings. The government was upheld in its contention that dealers had conspired to boost prices by artificial means.

Court exhibits included letters from the association to dealers emphasizing these new business principles: "Cooperation, not competition, is the life of trade."

"Over production is criminal folly. It kills the goose that lays the golden egg."

Government exhibits included enthusiastic letters to the association from dealers. One read: "Under this plan enabled us to increase our price $6 per 1000 feet."

Try this Jelly Pudding:

- PASTRY
1/2 cupful Jewel Shortening
1 cupful sugar 3 eggs
1/2 cupful sweet milk
2 cupfuls flour
2 level teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoonful vanilla

Cream the shortening and sugar. Add the egg yolks well beaten. Sift the baking powder with the flour. Add it to the egg mixture little by little alternately with the milk. Add the vanilla. Lastly fold in the well-beaten whites of the eggs. Turn into layer-cake tins which have been rubbed with Jewel Shortening and dusted with flour. Bake about 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven. When nearly cold spread with currant jelly and put together like a layer cake. When cold cut in thick slices and pour over it a hot, foamy sauce seasoned with vanilla. Serve quickly before it soaks up the sauce.

Jewel Shortening is made from choice, wholesome cottonseed oil. It is not untried and new, though it may be so to you. It has been proving itself a prized discovery to many women for years.
