These licenses will be granted for a year, except in case of an application for a license to retail between the 30th day of June and the 1st of January next, which will be granted for a period that will expire on the 31st of December next, on paying a sum which shall bear the same proportion to the duty for a year, according to the existing rates, as the time for which the license was granted, shall bear to a year.

2. That the duties on spirits distilled within the United States, will cease after the 30th of June, 1816, to which period returns must be made of the spirits that day.

3. That after the 30th day of June, 1816, new rates of duties on licenses, for stills and boilers, will take effect, which rates are as follows, in cents, for each gallon of their capacity.

Capacity	1 year	6 months	3 months	1 month
100	216	108	54	27

The provisions applicable to the duties on licenses to distillers, are in general, the same with those laid by the act of July 24, 1813. The most important of the new provisions are—that the duty is invariably to be paid in money, when that payable upon the still or stills, or boilers, licensed at any one time, does not exceed twenty dollars; that a deduction of eight per centum is, in all cases to be made for prompt payment; that in cases where the duties are bonded, they are to be given with two sureties at the least (instead of one as heretofore) and are to be paid at the end of twelve months, from the expiration of the license; that all stills are to be licensed, that are used, or kept in a situation for use; that a penalty lies against any person who shall keep in or about his distillery, any beer or other liquors, prepared from grain, for the purpose of distillation, for more than eight days, without having a license; that a collector is authoried to enter a distillery at any time, whether between the rising and setting of the sun, or at any other time.

In cases in which a license for distilling, shall have been granted, according to the present rates of duty, for a period extending beyond the 30th day of June, 1816, it is required, under a penalty for neglect, that the person to whom the same may have been granted or transferred, shall, on or before the said day, apply to the collector, and pay, or secure the payment of, the additional duty, according to the new rates, for the unexpired period of the license from the 30th of June.

New forms for bonds, will be prepared by the collectors and furnished to distillers on application.

Paint Manufactory.

Jas. Pearman,

Plumber, Glazier & Painter,
From LONDON,
Gileade Street, South of the Town-House.

TAKES this method of informing the Public, that he has erected a Mill for the purpose of grinding and preparing all kinds of Paint, whereby he is enabled to furnish many colors considerably cheaper than they have hitherto been sold at in this place; particularly slate color, for roofs and the bodies of large buildings.

The utility of Black Lead in Painting (particularly roofs) is well known—inasmuch as it resists the action of water and fire; but it has hitherto been used without those advantages which it affords, in consequence of its not having been properly ground, and combined with other substances calculated to render it subservient to those valuable purposes. Therefore, the subscriber tenders his services to the Public in general, in the preparation of that and all other colours, which he will sell as low as possible, and give directions for using them. He also solicits a share of patronage in the Plumbing, Painting & Glazing business, which he will undertake to do with neatness, expedition, and on reasonable terms.

One or two good Journey men and Apprentices wanted.
