ROOT TAKES SIDE OF SMALL NATION

American Jurist Shows Views In Recent Conference Held At The Hague

The Hague, Aug. 20.—In the course of the jurists' conferences which have been held here to draw up plans for the organization of an International High Court of Justice, Raoni Fernandez, the Brazilian delegate, found Elilin Root in strong supporter in his fight for the interests of small nations.

At two different occasions Mr. Root necessed in inducing the conference a adopt articles which Senhar Fernanocz proposed but which only met with a cold reception until Root came to 'grandez' assistance. The first case was the right of the country which had no judge in the court to name a judge to sit while that country's case was before the court.

The second case in which Fernandez and Root closely collaborated was when the latter's proposal to extend the power of supplementary judges was about to be rejected.

According to the original plan the vaancies caused brough the absonce of udges could only be filled when at east three judges were absent. Mr. lon', however, supported the Fernanamendment, and the substitute akes the function as soon as one judge s absent. In these two cases the small
