THE DEFENCE OF WILMINGTON .- When, says the Lynchburg Republican, General Bragg was sent to command the post of Wilmington, it was sagely predicted by the enes N SCHOOL-HILLSBORO', N. C. mies of the administration that that city would certainly tail into the hands of the enemy. The glorious defence which that gailant officer has made of V ilmington against the most formidable land and Daval expedition which ever sailed from a Northern port, is as creditable to General Bragg and as di-gusting to his enemics, as it is gravitying to the court.y. The discomfiture of P rier and of Buiher was complete, according to their own contessions, and of course, their disaster was far greater than admitted by them. The tide of victory and good fortune, we hope, has again turne I in lavor of the Confederate cause, and if our people are halt true to theraselves, and do not give way to moral cowardice, ultimate success is inevitable .- Petersburg Express.

There was no officer in the army more universally beloved for his galantry and gentle beating than i.e. and his loss will be a ep y felt not only by these with whom ne has been so long associated, but by the whole country, sunny land.

At the beginning of the war he was engaged * in the practice of law in Helena, Arkansas, J. L. Dieksw. Act'g Adj't. where he located when he endgrated from Erin's Green Isie, and when the tocsin of war sounded, he was the first to offer his services as a private in the Helena rifles, but his well known merits and qualifications were recogtized, and he was selected to command the company, and when the 15th Arkansas regiment was formed at Mound City, he was utanimously elected Colonel, and at Shiloh amid the storm of shot and shell, he wan his wreath and the lasting friendships of Gen. Hardee, who saw and recognized his merits and has ever since remained his stradiast friend.

Well do we remember his words when the wily Joe Hooker attempted to s ize Dug Gap, near Dalton, last spring. "Tell Cleaurne to go, to go himself, he must be there," and the wild sheut of his noble division as he roce like Sidney down the lines, and took his place at their head, and pointed with his gleaning sword to the spot where "Cerro Gordo" Williams was struggling against the hosts, and his clear cry of "forward men."

But'he is dead! No more will his form be seen where the battles rages thickest, caim and grand in his own proud cisregard of the "leaden rain and iron hail" that tell around him, yet ever mindful of those he commanded. But in after years his grave will be visited by those for whom he poured out his tite-blood that they might be free.
