

The great Union Mass Meeting advertised for yesterday in our City transpired in accordance with the previous arrangements. It was a perfect success in every respect. Although the number present was not as large as many anticipated, we think the turn out was very creditable considering the attendant circumstances. Below will be found as complete a report of the proceedings as our limited space admits of.

It is estimated that aside from the citizens of Raleigh and the large crowd of soldiers present, there were two hundred inhabitants of Wake County in attendance on the Meeting, and many others from remote portions of the State. Among the most prominent of these we noticed Dr. J. T. Louch, Dr. M. F. Arrindell, Ex-Governor Swain, and C. H. Brongden, Comptroller of the State.

Col. Granger, post commandant, kindly loaned the Committee the use of his brigade band, and their efforts were well received. Their music was excellent and aided to a considerable extent the impression created by the proceedings generally.

The "State House bell" which called the assembly together yesterday was used for the first time on the 20th of this month for the purpose of convening the Convention which passed the ordinance of secession and inaugurated the attempt to take the State of North Carolina out of the Union. Yesterday its peals sounded true and loyal, and thrilled the hearts of Union men with a joyousness in strange comparison with the feeling experienced by them on that occasion.

Among those who had seats on the stand was Mr. David Boyder, a citizen of this City, now nearly or quite sixty years old. He never had any patience with secessionists and always clung with loyalty, openly and boldly, to the Union. He resides now in the house to which he brought his bride sixty six years ago. May he yet be spared long to enjoy liberty of the old flag he has always loved.

The influence of the military on the meeting was not felt in the least. Gen. Schofield was particularly invited to take a place on the Speaker's Stand, but declined on the ground that he wished the affair to appear in every respect the free and untrammelled expression of the people, and did not want to give crackers any opportunity to lower slightly, to make a charge of military restraint. While his heart was with the success of the movement, he did not deem it consistent with his position as military man, to appear in person on the grounds. He rendered every assistance in his power in the way of preparation; but avoided all acts calculated to show a desire to lay out any special plan or program.

The bright, cheerful countenances of the loyal Union men on our streets and on the grounds, induced by the opportunity afforded them to freely express and interchange sentiments dear to their hearts and indicative of their true faith in the old flag, presented a marked contrast to the sullen, gloomy and disconsolate faces of the few ultra-secessionists who "conquered but not subdued" elements in our midst. The former were greatly elated and frequent comparisons were made between the freedom of speech allowed yesterday and the terrible tyranny and oppression of public sentiment to which they have submitted for the past four years.

The Speaker's Stand was erected in the Capitol Square nearly in the center of the East front of the Park, and so arranged that the Capitol building cast a shadow on it and protected the Speakers from the scorching rays of the sun. It was constructed of rough, unplanned pine boards and the platform was raised about four feet from the ground. A roofing of canvas covered the stand.

At half past twelve the meeting was called to order by Mr. W. R. Richardson, and on his motion the following named gentlemen were appointed officers:

- PRESIDENT. COL. J. P. H. RUSS. VICE PRESIDENTS. M. O. PARKER, A. J. PAGE, G. M. FARRISS. SECRETARIES. DAVID WICKER, ALBERT JOHNSON, JOSEPH D. HAYS.

Mr. Russ, on taking the chair, congratulated the meeting on the favorable auspices of the assemblage. The Confederate bayonets and office holders generally had prevented such a meeting for four years past. As American citizens we meet again. He had been an uncompromising Conservative; some people had called him a Union man. He referred to peaceable secession and ironically spoke of the peevishness of our Northern friends to a fight. The dismemberment of the State also received its share of attention. The restoration of the flag to the dome of the capital he referred to as permanent. He also spoke of his position and the consequent animosity of the secessionists towards him. He had always said what he thought and thought what he said. The influences brought to bear on the people by designing politicians was rightfully denounced. He hoped that the effect of the meeting would be to consolidate and bring together the people on the right track. He referred to Gen. Lee as a brave man. He charged the leaders with the responsibility of the devastation of the South, and thought that they indirectly had robbed us of our sons, brothers and friends that had been lost in the army. He made the first speech after the fall of Sumter and then denounced the course of the leaders. Now, after losing everything he owned in the war, he held the white livered wretches, as he called the leaders, responsible. He endorsed President Johnson's policy of punishing the leaders.

During his speech he was frequently interrupted by remarks of approval. After the conclusion of his bold and praiseworthy effort, the band in attendance played "The Star Spangled Banner."

THE DAILY PROGRESS.

VOL. VI. RALEIGH, FRIDAY, MAY 12, 1865. NO. 154.

Col. Russ then appointed the following COMMITTEE AS ASSISTANTS: W. R. RICHARDSON, W. J. HOLLEN, WILLIAM D. JONES, S. ALVIN J. SMITH, R. C. BARRER, J. J. FARRISS. The Committee called on the effect of the President's March in the Capital building, the commission of their duties, and the fact that they had been invited to the place which was reserved for them. After a short address the Committee returned and reported the following resolutions, which were read by Mr. C. H. Brongden, Chairman of the Committee, and were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we feel, with feelings of joy and pride, that the South, after four years of rebellion, has been restored to the Union, and that the Constitution is now being re-established. Resolved, That in addition to the great relief which we feel at the restoration of the Union, we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we approve the policy of President Johnson, and that we support his efforts to restore the Union, and to re-establish the Constitution. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

The band in attendance on the meeting was not felt in the least. Gen. Schofield was particularly invited to take a place on the Speaker's Stand, but declined on the ground that he wished the affair to appear in every respect the free and untrammelled expression of the people, and did not want to give crackers any opportunity to lower slightly, to make a charge of military restraint. While his heart was with the success of the movement, he did not deem it consistent with his position as military man, to appear in person on the grounds. He rendered every assistance in his power in the way of preparation; but avoided all acts calculated to show a desire to lay out any special plan or program.

The bright, cheerful countenances of the loyal Union men on our streets and on the grounds, induced by the opportunity afforded them to freely express and interchange sentiments dear to their hearts and indicative of their true faith in the old flag, presented a marked contrast to the sullen, gloomy and disconsolate faces of the few ultra-secessionists who "conquered but not subdued" elements in our midst. The former were greatly elated and frequent comparisons were made between the freedom of speech allowed yesterday and the terrible tyranny and oppression of public sentiment to which they have submitted for the past four years.

The Speaker's Stand was erected in the Capitol Square nearly in the center of the East front of the Park, and so arranged that the Capitol building cast a shadow on it and protected the Speakers from the scorching rays of the sun. It was constructed of rough, unplanned pine boards and the platform was raised about four feet from the ground. A roofing of canvas covered the stand.

At half past twelve the meeting was called to order by Mr. W. R. Richardson, and on his motion the following named gentlemen were appointed officers:

- PRESIDENT. COL. J. P. H. RUSS. VICE PRESIDENTS. M. O. PARKER, A. J. PAGE, G. M. FARRISS. SECRETARIES. DAVID WICKER, ALBERT JOHNSON, JOSEPH D. HAYS.

Mr. Russ, on taking the chair, congratulated the meeting on the favorable auspices of the assemblage. The Confederate bayonets and office holders generally had prevented such a meeting for four years past. As American citizens we meet again. He had been an uncompromising Conservative; some people had called him a Union man. He referred to peaceable secession and ironically spoke of the peevishness of our Northern friends to a fight. The dismemberment of the State also received its share of attention. The restoration of the flag to the dome of the capital he referred to as permanent. He also spoke of his position and the consequent animosity of the secessionists towards him. He had always said what he thought and thought what he said. The influences brought to bear on the people by designing politicians was rightfully denounced. He hoped that the effect of the meeting would be to consolidate and bring together the people on the right track. He referred to Gen. Lee as a brave man. He charged the leaders with the responsibility of the devastation of the South, and thought that they indirectly had robbed us of our sons, brothers and friends that had been lost in the army. He made the first speech after the fall of Sumter and then denounced the course of the leaders. Now, after losing everything he owned in the war, he held the white livered wretches, as he called the leaders, responsible. He endorsed President Johnson's policy of punishing the leaders.

During his speech he was frequently interrupted by remarks of approval. After the conclusion of his bold and praiseworthy effort, the band in attendance played "The Star Spangled Banner."

Mr. Hays then addressed the meeting, and on his motion the following named gentlemen were appointed officers:

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

country to-day, who would be pleased to build themselves upon the ruins of a nation of our people, making them slaves, and happy by stripping others of all they possess, and selling them and their property at auction. Such a nation is not a nation, and it will become a nation of slaves and a nation of slaves.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.

Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens. Resolved, That we feel that the people of the South are now free to enjoy the rights of citizenship, and that the Government is now able to protect the rights of all its citizens.