

SENATE. Saturday, April 10.—The bill...

Monday, April 12.—The bill...

Tuesday, April 13.—The bill...

Wednesday, April 14.—After...

Thursday, April 15.—The bill...

Friday, April 16.—The bill...

Saturday, April 17.—The bill...

Sunday, April 18.—The bill...

Monday, April 19.—The bill...

Tuesday, April 20.—The bill...

Wednesday, April 21.—The bill...

Thursday, April 22.—The bill...

Friday, April 23.—The bill...

Saturday, April 24.—The bill...

Sunday, April 25.—The bill...

Monday, April 26.—The bill...

Tuesday, April 27.—The bill...

Wednesday, April 28.—The bill...

three Allied Courts, respecting Greece... The following are the principal articles...

The London Courier of the 19th March states that the motion of the Duke of Richmond...

Mr. Barry, in remarking on Mr. Goulburn's... The Courier says—"The proposal is not that the duty shall be less interest for his money...

London, March 16th.—The speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, presented last night, is received with approval almost unanimous...

Paris, 19th March.—Postscript.—The Chamber of Deputies assembled this day... The President took the Chair at one o'clock...

Paris, 19th March.—The Chamber of Deputies assembled this day... The President took the Chair at one o'clock...

Friday, two o'clock, P. M.—The following reflections upon the address of the Chamber of Deputies, and the King's Answer, are extracted from the French papers of this morning...

FOREIGN.

New York, April 13. Late and important from Europe.—By the Hudson, from London, papers of that city of the 19th ult. are received...

The London papers are filled with debate in Parliament, and complaint is made in them of the unclean waste of time in talking, a mania for which access is prevalent at the present season...

Mr. McLane had conference with Lord Aberdeen at the Foreign Office, and Mr. Herries, at the Board of Trade, on the 9th ult. Cotton Market.—The London Courier of the 19th March has this paragraph:—"The demand for Cotton at Liverpool, though not so great as a week or ten days ago, continues very steady..."

The Chamber of Deputies met on the 15th March, and, having continued in session until a late hour of the evening, during which a long and warm discussion ensued on the Answer to the King's Speech...

Paris, 19th March.—Postscript.—The Chamber of Deputies assembled this day... The President took the Chair at one o'clock...

Friday, two o'clock, P. M.—The following reflections upon the address of the Chamber of Deputies, and the King's Answer, are extracted from the French papers of this morning...

the president of the Bank on the subject of its operations, and proposed to the directors...

The great object is to keep the state banks within proper limits, to save their shape their business according to their means... For this purpose they are called upon to settle never forced to pay specie, if it can be avoided...

Here is a development indeed, and one for which we were not prepared, coming as it does, from the President of the Bank... If we rightly comprehend the answers of the President they clearly demonstrate...

Mr. McLane had conference with Lord Aberdeen at the Foreign Office, and Mr. Herries, at the Board of Trade, on the 9th ult. Cotton Market.—The London Courier of the 19th March has this paragraph:—"The demand for Cotton at Liverpool, though not so great as a week or ten days ago, continues very steady..."

The Chamber of Deputies met on the 15th March, and, having continued in session until a late hour of the evening, during which a long and warm discussion ensued on the Answer to the King's Speech...

Paris, 19th March.—Postscript.—The Chamber of Deputies assembled this day... The President took the Chair at one o'clock...

Friday, two o'clock, P. M.—The following reflections upon the address of the Chamber of Deputies, and the King's Answer, are extracted from the French papers of this morning...

the president of the Bank on the subject of its operations, and proposed to the directors...

The great object is to keep the state banks within proper limits, to save their shape their business according to their means... For this purpose they are called upon to settle never forced to pay specie, if it can be avoided...

Here is a development indeed, and one for which we were not prepared, coming as it does, from the President of the Bank... If we rightly comprehend the answers of the President they clearly demonstrate...

Mr. McLane had conference with Lord Aberdeen at the Foreign Office, and Mr. Herries, at the Board of Trade, on the 9th ult. Cotton Market.—The London Courier of the 19th March has this paragraph:—"The demand for Cotton at Liverpool, though not so great as a week or ten days ago, continues very steady..."

The Chamber of Deputies met on the 15th March, and, having continued in session until a late hour of the evening, during which a long and warm discussion ensued on the Answer to the King's Speech...

Paris, 19th March.—Postscript.—The Chamber of Deputies assembled this day... The President took the Chair at one o'clock...

Friday, two o'clock, P. M.—The following reflections upon the address of the Chamber of Deputies, and the King's Answer, are extracted from the French papers of this morning...

the president of the Bank on the subject of its operations, and proposed to the directors...

The great object is to keep the state banks within proper limits, to save their shape their business according to their means... For this purpose they are called upon to settle never forced to pay specie, if it can be avoided...

Here is a development indeed, and one for which we were not prepared, coming as it does, from the President of the Bank... If we rightly comprehend the answers of the President they clearly demonstrate...

Mr. McLane had conference with Lord Aberdeen at the Foreign Office, and Mr. Herries, at the Board of Trade, on the 9th ult. Cotton Market.—The London Courier of the 19th March has this paragraph:—"The demand for Cotton at Liverpool, though not so great as a week or ten days ago, continues very steady..."

The Chamber of Deputies met on the 15th March, and, having continued in session until a late hour of the evening, during which a long and warm discussion ensued on the Answer to the King's Speech...

Paris, 19th March.—Postscript.—The Chamber of Deputies assembled this day... The President took the Chair at one o'clock...

Friday, two o'clock, P. M.—The following reflections upon the address of the Chamber of Deputies, and the King's Answer, are extracted from the French papers of this morning...