Cotton Market Issues Lead To Lively Session of the City Fathers; Action Is Deferred

Naming of Cotton Weigher Looms as Basis of Settlement at Next Meeting—Health Department Officials Report on Conditions at South Rocky Mount Shops

The soldier looms had a counter part in the cotton marketing row last night for there was for the attention a petition for a cotton weigher but it was addressed to the County Commissioners of Nash county and was signed by seven of the eight buyers of cotton in the city. However, according to the opponents of the proposition, it was a very different matter when they were petitioning the board of aldermen who could appoint a cotton weigher, and a legal issue that would afford the relief they requested. There was a sentiment reflected by the opponents of a cotton weigher plan that they didn't mind asking for a weigher from some outside party who didn't have the right to grant the request—but that if that petition to the Board of County Commissioners was going to be used before the board of aldermen, a body that did have the power that would have a different effect, and there was an opinion lodged that the whole matter be deferred until a later meeting.

At any rate the session last night did not dispose of the cotton marketing tangle though the fire hazard phase of the matter was disposed of in the board of aldermen were announced by action from the City Aldermen that they would state laws in cover and it was a matter for the fire chief and the Police and there was no need for additional legislation.

The City Attorney, Mr. Bassett, advised that his legal findings had been that the city had the right and the power to appoint a cotton weigher but because it is impossible to sell cotton within the city without being weighed by the weigher and that for this service a plan of sixteen scales could be made for each lot, eight scales being indicated from the seller and eight from the buyer. He observed that this is a solution of the present problem, though he explained that the scales would be of the kind of steel and probably portable. He said that the scales would be of the kind of steel and probably portable. He said that the scales would be of the kind of steel and probably portable.

Then came the question of a cotton weigher and it was pointed out that the scales would be of the kind of steel and probably portable. He said that the scales would be of the kind of steel and probably portable.
