TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

[TELEGRAPHED REPORTS FOR THE PRESS ASSOCIATION.]

Entered according to act of Congress, in the year 1861, by J. L. Pennington, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the Confederate States of the Northern District of Georgia.

From Charleston.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 4.—The bombardment of Fort Sumter was kept up steadily by the Monitors and Land Batteries all day. Ninety-two thirty pounder rifle shots, with time fuses, were fired Tuesday night. No great damage was done.

The enemy did not visit James Island, Forts Johnson and Pemberton, and all the batteries along the shore, preserving all the troops in the positions they occupied in the line of battle. He visited Secessionville and inspected Fort Lamar and the other works about Secessionville, which are completed on the ground, and visited and inspected Wagner Battery. The President made a thorough examination of the works on James Island, and expressed himself exceedingly gratified with everything he saw, the fine appearance of the troops, the character and strength of the positions, and the number of works. He started at eight o'clock Thursday morning on the North Eastern Railroad for Florence.

Hon. Thos. Macbeth was re-elected Mayor of Charleston by a large majority.

Report from the Fort to-night says the number of shots fired to-day was 422.

LATER DISPATCH.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 5.—The new ironsides was kept up and used it by the monitor and battery Seeger. No effort to-day to assault the ruins. The enemy's fire has very materially slackened. No new monitors.

The President left at eight o'clock for Florence and Wilmington.

LATER FROM CHARLESTON.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 5.—Nine firing tonight, from two Monitors and Land Batteries, five hundred and eighty-two rounds. Fifty-three from sunset Wednesday to sunset Thursday. Another monitor, supposed to be the Nantucket, came in about two and joined the fleet inside. Ironsides still there.

Three Monitors were observed taking in ammunition to-day, and a prisoner says the Ironsides cannot go North to take part in the bombardment, the sand and iron plates on the Ironsides were all knocked by the torpedo. They have ever since been kept steadily at the pumps.

The President at Wilmington.

WILMINGTON, Nov. 5—The President arrived here at 7 o'clock yesterday by special train from Charleston, and was received at Manchester depot by Gen. Whiting and a committee, and escorted to Gen. Whiting's residence, where he was received by Wm. A. Wright, Esq. The President replied in an able address. He was proud to be welcomed by such a large concourse of North Carolinians to the ancient and honorable town of Wilmington, upon whose soil he hoped the foot of an invading foe might never fall.

He had given Wilmington for her defence one of the best soldiers in the Confederacy, one whom he had seen tried in battle and who had risen higher as danger accumulated. He felt the full importance of the harbor, and the only one still open for trade, and would do all that could be done for its defence. He exhorted all to continue their labors in the field and in supporting the army and relieving the families of soldiers.

He spoke of the honors of the soldier, and shed a tear over his open grave. He referred to Chickamauga and Chattanooga and spoke of the noble spirit of fight in our army and people in both places. He paid a high tribute to the soldiers from this State, exhorting all to strive nobly for the high, predicting a future of independence and liberty and prosperity.

Speculations.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—South probable elected in 1st district and Brangon in the second; third doubtful—Fuller probably in 4th. Fifth very doubtful; Smith, Gilmer probably elected. Much too little known to judge. Eighth, Leach elected; with 9th and 10th not heard from.

European News.

RICHMOND, Nov. 5.—European dates to 21st received.—The Sultan of Turkey had proposed by telegraph, to purchase the Lord Mayor coach at one hundred and thirty thousand dollars cash. Laird's workmen again employed furnishing and fitting out one of the rams.

Several speeches by laboring men daily made in various parts of England.

Earl De Grey spoke in defence of the government policy of neutrality in American affairs and Beresford Hope spoke for the South. Mr. Collier, Solicitor General, praised neutrality and the preservation of neutral rights from violation by either side.

The question of finances of the new Mexican empire produced a correspondence between Napoleon and Maximilian. France will make all military arrangements, but not guarantee Mexican loan.

The city of Kagosima, Japan, completely destroyed by English fleet.

Dates from Mexico, October 1st, state that a conspiracy had been discovered against the municipal government and a large number of persons had been imprisoned shot and exiled. No movements of French troops mentioned.

Eighth District.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 5.—The following is the result of the Congressional electing in the 8th Congressional district: Mecklenburg county, Leader 707, Ramsay 205; Lincoln, Leader 283, Ramsay 256; Gaston, Leader 143 Ramsay 96; Cabarrus, Leader 207; Ramsay 260. Army vote, Leader 342, Ramsay 140. Cleaveland, Catawba and Union counties yet to hear from.

Yes, and so is Rowan to hear from.—ED. PROG.)

From Bragg's Army.

ATLANTA, Nov. 4.—Advices from the front give no advice of the change in the position of affairs.

Vote of Orange.

HILLSBORO', Nov. 5.—Official vote of Orange county, having cut the army vote, Truner 704, Arrington 223.

FROM CHATTANOOGA—LATE MOVEMENTS OF THE ENEMY—SEVERE FIGHTING LOSSES, &C.

ARMY OF TENNESSEE,
Chattanooga Valley, Oct. 28th.

The enemy has gained important advantages within the last forty-eight hours, which, unless they are counteracted in some way, will place the question of subsisting his army in Chattanooga this winter beyond all doubt.—But before proceeding further, permit me to correct an error into which I fell in my letter of yesterday.

The point at which the enemy laid the pontoon bridges yesterday morning is Brown's Ferry, four and a half miles below Chattanooga by the river, or a mile and a half by land. To reach the ferry by land you cross the river in the rear of the town and the Moccasin, or neck of land below which is corkscrew narrow, though the distance around it is nearly twelve.

Having constructed their pontoon boats and pinked the bridge they crossed the pontoons and the expedition—three companies of night before last at Chattanooga, and immediately on landing knocked out the down the river to the ferry, where the troops landed, leaving the pontoniers in charge of the boats. Our cavalry skirted along the river bank, according to report, were asleep, and the enemy took their blankets. Advancing up the hill on the Sand Hill overlooking the river, the [illegible] suddenly upon Gen. Lew's infantry pickets—[illegible] not one escaped to tell the tale—followed the example to the letter, whom they gained possession of their arms. They drove them in and gained possession of the hill. The brave picket who was awake enough to fire upon the enemy, ran to the relief of Col. Oates, of the 15th Alabama, reaching him in time to [illegible] his regiment as the enemy [illegible] the hill. Col. Oates, realizing the situation, [illegible] that no time was to be lost, and [illegible] his line of battle in the most perfect order, and [illegible] the enemy in admirable style, driving them back to the river, and [illegible] the ground just abandoned possession of the ground. This occurred just before day.

Meanwhile, [illegible] reports as soon as the success of the movement [illegible] assistance. Accordingly [illegible] which had possession of the land portion, across the Moccasin at the point of land in the lower curve of the river, [illegible] the pontoon bridge, and [illegible] the point, at the [illegible] ferry landing.

Hooker's entire force, [illegible] Bridgeport, having marched [illegible] south side of the river along the railroad and [illegible] Brown's Ferry, and [illegible] Lookout point, at the [illegible] distance.

The attack was made [illegible] Hood's division, [illegible] Longstreet's corps, [illegible] Bridgeport, but [illegible] Brown's Ferry, where the new pontoon bridge [illegible] the enemy [illegible] the west side of Lookout Creek. It was this column that [illegible] Wauhatchie, [illegible] Lewis, Bowdry, and Kelley, on the [illegible] road, [illegible] the right and were held to check the progress of the left, should it advance [illegible] Chattanooga by the river. [illegible] Hooker [illegible] now commanded [illegible] valley to the left, and will, [illegible] upon the enemy strongly in that direction. The column was [illegible] and were successful. Hampton's Legion, [illegible] Col. Gary, [illegible] the enemy's left flank, forced it back upon its centre, captured his camps and wagon train and finally [illegible] rear of the left wing. In the meantime the enemy, [illegible] Brown's Ferry were cut off from [illegible] were pressing them on the rear and [illegible] the ground west of Wauhatchie [illegible] and impossible to hold them in check, which compelled the [illegible] recall Hardee, now [illegible] the lines in great confusion. The order to withdraw was [illegible] and confusion, for the forces from Brown's ferry were [illegible] these hundred yards of the only [illegible] which the Confederates [illegible] Hardee's brigade passed over it last. Breckinridge and Buckner did not [illegible] Ridge [illegible] that the Federals would [illegible] Ridge [illegible] Chattanooga [illegible] Charles [illegible]

As to casualties [illegible] the action [illegible] Wauhatchie [illegible] Hood's division made a Confederate [illegible] Longstreet's corps [illegible] Gen. Jenkins [illegible] Gen. Evans [illegible] Gen. Law [illegible] Gen. McLaws [illegible] Gen. Kershaw [illegible] Gen. Humphreys [illegible] Gen. Wofford [illegible] Gen. Bryan [illegible] Gen. Benning [illegible] Gen. Robertson [illegible] Gen. Anderson [illegible] Gen. Gregg [illegible] Gen. Gist [illegible] Gen. Manigault [illegible] Gen. Kelly [illegible] Gen. Deas [illegible] Gen. Laws [illegible] Gen. Trimble [illegible] Gen. Hindman [illegible] Gen. Walker [illegible] Gen. Wilcox [illegible] Gen. Pickett [illegible] Gen. Field [illegible] Gen. Hood [illegible] Gen. Longstreet [illegible] Gen. Bragg [illegible] Gen. Polk [illegible] Gen. Hardee [illegible] Gen. Buckner [illegible] Gen. Breckinridge [illegible] Gen. Cheatham [illegible] Gen. Stewart [illegible] Gen. Cleburne [illegible] Gen. Johnson [illegible] Gen. Preston [illegible] Gen. Gilmer [illegible] Gen. Leadbetter [illegible] Gen. Wheeler [illegible] Gen. Forrest [illegible] Gen. Morgan [illegible] Gen. Pegram [illegible] Gen. Martin [illegible] Gen. Roddey [illegible]

Jenkins' attack [illegible] was not made last night as [illegible] forces were [illegible] to-day, but was [illegible] to [illegible] to battle [illegible] to-night, supposing [illegible] Nothing is known as to the casualties [illegible] this side. The fighting continued for some hours [illegible] gradually [illegible] newed. I [illegible] action [illegible] in our direction.
