foreign.

Boston, April 15.—By the Marcellus, we [illegible] London papers to March 13, containing London dates to the 4th March, and Paris dates to February 20.

The papers contain a long Swedish state paper on its relations with France, considered as a sort of declaration of war.

Marshal Blucher had been thrown from his carriage, but received little injury.

Lord Wellington's head-quarters continued at Gregorio March 3 and the French made no movements. [Verbal accounts state, that a battle was expected soon.]

Both Houses of the British Parliament have approved unanimously of war with America, and voted to support the government in continuing it with energy.

A vote to appoint a committee to ascertain the extent of the wishes of the Catholics, on motion of Mr. Grattin, was carried by a majority of 20 in the British House of Commons.

Dantzic was closely besieged by the Russians.

Denmark was expected to join the cause of Alexander.

It was reported a treaty was concluded between Denmark and England.

The French Conscriptions in the North of Germany met with much resistance.

The Russian Emperor's head quarters were at Warsaw, the last of January.

The Russians were within 30 leagues of Berlin. Gen. Stralhill was at New Stettin---Wittgenstein at Regenwald, in Prussian Pomerania. Platow had entered the New March.---The Russians had been joined by many Prussians.

Much consternation exists at Berlin. The inhabitants make proclamations in favor of the Russians in the streets, Coffee-Houses, &c.

London, March 1.—Letters from Lord Cathcart dated January 29. They state that the Russians had passed the Vistula for the North of Bromberg, and Fischel for Dirschel, and to the gates of of Dantzic.

The Russian Military Journal says:

January 3. Admiral Tchitchagoff entered Insterburg; the vanguard entered Groubinen; and Gen. Woronzow entered Nettersdorf.---Gen. Tschoplitz entered Stallupen, and was joyfully received by the inhabitants.

8. Gen. Schepliff beat the enemy at Labiau, who then retired towards Konigsburg, losing three pieces of artillery, many officers and 300 soldiers.

The Emperor and Kutusoff's head quarters were at Crani.

9. Announces the leaving of the enemy from Konigsburg. The French lost 8 or 9000 men, 30 cannon, large quantities of provisions, &c. and many Russian officers and soldiers prisoners were liberated. The fugitives of the enemy are pursued.

The Emperor's head quarters were at Merretsch. Macdonald commanded at Konigsburg. His own corps is reduced to 2500, and he has about 4500 others, who are pursued.

14. The Russians took Elbing, Marienberg and Marienwerder. Platow pursues the enemy towards Dantzic. Gen. Schepliff passed the Nogat, and follows the enemy.

12. Elbing was taken.

The French left at Marienberg in the hospitals, 40 officers and 726 soldiers.

The Russians in all these movements have made many prisoners and have taken many pieces of artillery.

Gen. Czernischoff had passed the Vistula, and pursued the French towards Newberg.

It is said the French attempted to seize the King of Prussia, but he escaped to Silesia.

The head-quarters are at Lynch.

The taking of Berlin will be the signal for the rising of all Germany.

Kutusoff is made a Prince of the Imperial Family---Platow and Wittgenstein have had new honors conferred on them.

Marshal Ney has had the title of Prince of Moscow conferred on him by Bonaparte.

It was reported Murat had been found in Vienna and seized.

The reports from Sweden are that the Austrian army has retired under a convention between Kutusoff and Swartzenberg. That ministers had been sent from Vienna to Wilna and London---That the Duke Constantine is raised to the throne of Poland---That Dennmark resists the requisitions of Bonaparte.---That Dantzic was taken Jan. 27.

Lord Walpole was still at Vienna.

Latest from France.

After our paper was put to press, we received a letter from Newport, dated Monday evening last, stating the arrival there of schooner Viper, captain Mather, 30 days from Rochelle.

Our correspondent writes "Captain Mather informs, that Bonaparte had left Paris, about the last of February for Austria, to meet the emperor Francis. That the conscripts for 1814 were rising and marching to the different depots and that complaints were loud and open, at Rochelle, against the conduct of the emperors—Troops were daily arriving in France from Spain. Captain M. saw several regiments of them at Rochelle—He heard nothing of the Russians having entered Berlin.—Captain M. had on board dispatches from the nephew of the late Mr. Barlow to our government, announcing Mr. Barlow's death, and that he had possession of all his papers; but being chased on his passage by an English man of war and apprehensive of being captured, threw the despatches overboard.

"Paris papers to the 18th of February only received, containing nothing later than you have in Boston.

"The Viper had a narrow escape from the squadron off Point Judith—she has 200 pipes brandy, wine, silks, &c.

"The privateer brig Sir John Sherbrooke cut two sloops out of Holmes Hole, last night.

Schooner Freedom, Grafton, from Charleston for Providence, and brig Actress, of Nantucket, from Savannah, for Providence, have been taken, as is also ship Ariadne from Lisbon to Philadelphia; the captains and crews of the two former have just arrived in a captured smack, and 4 of the crew of the latter in a long boat.

OFFICIAL DISPATCHES.

The commander in chief the Marshal Prince of Smolensko, informs his imperial Majesty, from his H. Q. at Orany, dated the 9th of January, as follows:

"Konigsberg, the ancient capital of Prussia, has submitted to your majesty's arms.—This great city was taken the 6th inst. by the vanguard of Count Wittgenstein, under the command of Major Gen. Schepliff. Marshal Macdonald occupied it with a corps d'armies composed of the ancient French guards, and other troops, who formed an entire and the general destruction of the enemy's grand army.

"The remains of the guards have been reduced to 25,000 men, since the Prussians separated from them. The whole corps does not exceed 7000 men. On the arrival of the vanguard, which marched rapidly, the enemy fled from Konigsberg without delay, and abandoned it to Gen. Schepliff, who entered it without resistance. The abandonment of this city without resistance is a consequence of the victories which have crowned the armies of your Imperial Majesty during the last two months. The corps of Macdonald are pursued diagonally by the armies of Wittgenstein, and Admiral Tchitchagoff.

(Signed) SMOLENSKO, Prince.

H. Q. Merenca, Jan. 10.

"I have the honor to acquaint your majesty that before the fall of Konigsberg, the van guards of Gen. Wittgenstein under General Schepliff continued to pursue the enemy from Tilsit, and came up with it the 7th of January near Lapiau.

"The enemy held an advantageous position, and the combat, in which he lost 2 cannon and 200 men, continued half a day. The enemy were fully beaten and retired to Konigsberg. Gen. Schepliff pursued the enemy the distance of 6 German miles a day, and entered Konigsberg at their sides. Our troops occupied the city at 2 o'clock at night, Jan. 6, and took 1300 prisoners.

"The enemy retired with such precipitation, that he threw into the river 30 pieces of artillery with their caisons, and left behind 8000 tired men who were made prisoners by us. In Konigsberg we found great quantities of provisions and forage.—This important success has not delayed the Major General, who continues to pursue the enemy daily. General Wittgenstein attributes this success to the wise measures of Gen. Schepliff, to his activity, and the promptness of his valor."

(Signed) SMOLENSKO."

H. Q. Lyck, Jan. 13, 1813.

Ad. Taschitscheroff, informs that on the 14th January the enemy fled beyond the Nogat, and left Ebing, Marienberg, Marienwerder, which fell into the hands of the Russian troops.

Count Platoff continues to pursue the enemy by the road from Marienberg to Dantzic. General Schepliff passed the Nogat near Sonnereau and pursued the enemy on the same side who left 7 cannon on the road from Truentz to Damerau.

H. Q. same place, Jan. 19, 1813.

Since the fall of Ebling (the 13th) the enemy fell upon Marienberg. They attempted to seize the tete-de-pont near Dershau, but they were beaten anew, and retired in two columns in the direction of Dantzic and Staregard. Count Platoff and General Schepliff follow them. We took 300 prisoners near Marienberg, 200 in the neighborhood of Dershau, and found a great number of muskets.

"The enemy lost in their hospital in Marienberg 40 officers and 726 soldiers. The new year opened with an important success. Adjutant General Czernitcheff arrived on the 31st December (Jan. 11) in the vicinity of Marienwerder, and on the fol-
