N. WASHINGTON, CIR. Teste N. V. Price adv. S7.

FOR THE STAR. The following Oration was delivered by Mr. John Whitaka, before the Jackson Volunteers, commanded by Capt. Hinton, assembled at Mr. Harris's, on the 4th instant, for the purpose of celebrating the "natal day of Liberty:"

Gentlemen,—We have assembled this day. Gentlemen,—We have assembled this day, when all the American people proclaim the beneficent intelligence which renovates the universe, to render a distinguished homage to those talents and virtues which so wonderfully shone in the day that tried men's zouls. I mean not washington alone, whose memory shall last until time is no more, but all those vho aided in throwing off the heavy yoke of British oppression, and in atchieving our independence. What day can better unite all hearts? What eitzen, what man can be a stranger to the influence of gratitude? We exist only through an uninterrupted course of beneficence, and our life is but a continual glance of services. As soon as norn, our eyes, fixed on the heavens, appear already to acknowledge a primary benefaction; weak, without support, the love of our parents watches over our infancy and provides for wants continually renewed; they direct our first steps; their patient solicitude assists in developing our organs. We receive from them our first ideas of what we are ourselven, and of surrounding objects. Additional care models our hearts to affection, our minds to knowledge, and our bodies to useful labor. It is for happiness that the wise have reflected on the duties of man; that the learned have fired into the reverse of nature; that the magistrate watches; and that the Legislature prepares in deliberation protesting laws. Soon we are enabled to he useful. Good children, we strew flowers over the age of our parents, and their trembling voices bless us in their last moments. Hecoming parents in our turn, we prepare, in the education of our children, the leficity of our declining years. And we thus continue in a new generation the chain of our bene-volence and gratined. Sensibility is not restricted within the Langty once.

narchy? Let a sense of our happy situation awaken in us the warmest sensations of gratitude to the Supreme Being. Let us consider him as the author of all our blessings, acknowledging him as our beneficent purent, protector and friend. The predominant tendency of his providence towards us as nation evinces his benevolcot designs—every part of his conduct creaks in a language plain and intelligible. Let us open our cars, lot us aftend, let us be wise.

While we sclebrate the anniversary of our independence, let us not pass over in alone the defenders of our country. Where are those hrave Americans whose lives were cloven down in the tempest of battle? Are they not bending from the bright abodes? A voice from the after cries, "these are they who fored their country; these are they who died for liberty." We now reap the fruit of their agony and toil. Let their memories be eternally embalaned in our bosoma. Let the infants of all nosterity prattle their fame and drop tears of sympathy for their fate. The consequences of American Independence will soon reach to the extremities of the world. The abining car of freedom will soon roll over the nesks of kings, and have off the oppressed to scenes of liberty and peace. The clamours of war will soon cease under the whole heaven; the tree of liberty will shoot its top up to the sun; its houghs will hang over the end of the whole world, and the wearied nations will lie down under its shade.

Here, in America, stands the Asylum for the distressed and persecuted of all ustions. This rest temple of freedom rises magestically fair, Founded on a rock, it will remain unshaken by the force of tyrants, undiminished by the flight of time. Long streams of light emanate through its portals, and chase the darkness from distant nations its turrets will swell into the heavens, rising above every tempest, and the pillar of divine glory descending from God, will rest forever on its summit.

Against my worthy oppo-nothing to say; I do not a into office on the faults or of others; one of them representative for the last three years if he has introduced or supported any measure in congress having for its object to the second of the s ject your good, you will doubtless g him credit for it if he has suffered measures to be adopted to your injury without opposing them, or introduced them not for yours nor his country's benefit you will censure him. I was one of the original supporters of our present chief magistrate, yet I had respect to the opinions of others who differed with me; and shall if elected support the measures of his administration so far as they are consistent with the public good. A system of extravagance is getting into congress which I fear portends dangerous consequences fered with me; and shall if elected sup-port the measures of his administra-tion so far as they are consistent with the public good. A system of extrav-agance is getting into congress which I fear portends dangerous consequences to the future prosperity of our country. Economy and republicanism are inti-mately connected; separate them and you dissolve the mighty fabric on which our liberties are based. I ware you therefore as you regard your own you therefore as you regard your own welfare and that of our own common country, to look well to those you trust, and see that they be republicans indeed, in whom there is no guile; for remember that on the due exercise of the trust you repose in them, depends your freedom and happiness.

I shall take a pride in being amo you as much as I can, to give you the hand of friendship, to converse with you as one of your fellow citizens on public matters vitally interesting to us all, and I shall be still more happy if I shall be made the humble organ of ex-pressing them in the councils of the na-
