

Warren, Reynolds, Doughton to Take Trip

Freshman Mathematics Dropped By U. N. C.—Jobs Start Soon—To Broadcast Tobacco Sale—Sanatorium Site Selected—Plane-Auto Crash—Soil Erosion Funds For North Carolina—Other Interesting N. C. News Items . . .

It was learned this week that Representatives Doughton and Warren and Senator Reynolds will be on a large party of members of the Vice-President's party to the Philippines, headed by the Vice-President, the Speaker and the majority of the minority leaders of both the House and Senate, which will visit the Philippine Islands in October on the expense of the Philippine government. The trip will not cost the United States government anything. Mr. Warren and Doughton have never before taken a foreign trip during their years in Congress. Mr. Reynolds, during his three years in the Senate, has been on three junkets.

tion or dislike of the subject, failed to pass it the first year or the second and sometimes the fourth year. The only catch in this change is that the student who passes up mathematics must take either Latin or Greek as a substitute.

Employment of relief clients on WPA projects will begin within a week. State Administrator George W. Coan, Jr., predicted this week. Approximately 33,000 of the 66,000 relief cases in the State are expected to be transferred to the WPA pay rolls, and the remainder will be absorbed by other Federal agencies and by private enterprise.

William E. Dripps, farm program director for the National Broadcasting Company, will have charge of the broadcasting of tobacco sales in Kinston September 17. The broadcast is said to be first of its kind ever presented. The "songs" of the auctioneers, bidding of buyers and description of scenes on the warehouse floor will be conveyed to millions of listeners during the National Farm

Legion Head

JOSEPHUS DANIELS, JR., son of the Ambassador to Mexico and War-time Secretary of the Navy, this week was elected State Commander of the American Legion at the State convention in Fayetteville. Mr. Daniels, past Commander of Raleigh Post No. 1, is 41 years of age and is business manager of the News & Observer.

orchid for one of the smartest advertising ideas I have run across in some time.

This clever fellow places his advertising folders in the pay toilets in hotels. It's odd that no one had thought of this before. After all, johnnies are widely known as favorite reading spots, and what else can one do while sitting there? A normal person, upon seating himself or herself in such a place, immediately looks around for a newspaper, magazine, or something else in the way of reading matter.

It really doesn't matter what they are reading, so long as they have something to look at. They will read an advertisement almost as quickly as a page of comics. Speaking for myself, I know I have read more advertisements on such occasions than at any other times.

So an advertising folder, placed in a public johnny, is almost certain to be read. I know the chances that it will be picked up and read in such a place are far greater than when the folder is stuck in a rack in the hotel lobby.

The fellow who hit upon this idea is undoubtedly very human.

Horses in Early Days

Horses have never been more valuable than during the early days of the Spanish conquest in America. When the estate of a dead conquistador was administered, his steed often brought $5,000 to $6,000. Yet within half a century, the price had dropped to $2 a head.

Progress of Corn
Corn has great powers of adaptability. When the white man entered the North American plains he found the Indians growing corn from Mexico to Manitoba. The work of the Indians was continued and the boundaries of crop production extended beyond all expectations.

Sharks Afraid of Man
Sharks are afraid of man and will not attack him unless cornered. This is the opinion of Dr. Clinton L. Baker, biology professor at Southwestern university. The educator said man-eating sharks are a myth and pointed out that like lions, they will never attack without provocation.

Selection of a site two miles from Black Mountain in Buncombe County for the new Western North Carolina tuberculosis sanatorium was announced by Kemp D. Battle, chairman of the site committee, and Senator L. L. Gravelly, head of the board of directors. Establishment of a new State tuberculosis sanatorium in the western part of the State was authorized by the 1935 General Assembly which voted $250,000 in bonds for the purpose.

An unusual accident occurred near Atlantic Beach Sunday afternoon when a plane piloted by Alen Huffman of Michigan crashed into a parked car on the beach while attempting to land. William Dunford, New Bern bank teller, and his wife, were in the car. They sustained minor injuries. The under-carriage of the plane was broken and the metal propeller was bent. Huffman was not injured.

North Carolina Congressmen were informed Saturday that this State will get five of the 93 soil erosion projects to be set up in the nation, and that it will get $1,500,000 of the $27,500,000 now available for soil erosion work. That amount will be supplemented later from the four billion-dollar war relief fund.

Further Decline
Infantile paralysis gave further evidence this week of being on the decline in North Carolina, as the State Board of Health received reports of only a few new cases. Thus far this year, more than 500 cases have been reported.

Seek Election
Petitions are being circulated in Cary for an election for the recall of Mayor T. W. Adickes and Leland Raines, chairman of the town committee on finances. It is charged that they are extravagant and that neither owns any property in Cary.

Trouper's End
Harvey Gatchett, 36, of the "Crazy People's Revue," a New York vaudeville company, was killed by an electric shock Monday when his car skidded and crashed into a power line pole, sending 6,900 volts thru the overturned vehicle. He was killed while trying to extricate his wife and their two small children, Barbara and Bobbie. The latter managed

Heard and Seen on Main Street

We hear much about a dog's devotion to his master, but here's a story of a man's devotion to his dog. Chief Marion E. Meades' handsome police dog, was shot recently, there appeared to be only the slimmest chance that the dog would live. But his master was unwilling to let the dog die without doing everything for him that could be done.

So Colonel was taken to Dr. Baxter's canine hospital in Norfolk, where he was under treatment for 14 days. The dog was suffering from blood poison, distemper and heart worms, and for several days he was unconscious. It hardly seemed possible that he would survive, but he did. Last week Meades went to Norfolk and brought Colonel home with him.

Colonel was a sorry-looking canine when he was brought home from the hospital. But his master began feeding him two pounds of hamburger a day, and other things that the dog liked, including ice cream, and now Colonel is beginning to look like his former self. He soon will be as spry as ever, but the chances are that he will not try to kill any chickens again soon.

M. G. Thornton, proprietor of Sea Breeze Inn, located on the turn where the Kitty Hawk-Nags Head highway swings parallel to the ocean after leaving Wright Memorial Bridge, distributes business cards which states, among other things, that he furnishes "Good Eats, Good Gas, and Love Nests for Lovers."

Asked about the "love nests," he pointed to three little rooms or cabins in the rear of his station, with a little plot of grass and a few benches in front of them. "What's the idea of advertising them as love nests?" he was asked. "Well," he replied, "that's what people want down here, and that's the only reason folks rent 'em."

Judging from the rumors about the Elizabeth Hotel, the Carolina Hotel and the City Cafe, Elizabeth City would do well to do a little cleaning up at home before seeking to clean up "Red's Place" across the river.
