To the Editor of the Fayetteville American.

A MOST unhappy and unfortunate affair which is already too well known to the public, occasioned many imputations and misrepresentations, some of which I have heard, and others perhaps have never reached me. One of those gentlemen who last winter was the most active in the circulation of unfavorable reports against me, was Robert Campbell, Esquire, Member of the House of Commons, from Cumberland county.

It was thought necessary both by myself and my friends, that some explanation should take place between that gentleman and myself, and accordingly on the 25th March last, his attention was particularly called to conversation between himself, and a particular friend of mine, wherein Mr. Campbell was understood to say that I was a public defaulter; also to his language regarding me during the late session of the Legislature, at Raleigh, to his correspondence while there with some of his constituents, and to his conversation generally where my name had been the topic. The result of this measure is thus expressed in Mr. Campbell's own words in a letter from him to a friend of mine, who had the politeness to wait upon him in my behalf, to wit:

"I have the satisfaction to state that I have had the best reasons to believe, that I had from misrepresentation made too hasty a conclusion with respect to Mr. Gilmore's reputation, and have the best reasons long since to retract my opinion. And for his official character, on examination, I have found it perfectly correct."

Notwithstanding the liberty which accompanied the letter of Mr. Campbell of making it public in any manner I might choose, I deem it proper, and even necessary, to say that my only motive for placing it on public paper, is that the antidote may have an equal extension with the poison, and that the misrepresentations which misled Mr. Campbell may not any longer deceive the authority and sanction of his name in misleading others. It is certainly with no common degree of satisfaction I am enabled to say that Mr. Campbell's sense of justice and propriety has been equalled by his frankness on this occasion.

Valuable Property for Sale.

WILL be sold by the subscriber, on very reasonable terms, the Lots and Houses of Public Entertainment, in the town of Oxford, reserved by him when the town was established on his lands. The property possesses superior advantages which will always secure to the proprietor a preference of custom, each lot being contiguous to the court-yard, and handsomely situated; upon one of which are two commodious houses, two stories high, containing thirteen rooms for the accommodation of gentlemen of the bar and others who wish retirement; with every necessary out house, and a garden and yard occupying nearly four acres. Upon the other lot there is a Tavern house, which is about to be repaired and enlarged, a capacious framed stable besides other houses, and a horse lot adjoining, which will be extended to any size the purchaser may desire, to which will be added as much land, convenient to the town, as may be required for fire-wood and pasture. As any general description of the premises will necessarily prove unsatisfactory to strangers who may be desirous to purchase such property, they are invited to view it. The subscriber will also sell lots of ground, to suit the purchaser, adjoining the town, and convenient to the Oxford Academy, which affords to its patrons the prospect of becoming a flourishing institution.
