Prizes payable 60 days after the completion of the drawing, by the managers, who hold themselves responsible—subject to a deduction of 10 per cent.

All prizes not demanded within 12 months after drawing, will be considered relinquished for the benefit of the Institutions.

The above Lottery is authorized by an act of the Legislature of North Carolina, for the purpose of enabling the Trustees of the NEWTON ACADEMY near the town of Asheville, to complete the necessary buildings belonging to the same—and also to establish a Female Academy in the town of Asheville.

Which two objects the Trustees and Managers flatter themselves will be a sufficient inducement, independent of the flattering prospect held out in the above SCHEME, to influence all zealous friends to useful institutions to become liberal purchasers of tickets.—And they deem it unnecessary to expatiate largely in contrasting the advantages these institutions may have (if well supported with friends) over most other Seminaries.—For it is now very generally known that Asheville is one of the most healthy situations on this continent—and lying in the neighbourhood of the Warm Springs, and on the most fertile from thence, (as well as from the Western to the Southern States) is more generally reported to be the best characters of both sexes during Summer and Autumn, (for the benefit of health) than almost any other place in the Southern section of the Union.—And being also a place where board and tuition are had on very moderate terms.—Where the Youth of the sister states will lay the foundation of sound constitutions together with their Education, and receive the visits of their friends to and from the Warm Springs.—All these advantages united bear evident testimony of the eligibility of Asheville as a seat for Literary Institutions.—And therefore on these self-evident grounds, we respectfully solicit the public patronage.

100 Dollars Reward,

FOR six deserters who deserted from this post on the 3d inst. viz—John Wayne and Thomas Stewart, captain Armstrong's company of the first Light Artillery; Stewart was born in Ire and, (but came to this country when an infant) he is five feet eleven and an half inches high, twenty-two years of age, has grey eyes, brown hair, good complexion, by occupation a labourer; took with him citizen's clothes, and armed with a rifle and pistols.—The pistols are of uncommon make, the property of the United States.

John Hopkins, of captain Laval's troop, was born in South Carolina, is five feet nine inches high; has dark complexion and hair.

Charles Merul, of said troop, is a native of South Carolina, twenty-three years of age, five feet ten inches high; has light complexion, and dark hair; went off in citizen's clothes, and armed with a rifle and a number of pistols, previous to their desertion. The rifles are very ordinary in their appearance, the pistols uncommon particularly with respect to the locks, and fixing of the ramrod.

Daniel Holloway, of captain John R. Spaul's company of Light Artillery, is a native of Virginia, twenty-three years of age, five feet nine inches high; has fair complexion, blue eyes and dark hair.

Walter Barlow, of said company, deserted at the same time, of whom an accurate descriptive list cannot be given. The above reward, with all expenses will be paid (for in that proportion for either) to any person who will deliver the said deserters to me at this post, or secure them in goal, and give the necessary information to me, or to any commanding officer in the army of the United States.

A. B. ARMS TED, Captain.

From the great quantity of white oak, juniper, cypress and other trees, and of not superior in size and quality to any other which is to be found in the Southern Section of the Union—a vast number of which are well calculated for ship building and large Masts, and may be loaded with ease to convenient dock yards, without diminishing the depth of the current and the sufficient quantity of water, there is, besides the many never failing streams in the creeks, swamps and other machineries, which empty into the said river, near the head of the contemplated navigation, a full and ample supply of water power, and a full and ample supply of timber, for the construction of the said navigation. From a view of this river, lying along the navigation, it appears that the said river is well adapted to the navigation, in which the valuable Navigation of Lumber River has hitherto been impeded. That by the Seneca being placed upon a fair and equitable plan, tending to open a free navigation, exempt from toll or other restrictions—the managers do anticipate the pleasing prospect that their undertaking will meet the approbation of their fellow citizens, especially the owners of lands bordering on the navigation; the value of which necessarily will be enhanced by having this plan carried into effect. Besides, the Lottery is fixed at least for two blanks to one prize. The managers are impressed with an idea, that the speedy sale of Tickets will enable them to commence drawing in a short period. The commencement of the drawing, and the prizes drawn will be advertised in two News Papers in the State, and two in South Carolina; and every prize be punctually paid within thirty days after the drawing, subject to a discount of fifteen per cent. The more effectually to secure the payment, the managers have deposited a bond in the Clerk's Office of Hillsborough county, to the full amount of said prize, for the faithful discharge of the trust reposed in them; prize not applied for within six months after the publication aforesaid, shall be considered quintus and be applied to the encouragement of the aforesaid navigation.

MONTHLY POLITICAL PROSPECT FOR JANUARY.

Extracts from Monitor No. 2. (Continuation of Philanthropist)
From The Spirit of Seventy Six, of January 25.

Washington I have said was a soldier and a statesman—bred in camps and senates in the great school of mankind. To the misfortune of his country he was succeeded by two gentlemen of the bar, a profession of which he has been justly remarked, that it has a greater tendency to whet the ingenuity than to liberalize the understanding, or to enervate the mind. One of these, at a very late period of his life, having served an apprenticeship to the trade of a courtier at St. James's, returned (whatever he may now pretend, while striving to recommend his son to office) a rancid Englishman. Weak minds receive their opinions at second hand; great ones impose them. His successor having made his debut on the theatre of the great world at the court of Versailles, came home, in due season, in dress, taste, politics, philosophy and religion—in short, in every thing but the polish of his manners, a finished Frenchman. Accordingly we find that Popu-nipe flouted under the reign of the one, and Duane under that of the other. Mr. Adams would no doubt readily shift off Popu-nipe, or his answer to the address of the Bath county militia, or any other of his infamous retainers; or ridiculous and wicked acts on the political estate of your deceased friend General Hamilton. Do not forget, I pray you, sir, that you yourself were one of the faction whom that impotent garrulous dotard threatened to humiliate in dust and ashes; that faction made you Secretary of State, and, by consequence, President. Discard, I beseech you, sir, from your countenance and counsel forever, either John, "a prating scribbling pig," "Roth's father and son" have no other object but to sell their political "nations" in any market they can find. This Russian embassy has too much the appearance of a reward for apostasy. It looks to something like an under-hand mission to the great emperor through the livre case.

I have said, sir, that I had found more to approve than I had expected in the course of your administration. I cannot reiterate the appointment to the first place under your government of a man notoriously incompetent to the discharge of his duties; whose ignorance of the marine department on which he hung for eight years, could be equalled only by the profusion with which he outstripped the legal appropriations for its service. A man who received the salary of Secretary of the Navy, whilst the business of the department was conducted, after a fashion, by his chief clerk. But the manner of his appointment to his present office, the first act of your administration, is calculated to wound the feelings of every independent American. They feel themselves insulted in the person of their chief magistrate, when they hear the insolent boast, that you were debilitated to that position. I say nothing of Wilkinson. He is in the last stage of putrefaction; touch him, and he falls to pieces. Nor is it creditable, sir, to the American government that it should be represented, even at the court of France, by the impudent author of the celebrated anonymous letters published at Newburgh at the close of the war, inviting the army to turn their swords upon their country. As long as the dread father of that army and that country lived—as long as the beams of his glory irradiated the land of his birth—this recreant, unworthy to be called his fellow-soldier, sought shelter in obscurity and darkness; but when the sun of our country's glory had descended below the horizon, in the political twilight that foretold the darkness of the night to come, this speculative particle (with many an obscure animal that shuns the day) crept forth from his hiding place. This minion of France who (from his insolent pamphlet in mockery of the distress of the American merchants robbed under colour of the Louisiana convention) appears to have studied his art of love, as well as its politics, in the school of Cambaceres, is unworthy to be your representative. Let him be turned out of the style of senator, in whose vide supra he is a wallow. Ship Wilkinson (if he will bear the sea-sweat) to his friends in Cuba. Strip, sir, the epauletts of an American officer from shoulders branded by the scourge of the public executioner. Tear the cockade from the hat of every scoundrel in the army, if you can find honest men to accept of his commissions. Suffer no man holding an office under you, to abuse it by any attempt to influence the freedom of elections. Let not the government labour under the odium of supporting notorious swindlers and blocklers, against men of the strict character and pretensions—against men of honour and science—against the orphan sons of heroes who sealed their attachment to their country with their blood—whose children, in gratitude for their father's services, have been educated at the public charge. I know, Sir, that you have a difficult part to act. The rejection of the treaty negotiated by Messrs. Monroe and Pinckney, and more especially the manner of that rejection, has greatly enhanced the difficulty of an accommodation of our differences with England. The pride of the two governments and of the two countries has been aroused: But it is essential to the interests and (I might add) the existence of both, that they remain at peace. Far be it from me to vilify, much less to justify the misconduct of the British ministry; but let me remind you, sir, that the sentiment of hostility against America, engendered in that country by the revolution, was confined to the king and his ministers, and the vultures that prey on the vitals of every state; and that it is our interest that it should not be transferred (as assuredly it must, be if we take part with France
