NORMAL CAR STRATE GAS ZENTRY BALEIGH, N. C. SHPTEMBER 18, 1826 (1) 10 11 4 14

THE STAR. th-Barolina State Gazette, Published, w

THENCE & LEMAY

will be sent without advanter, and no paper ant es of insertion for each editors must be m eople's Candidates. FOR PRESIDENT.

NDREW JACKSON. ION C. CALHOUN.

an Diwoday, 13th November, 1898.

RAL TICEPT OF N. CAROLINA ORAL TICKET OF N. CAROLINY Refere Lorse, of Hax wroad county, unifort, Staken, of Wilken, Poter Porney, of Lincoln, An Gilen, of Rowan, Sherina Phillips, of Bookingham, take M. Marcheud, of Guilford, Halter F. Lock, of Richmond, Wille P. Mangani, of Orange, Rem. Jusich Curding, of Wake, Thin Hall, of Warren,

Ren. Justich Courting, of Venke, Dan Hal, of Warren. Jordh J. Willard, of Martin, Katur Bullard, of Unten, Janis D. Wilson, of Edgecomb, Richard D. Spaight, of Craven, Edward B. Duilley, of New-Hanover, Fiendship for General Jackson, and the proofs of confidence and record 1 have him, while President, brobils my taking gin the entaining preside of at election."- he recollection of the public relations in Islood to General Jackson, while Presi-and the proofs given to him, of the high es-on in which he was held by me, " &c.---Madican.

eral Jackson is a clear-headed, strong dman, and has more of the Roman in his any man new living."—Thomas Jefferson. in him.

ral Jackson justly enjoys in an eminent the public favour; and of his worth, tad services, no one entertains a higher or meetful opinion then myself."- John Q.

officer whose services entitle him to the reward, and whose whole career has been of by the parest intentions and the most is parameter "-Jon's QUISCY ANASS, wetary of State, and the Defender of al Jackson.

owards that distinguished Captain, (An eksen,) who has shell to much GLOBY on unitry, whose venous constitutes so great a not its maral property. I never had, I nehave, any other foclings than those of the -HENRY CLAY.

FOR THE STAR.

MESSRS. JO. CALES & SON. nen, -- Public sentiment has long since nds to political controversy, to violate winces a fearful expectation of defeat. tears Gales & Son, have frequently, og to my humble judgment, overleappontion; and therefore many of my ors and I have been led to the conclut you are not so well assured of the of Mr. Adams as you pretend to Indeed, we believe, from the means you as." Duta are ton much quincerned for if cut to vatch the tale; and they wer too party that the fload, is the major y of its rength is provely Dearing Jackson beto the nover, in rolation to the merits of the two modulates, before they made up their minds to on the minject," you make assertions which ou cannot, for your lives, sustain. Ist. In relation to Mr. Adams. You say hat he " has hitherto executed the duties of his high station in the most unexceptionable manners that his talents and character are a the first order, that no one can, with tra say a word to his disparagement " Now deny that he has executed his duties in an ar be, to his assumption of power in relation to the Panaina Mission; to his loss of the West the Panaina month, to his basic of the con-lucit Trade, and to his nontatesiman like con-duct towards Georgia. These things have been duly considered, and the reading part of the community are sufficiently acquisited with them, to consider them very exception-able. I further deay the truth of the assertion, " that no man can, with trath, say a word to his disparagement." Strong suspicion of his bargain with Mr. Clay rested on him when he first went into office. Subsequently, circumstance after circumstance has been developed, and proof piled upon proof, until no candid and impartial man can doubt the existence of that bargain, to which slone, and not to the sovereign people, he is indebted for his ele vation to the Presidency. The Webster pledge is also so clearly proved, that no rea-sonable man, free from party prejudice, can disbelieve it. These, I think ogether with other petty electioneering trick, which might be mentioned, furnish justifiable ground to disparage the angelie character of even Mr. Adams. In reference to this matter, the people have weighed him in the balance, Adams.

and he is found wanting. 24. You have made assertions concerning Jackson which are not true. You say, "in no civil office of importance has he found himself equal to the dates required of him." That this is untrue may be deduced from the fact that the people from whose authority he has held civil offices, have so far approved the manner in which he executed their important duties as to repeat the strongest assutances of their high regard for his talents, and their confidence in his virtue and patriotism, by continuing to call him from one office to auother of higher importance, until he had served them in all the most important offices within their gift; and as an additional proof of their approbation of his, civil administration, and of their confidence in his skill to execute the duties of the highest office in the nation, they now seek to make him President.

I could say much more on this part of my subject; but it is deemed unnecessary, and my communication has already grown to a greater length than I anticipated. I will therefore conclude by advising the Editors of the Register to try again. Their last essay, wont move the neutrals OFF THE FENCE.

Franklin Co. Sept. 13. From the Monthly Magazine.

THE CAVE OF HAR HASSAN.

bour's landmark."

on the other side of a clump of stones saw a stout old man, leaning on a spade, not many years ago, and translated from which his then interrupted labour had command of Boonaparte. I should collected on his brow. He had a benign expression of face, and in the tone of expected from an owner of the demowhen one of us ventured to ask, whether he had guessed our purpose in crossing his fields, that he could thus convirt as of having taken a circuitous route?

" I conceive you were looking for C. Cave of Har Hassan?"

"Yes, we went in search of it, but,"-"You failed?-Of course you did; and beauty. It ran as follows:what do these simple fellows know of its situation?-and if they did, would and merciful God!-May God be prothey venture to be your pilot, think you, when not one of them would trust him-self there for his life?—Do you still "God is supreme and cternal." On the south-eastern coast of the is- when not one of them would trust himland of Malta, there is a remarkable self there for his life?-Do you still

We left Valetta on donkeys, and sallind one which we attempted to practrate. Thus, are the taken and they are too be that the field with the major of its parts in provide Security Lakens into the winch row arbundy with Mr. Alane, retain. mini-in your speed to those predent for the neuron of the neuron, for the neuron of the neuron, for your speed to the taken of the secure of the state of the takens into the control of the secure of the neuron of the neuron of the particular retain. mini-in your speed to those predent for the neuron of the neuron or villages, that he within this district were discernable the rude couch of stone, of the island, are not very many, con-tiguous, or thickly inhabited; the roads other of those devices, which, though of communication, themselves unfre-quented, reach within no practicable distance of the shore, and the incurious character of the peasants, beyond all stitutes for more costly comforts, ac-other obstacles, concealed even from the neighbourhood that knowledge of which. exceptionable manner. Do you as for proof? It is abundant. At present, twill on by refer you to his archeoratic principles, ex-present in measures to Congress-such as the declaration that " the Representative about not be pallied by the will of his constituents." we then atood in need. We gazed vast and glorious, view of the Mediter-down the rough side of the rocky emi- ranges present itself, and no port could nence in every direction, vainly seeking, have been better chosen as the scene of the spertc.e, which, as we were told, at romantic and superbuman adventures. a middle height between our own level As we lbitered on this interesting and that of the sea, led to the hermitage ground, 'a thousand visions naturally of Hassan. The sea was far below us, occurred to us, as the probable inciand stretching our view to the verge of dents in the life of one who could so ut its distant horizon, we sighed as though terly cast off the world, and betake we could evoke the spirit of the recluse himself to a nook in the desolate rock, from the land of his forefathers But companioned only by the sea-gull. The the sun was fast sinking to his bed, and very access to his aborle was likely to the shadows from the insulated rock of have remained for ever anknown. The Filfla already extended to the distant old priest himself had resided in the point of share, above which we were neighbourhood from the time of his standing. In despair, the donkeys' childhood, and the secret which he had heads were turned homewards, the from his father, was now shared by few. rexution of our party broke out in low if any. But the marvellous tales which English curses, which our Maltese con. threw a lustre on the fabulous characducteur vainly endeavoured to interpret; ter of him whose heroism and monu and, retracing out steps, we clambered ment were now before hs, seem to have diligently over the whole series of broken na historical foundation. The true acwalls, which were no longer'a " neight count is probably that which I have already quoted. Har Hassan is recor-"You might have gone by a nearer ded as being the tenant of this cave, by fonte, without doing all this mischief,", the laborious historian Abela;" and it is cried some one close to ust and looking justly inferred, that he was rather a man of sorrow than of blood, from a ve that stood in the angle of the field, we by singular tablet that was discovered and brushing away the heavy moistore the Coptic by a Frenchman, at the not have deemed this little history of our pilgimage worth relating, had it his reproof there was nothing of that not appeared a proper preface to this moroseness which might have been remarkable document. For its authenticity I have other warrant than that of island, I find as near a concordance as the two languages will admit. Having thus vouched for its genuineness, I cannot think any comment necessary to advance its character for singularity "In the name of the compassionate

"All created beings pass away, and of his cumbert? H around him + Ball. Rep.

The last accounts from New Orleans re reseat the city as free from the prev re resent the city as free from the prev alence of any malignant fever. An epidemic called the Dengue, or Span-ish fever, is raging there: it is supposed that from 10 to 15,000 persons have been affected with it at one time. It nover terminates fatally, is cured by simple remedies, and continues from three hours to three days. We abserve that it is also prevalent in some of the eastern cities.—Western Balance.

Westehester, Pa. Sept. 3. Backing out by Wholesnle.-Iu Bidg herry township, Bradford county, the whole Corresponding Committee, ap-pointed by the Adams men, have come out, and declared that they " are in fa-vor of the election of Andrew Jackson for President."-Amer. Rep.

PACTS AND ARGUMENT.

PACTS AND ARGUMENT. The Jackson Committee of Correspondence for Philadelphia have recently, in a series of numbers, addressed the entress of Pennsylvanis on the ull-absorbing subject of the presidency. These essays are ably written, and are replate with facts and sound argument, which, at this crises, should elaim the most serious smalder-ation of the whole American people. We re-gret that our limits will not allow the publication of all these numbers. We shall, however, from time to time, lay such of then before our readlished fences. Satisfied with this mild the priest who first indulged me with of all these numbers. We shall, however, from correction, he was resuming his work, an inspection of it. For, upon compa-time to time, lay such of them before our readrison with a different version, done in ers as we may deem of the most general impos-English by an officer of rank on the tance. At present we would call their attention the excuses, for this double outrage, are ecure the lish of the cast. To prevent the election of such a man, be, wrote to Mr. Blair, in Kentuck the people's hopes, fears, and principles that he must " note begin to consider were all appealed to--it was represent. for whom he would vote?" on the 28s ed that the elevation of an eastern can didate would be followed by the most mischievous consequences, whilst the ston; he intimates besitation until then the " flar give, labor to degra that wash give day, the not speet that see that see the set of the he tell us, that he elected Mr. Anons for his virtues? Does he tell us, that he clovated him as a friend to the west? Does he tell us, that he elected him be-cause he was of the last cabinet? Does he tell us, that all he had published a-guinst him was false? Does he apolo-gize for ulcerating the minds of the westers people against him? Does he asy any thing about the suspended dis-cassion about the Mismissippi? No! Not one weak-like this does Mr. Clay utter: what, then, does he my? he alleges—

1. That he had long intended to vot for Mr. Adams.

2. That, after censuring General Jackson, in the debate in the Sco-inole war, it would be inconsistent to vote for him,

3. That he would ant, by voting for military man, give an assarance that this reputite would man has the read that had led all other re publics to ruin. These are the only apologic

Kentucky!

tance. At present we would call their attention to the following: LETTER III. You have seen, gentlemen, that, in the letters signed "Wayne," written in the fall of 1822, under the direction of Mr. Clay, and printed partly at his expense, Mr. Adams was denounced, as a faithless agent, a bungling.negoria-tor, an artful sophist, a vindictive man, of narrow views, sectional feelings, ready to sacrifice the blood of the west secure the fish of the cast. mischievous consequences, whilst the election of a vestern candidate would have the most salutary effects. Nor did Mr. Clay confine himself to assaults upon Mr. Adams, and appeals to the people against an castern, and for a vestern president—in T822, he for the solid example. perivate consideration, not to sanction so odious and dangerous a precedent, by electing Mr. Adams! In Oliio, es-pecially, it was proclaimed to be the main object of Mr. Clay's friends to break up the cubinet succession! Thus, the parties stood, in relation to each other, until Mr. Clay reached Washington, after the election in No-vember, 1884. abo has all abo has all astry, and whose a portions of his m hores of y himps so large a portion never had. I nev feelings than flags respect and of the s Instead of Mr. Clay heing inconsis nounced, as a faithless minister, tent in voting for a man thus spoken of, and vindictive man-an enemy of one would suppose that the inconsisten-the west-a bungling ambassador cy would be in voting against him. But, the fallacy of this apology is shown in still stronger lights-Mr., Clay pre-tends, that he could not consistently vote for General Jackson, after censurloudly protested— To John Q. Adams, whose succes-sion from the calinet was so hus-tile to republican principles, and so perficious as a precedent. We ask you, gentlemen, toly Mr. wy elected him, whom he limit for so ny years songht to prostrate, for the of his country, as he always pro-diana to have desceded and to Mr. Adams; Mr. Clay says, it would have feesed, and to preserve republican prin-ciples as he always asserted? Can you, can any honest man, upon honorable and fair principles, tell ichy he did so—That they were politically foes, and personally estranged, up to the winter of 1824, being admitted— then, we ask, what it was, that convert-ed angry repulsion into sympathetic ad-busion? The change must inwe been produced by something—to effect so marvellous and sudden a revolution, something must have been said, and Jackson would be giving an assurance. something must have been said, and Jackson would be giving an assurance, something must have been done-now, that this republic would march in (De sustain his sinking cause, that you are alarmed at his prospects, and begin to ir of his success. For evidence of this on, I will go no farther back than to per of the 9 instant. It is found in pressing appeal to those who are yet th, or, as you express it, "on the feace." , you see very pretty language in arging to "to get off" and help you, and to who are not used to witness the tricks cunning and designing, all that you say be thought very plausible. But those are at all acquainted with the world, can readily see through the matter. must be encouraging to the friends of toon to see their opponents' reduced so as to be compelled to call in such a man and on such characters (especially one named by the Register,) for help. 1 those who have the littleness of soul " desirous of voting with the major and have been " waiting to see which of candidates would be most likely to sucbefore they declared themselves for ei-Is it come to this? Are you driven necessity of invoking to your aid such Yes, and you attempt to gain their rt by deception. You boldly assert tit is now evident that Mr. Adams will ly receive a majority of the suffrages people, to continue to preside at the isitso, Messrs Gales, Sont meroment for another term of ser-Where n find the "indications" which fornish flattering unction?" In the west? A o. The sky there is black and lower-be signs plainly threaten inevitable de-tion to the hopes of the Administration al quarter. Kentucky has forsaken he ted, and once darling son, the apostate Ohio is claimed with great confidence intelligent and patriotic supporters of ill probably go for Jackson and the ciections in Indiana, Illinois, Mississippi Missouri, speak to the Administration in ce of chunder, while they triumphantly aim success to Jackson. In the South Georgia, South Carolina, No. Carolina Virginia will certainly, by overwhelmin willes, support Jackson. In the North ncy, Mr. Adams's native place. Even his ar New England is thrown into com log against him. We are assured by se-al bighty respectable opposition prints in a States, that the cause of the wise, hon-and patriotic Jackson has many 1.2 elligent. rergetic advicates in that section, and proportion as truth is disseminated, they time to increase every day swells their aber. In New York it is impossible that ins can get more than 12 votes; and Penns-tana will section in the section of the s ania will its certainly vote for Jackson as wee. Where then, Mossra, Gales & re your favorable "indicational" in all Alast should you get all the votes The they could avail you nothing. But the ends of Jackson have almost positive, asso-te that he will get 6 sotes in Maryland, a probably the State of Delaware. c, fie, gentlemen, in your zeal to scoure why of those who are "desirous of voting cave, rendered illustrious by the many wish to see it? traditions respecting its ancient inhabi | To this we replied, that we had hunt-fire.

Arthur or Jack the Giant Killer. One of the most favourite records is scarcely to suffice for safe footing, and that which enumerates his worthy deeds almost enclosed from above by the during a siege of the island by the Mo projection of rude masses of stone, slemites. He was himself a native of This descent was almost indistinguish-Barbary, and a votary of the creed pro-fessed by the besiegers. But for half a where we had been standing, and fatally century he had found a sanctuary in hazardous to any whose foot or hand the hollow rock, and he would not could be shaken by the difficulties of its desert the kind mother who had foster passage. The rocks below us, some-ed him. Accordingly, he garrisoned times fell in a scarped, direct line to his cavern; and, from his commanding the surface of the water, sometimes post, sorely distressed the enemy's fleet, jutted out in fantastic forms, but never which was necessarily exposed to his battery. The Water Nymphs alone can say in what numbers the turbanned sinners fell into their embraces, by the stratagems and daring of their great gave his hand, for better security, to his immediate follower, when the projecting man.

But a more credible, because a more rocks above and around as were not modest story, simply describes him as a sufficiently raged to be clasped as we rectuse, who, disappointed in his own advanced. And many were the discountry, fled with an only daughter to trustful doubts, as the ground became this island. There he resided in honour slippery from dew or sea spray, and amongst men, and devoted to the nue the slight step wound about a turn in the ture of his beloved child, the sole prop rock, where a single unsteady look or of his dufirm spirit. She was wooed by movement might have been attended by a prince of the country, and the smiles fatal consequences. At last we were of the fair girl, and the ready sanction of the fair girl, and the ready sanction ther father, promised a happy con-summation. But whilst affianced, she was seized with illness of a deadly character; her short race was run before us, perhaps imprisoned in some natural men half time to take note of it, and escavations like this one, whose floor the heart broken Hassan fled from the might be the celing of another, still to the majority," you show your cloves foot much. Men who have such title princi-tions excited my curiosity to visit the rent, "right or wrong," are too curoing tant. It has always gone by the name ed for it in every direction, and despairof Hassau's Cave, from the person with led of finding it; that it must be at some whom it has generally been associated distance, and it was now too late to in local story. But the ingenuity and linger so far from the city, &c. He credulity of the people have assigned to answered us with an assurance, that we him a greater share of renown than falls were then not a hundred yards from to the lot of ordinary heroes, and he has the entrance, and that he had observed adorned the tale of beldame mothers us, shortly before, standing directly with a fertility of interest which would over its mouth. If we had any wish incline one almost to doubt his identity. he would be happy to conduct us He is represented as a hermit, a pirate, thither. This proposal was cheerfully a petty king, a chivalrous knight, a gi- assented to; and the courteous old man, cantic gublin. He seems to have been laying aside his spade, and resuming mighty on land and water, over air and an ancient coat, whose colour and shap But these accomplishments are indicated that it belonged to one of the not to be understood as being attribu- clerical order, instantly set forward, ted to him en masse by any one of his and in a few minutes had advanced to giorifiers; they are so collected only up- the brink of the eminence, where we on comparison of the different versions; ourselves had been so recently. Here and if, when set together, they appear he raised a thin slab of stone, about not overabundant for one man's share, two feet square, and discovered the why let us not smile at the feats of King commencement of a rude staircase, cut in the side of the tock, so narrow as the heart broken Hassan fied from the might be the cetting of abouter, sind baunts of men to this solitary place, where he impered for some years in the loneliness of a grave. These and other less probable tradi-tions excited my curiosity to visit the the entrance, a vast number of gallaries, stretched away by different ramifica-tions into the bosom of the earth. These were soon without a ray of light; and, immediate and right in the stream the sector and right indi-tions into the bosom of the earth. These were soon without a ray of light; and, immediate and right indi-tions into the bosom of the sector and right indi-traditions into the bosom of the sector and the se disappear, but you have the consolation of the prophet of God.

" Maimonna, daughter of Hussan, son of Ali El Hud, the son of Moniz of Susa, whom God enlighten and bless, lies in this sepulchre, the prey of death, She ceased to live on Thursday, the 16th of the great month Schaban, in the year of the Hegira 569. She professed that there was no God, but God alone without equal?"

" Oh! thou, who regardest this tomb!

"The beautiful nature of your docile and uniformly serene mind, my Mai-monna, shone in conflicting efforts-now in skilfully striving to repel death; and now in seeking to draw advantage from it.

" It is death itself that offers a transit to the state, of celestial reward, where the abodes of the blessed are enjoyed in screnity amongst the shades of most delightful gardens, and the murmurs of the softest rivalets. For this reason we venerate the creed of our Fathers. But the faithless offenders, sprinkled with the waters of oblivion-they who have left no good works, behind them-shall rise in condemnation, to suffer the most agonizing torments & everlasting pun-ishments." Ovan.

*Vide his learned work, "Malta Illustrata."

Signs of the Times .- In the city of Washington, on the 29th uit, the likeess of Mr. Clay, 14 by 20, in an elegant glit frame, was offered for sale at public outcry-three cents were offered; but as no higher bidder appeared, the A likeness of Jackson, 8 by 10, in a plain black frame, was put up, and im-mediately struck off at $1 371. The reason, as an honest Hibernian said at the sale was, "had Jackson been at Bla-densburg, he would have stopped the races."-N. F. Enq.

behold, I am betrothed to it as a bridel took the solid ground of principle, as to that before he had left Kentucky in the My eyelids are sealed with ashes! my the practice of cabinat successions. Tall of 1824, he had made known his My eyclids are scaled with asbes! my attractions have passed away! "Nevertheless, my mouraful state of probation is transitory. In the hour of resurrection, when the Creator shall restore me to life, I shall opce more joy-fully behold my relatives, and exulting-by reap the reward of my sorrows." "The beautiful nature of your docile

And, now we recur to the question -Why, on the 9th February, 1825, did Mr. Clay give the presidency-

To John Q. Adams, whom he had de-nounced, as a faithless minister, -an artful sophist, &c. To John Q. Adams, the castern candidate-against whom he had so loudly protested-To John Q. Adams, whose successo permitions as a precedent. We ask you, gentlemen, why Mr. Clay elected him, whom he had for so many years sought to prostrate, for the good of his country, as he always pro-fessed, and to preserve republican prin-ciples as he always asserted?