STFAM BOAT.

THE anxiety which the owners of the NORFOLK felt to afford every fact ity and convenience to Travellers, induced them to attempt to run the Boar four times a week between Newbern and Elizabeth City; but on trial, they find that although the thing is possible, it would be attended with uncertainty, and occasion disappointment. They have therefore concluded to alter the run of the NORFOLK as follows; Leave Newbern every Thursday morning, and arrive at Elizabeth City on Friday; leave Elizabeth City every Satur day evening, and arrive at Newbern on Monday morning. STAGES at each end of the line will run to correspond with the arrival of the Boat.

This regulation, it is expected, will prevent any delay or disappointment in future and travellers are requested to make their arrangements accordingly.

The fare of Passengers will be $15. Children and Servants half price.

There are good accommodations for Horses, which will be earried at the moderate charge of $7 50 each.

The public may be assured, that every attention will be paid to their comfort and accommodation. DAN'L W. CROCKER. Newbern, May 9, 1318.

POETRY

RELIGION. - By Alin C. A C.

Resplendently the morning sun Had his diurnal race begun, And cheerfully the woodlark sung In strains of sweetest melody : Resounding eshoes from the hill.

That answer'd to the murmuring rills.

Conspir'd my raptured soul to fill.

What music now strikes on my cary It is celesual sounds I hear, Sounds so soft, so sweet appear

With universal harmony.

To me no less than heavenly a Again the swelling sounds repeat That died away in mu mura sweet, Sounds for heavenly concarts meet Now fill the air melodiously:

Rapt, entranc'd in sweet delight, Surrounding objects fly my aght, And lo! a form supremely bright Array'd in matchiess majesty, Appears before my wondering eyes. Piliting my soul with sweet surprise Religion stands without disguise Like some transcendent Deity

With dignified and graceful air A being most divinely fair, Whose heavenly tooks at once declare Her cloth'd in immortality; My spirit aw'd sinks in my breast, My eyes grow dim with light oppr ss'd. Ifall, but Oh! the heavenly gue t Sheds o'er my soul her pur y.

Arise the glorious being cries, I come to fit you for the skies, It is Religion bids you rine Commission'd by Divinity; Now idot love of earth dismiss, And seek a world more bright than this When one unchanging scene of bliss Shall cheer you through eternity.

FOREIGN.

Scotl and Neck, May 20, 1818.

STATE OF EUROPE.

The following is the most important article, an being apparently to be relied on, that we have seen, having reference to the Congress of European sovereigns, which it has been some time announced. is to take place in the ensuing autume. The source of the following exposition of the objects of that meeting is not indeed official; but it weers an imposing dress, and affords the most distinct indications we have any reason to expect of theviews of the allied powers.

FROM THE LONSON TIMES, APRIL 13.

All the French papers of Tuesday last copy an article from the demi-ffi ial paper, called the Austrian Observer, contradicting, in the most positive terms, a report that had been spread, that a part of the army of occupation, after evacuating he French territory in the approaching autumn, was to be stationed on the rightbank of the Rhine, to secure the tranquility of France, and to maintain the new arrangements of Europe. This report had, it is said, excited great alarm and been labricated for a sinister purpose. The paper is question says, that it is not only authorized to contradict such a rumor, but likewise several others which are in circulation, respecting the approaching meeting of the Sovereigns. The follows

ing passage in it refers to both these subjects :

" it is known, that the fifth article of the treaty of Paris, November 20, 1815, contains the following dispositions : 4 The duration of the military occupation of the frontier provinces of France snall not extend beyond five years. It may cease sooner, if at the end of three years the allied sovereigns, after having maturely examined, in concert with his majestys the king of France, the respective situation of affairs, and the progress which the re establishment of order and tranquitity has made in France, shall be unanimously convinced that the grounds which determined them to this measure no longer exist.' It clearly results from this article, that the question, whether the military occupation of France shall cease at the end of 1818. or be prolonged two years farther must be decided in the approaching autumn. This question, of so great importance to the tranquility and welfare of Europ, requires a mature examination, and consequently, demands a diplomatic meeting of the cabinets to which the decision, according to the treaty, belongs. The object of this meeting, therefore, is no secret, however rash it would be to prodict the result; for, as it must be first decided in that meeting, whether circumstances are such as to warrant the withdrawing of the army of occupation, or to require its continuance, it would not be possible for the cabinets to regard the principal question, as already decided, before it is discussed. It is, besides, very improbable, that in an affair remaining so undecided, there can be any question regarding the ulterior measures that it may be necessary to adopt on the contingency of that decision. But even though we were to surrender our ourselves to arbitrary conjectures, it would be necessary to adopt one with greater probability on its side than that by which an ettempt has been made to impose upon the credulous readers of newssapers; for the idea that the allied powers, who now occupy the posts and the foreresses of the French frontiers, should withdraw their army, to place it in new positions on the frontiers and in the fortresses of the right bank of the Rhine is so extravagant, that we cannot conceive how it could have obtained a moment's credit. I very thing which has been said, for some ment's, it the public prints, concerning the object of the approaching meeting of the sovereigns, and the affairs on which they are to treat, is pure invention. This meeting cannot be called a congress,
