Overt Acts.

To those who seek to justify or palliate their acquiescence in the rule of a Black Republican dynasty over fifteen States on the weak pretext of waiting for an overt act of outrage and oppression, would do well to read and consider the following array of overt acts of aggression against the South, which Governor Wise collected and presented in one of his recent speeches, forming a history of the rise and progress of slavery agitation. Governor Wise proceeds:

I called Black Republicanism a conquering power in the next thirty days. Is it certainly probable in the next thirty months? Answer and not to be ignored what Black Republicanism is? It is the very demon of national aggression.

It is death to the slave States or to the concessions in the Constitution for the protection of slaves, and now acts more than the Constitution to abolish property in slaves which it sold to us its neighbors.

In 1819-'20 it deprived us of equal settlement in the Territory acquired from France—that half which lies north of 36 deg. min., and it seized upon Texas north of 36 deg. 30 min., and carved out of it two square miles of slave territory, and it is making similar inroads constantly upon Virginia and Kentucky.

It is incessantly scattering firebrands of incendiary speech in our midst.

It has extended fanaticism into our own borders. It has invaded a Territory, by arms furnished by its Aid Societies, under State patronage, and by arms furnished by foreign enemies in Canada and Great Britain, has fired Virginia, and shed the blood of her citizens in her own soil.

It has justified and exalted to the highest honors of martyrdom and respect the fiend murders, and arsons, and crimes of the arch-traitor, John Brown; and has canonized the fellow-felons as saints of martyrdom.

It has burned the towns and poisoned the cattle, and formed the midnight conspiracy for the depopulation of North Texas.

It has proclaimed to the slaves the horrid motto: Marm to the stock, pin to the dwellings, poison to the food and water of slaveholders.

It has published its plots by the Abolition of slavery everywhere. In the present slave and all hazards—from its citizens—to establish presses—to use the vote and influence—to raise money and military equipments—to form and discipline armed companies—to appeal to non-slaveholders and debauch them from slaveholders—to give States—to communicate with the slaves—to encourage and satisfy complaints to the South and West—to seize other property of slaveholders to compensate for the cost of running off their slaves—to forge emancipation by all means, especially by limiting, harassing and frowning upon slavery in every mode and form, and finally by the Executive, by Congress, by the postal service, and in every way to agitate without ceasing until the Southern States shall be abandoned to their fate and worn down, shall be compelled to surrender and emancipate their slaves.

It has repudiated the decisions of the Supreme Court.

It assails us from the pulpit, the press, and in the school room. It divides all sects and religions as well as parties. It denounces slaveholders as degraded by the lowest immoralities, as sells them in every form, and holds them up to the scorn of mankind.

It has already a majority of the State, under its domination; has infected the Federal as well as State judiciary; has a large majority of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States, will soon have, by the new census, a majority of the Senate; and before it obtains the Senate, certainly, will obtain the chief Executive power of the United States.

It has announced its purpose of total abolition in the States and everywhere, as well as Territories and Districts, and other places ceded. And,

It has proclaimed an irrepressible conflict of higher law with the Federal Constitution itself!

How, then, is the election of its candidate for the Chief Executive power to be viewed by us and by all? His and his rival's sentiments are both proclaimed—they are the same—the government cannot endure half slave and half free—it is an irrepressible conflict between opposing and enduring forces—the United States must and will, sooner or later, become a slaveholding nation, or entirely a free-labor nation. These are the sentiments of the coming Black Republican triumph by such means as we have seen. What then?

1. The election of Abraham Lincoln to the Presidency will be an open and official avowal by a popular majority of the North, and of the nation, that the past aggressions of the Black Republicans are right.

2. That they are to be persisted in with great aggravation, for the future.

3. That the slave States shall not govern themselves in respect to their own property in their own limits; but that while Territories are to be allowed to prohibit slavery in their limits, the States will not be permitted to protect it in peace in theirs.

4. That the slave States and their citizens are to be coerced to submission. A bill of aggression as this amounts to a bill of war. It is proclaimed already, and awaits only the action for the power and the means to execute submission. The election will give it both. And it is the worse for coming in all the paraphernalia of right. The form is the election, and the election will be constitutional. That is the power by which the carriage of resistance is to ooze. The form of the election may be constitutional, but its intent and purpose is, on invasion, and a violent infraction of the Constitution. No matter what may be the form, the substances as vagrom—the aggression is invasion—vital

If we submit to it, we are at once subjugated; and if we intend to resist it is time we were preparing for the conflict, which we cannot repress, but may be pallid

Kentucky Resolutions of 1798 and 1799.

THE ORIGINAL DRAFT PREPARED BY THOS. JEFFERSON.

1. Resolved, That the several States composing the United States of America, are not united on the principles of the unlimited submission to the general government; but that by compact under the style and title of a Constitution for the United States, and of amendments thereto, they constituted a general government for special purposes, delegated to that government certain definite powers, reserving each State to itself the residuary mass of right to their own self-government, and that, whensoever the general government assumes undelegated powers, its acts are unauthoritative, void, and of no force; that to this compact each State acceded as a State, and is an integral party; that this government, created by this compact, was not made the exclusive or final judge of the extent of the powers delegated to itself; since that would have made its discretions and not the Constitution, the measure of its powers; but, that as in all other cases of compact, among parties having no common judge, each party has an equal right to judge for itself as well as of infractions as of the mode and measure of redress.

2. Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States having delegated to Congress a power to punish treason, counterfeiting the securities and coin of the United States, piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offenses against the laws of nations, and no other crimes whatever, and it being true, as a general principle, and one of the amendments to the Constitution having also declared, that the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people, therefore, also, the same act of Congress, passed on the 14th day of July, 1798, and entitled, "An act in addition to the act entitled an act for the punishment of certain crimes against the United States;" as also, the act passed by them on the 27th day of June, 1798, entitled, "An act to punish frauds committed on the banks of the United States," (and all other of their acts which assume to create, define, or punish crimes other than those enumerated in the constitution) are altogether void and of no force, and that the power to create, define, and punish such other crimes is reserved, and, of right appertains solely and exclusively to the respective States, each within its own Territory.

3. Resolved, That it is true, as a general principle, and is also expressly declared by one of the amendments to the Constitution, that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people;" and that no power over the freedom of religion, freedom of speech, or freedom of the press being delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, all lawful powers, respecting the same did of right remain, and were reserved to the States or people: and thus was manifested their determination to retain to themselves the right of judging how far the licentiousness of speech and of the press may be abridged without lessening their useful freedom; and how far those abuses which cannot be separated from their use should be tolerated rather than the use be destroyed, and thus also they guarded against all abridgement by the United States, of the freedom of religious principles and exercises, and retained to themselves the right of protecting the same, as this, stated by a law passed on the general demand of its citizens, had already protected them from all human restraints or interference; and, that, in addition to this general principle and express declaration, another and more special provision has been made by one of the amendments to the Constitution, which expressly declares that "Congress shall make no laws, respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press," thereby guarding in the same sentence, and under the same words, the freedom of religion, of speech, and of the press, insomuch that whatever violates either, throws down the sanctuary which covers others, and that libels, falsehoods, and defamation, equally with heresy and false religion, are withheld from the cognizance of federal tribunals. That therefore the act of the Congress of the United States, passed on the 14th of July, 1798, entitled, "An act in addition to the act entitled an act for the punishment of certain crimes against the United States," as also the act passed by them on the 27th day of June, 1798, entitled, "An act to punish frauds committed on the banks of the United States," (and all other of their acts which assume to create, define, or punish crimes other than those enumerated in the constitution) are altogether void and of no force, and that the power to create, define, and punish such other crimes is reserved, and, of right appertains solely and exclusively to the respective States, each within its own Territory.

4. Resolved, That alien friends are under the jurisdiction and protection of the laws of the State wherein they are; that no power over them has been delegated to the United States, nor prohibited to the individual States distinct from their power over citizens; and it being true, as a general principle, and one of the amendments to the Constitution having also declared that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people," the act of the Congress of the United States, passed the 22d day of June, 1798, entitled "An act concerning aliens," which assumes power over aliens not delegated by the Constitution, is not law, but is altogether void and of no force.

5. Resolved, That in addition to the general principle as well as the express declaration, that powers not delegated are reserved, another and more special provision inferred in the Constitution, from abundant caution has declared, "that the migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year 1808." That this commonwealth does admit the migration of alien friends described as the subject of the said act concerning aliens; that a provision against prohibiting their migration, is a provision against all acts equivalent thereto, or it would be nugatory; that to remove them when migrated is equivalent to a prohibition of the migration, and is, therefore, contrary to the said provision of the Constitution, and void.

6. Resolved, That the imprisonment of a person under the protection of the laws of this commonwealth on his failure to obey the simple order of the President, to depart out of the United States, as is undertaken by the said act, entitled, "An act concerning aliens," is contrary to the Constitution, one amendment in which has provided, that "no person shall be deprived of their liberty without due process of law," and that another having provided, "that in all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right of a public trial by an impartial jury, to be informed as to the nature and cause of the accusation, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have assistance of counsel for his defense," the same act undertaken to authorize the President to remove a person out of the United States who is under the protection of the law, on his own suspicion, without jury, without public trial, without confrontation of the witnesses against him, without having witnesses in his favor, without defense, without counsel, is contrary to those provisions, also, to the constitution, is therefore not a law, but utterly void, and of no force.

That transferring the power of judging any person who is under the protection of the laws, from the courts to the Presidents of the United States, as is undertaken by the same act concerning aliens, is against the article of the constitution which provides that "the judicial power of the United States shall be vested in the courts, the judges of which shall hold their office during good behavior," and the said act is void for that reason also; and it is further to be noted, that this transfer of the judiciary power is to that magistrate of the general government who already possesses all the executive, and qualified negative in all the legislative power.

7. Resolved, That the construction applied by the general government (as is evident by sundry of their proceedings) to those parts of the constitution of the United States, which delegate to Congress power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, excises; to pay the debts, and provide for the common defense, and general welfare of the United States, and to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the powers vested by the constitution in the government of the United States, or any department thereof, goes to that destruction of all the limits prescribed to their power by the constitution: that words meant by the instrument to be subsidiary only to the execution of the limited powers, ought not to be so construed as themselves to give unlimited power, nor a part so to be taken, as to destroy the whole residue of the instrument: That the proceeding of the general government under color of those articles, will be a fit and necessary subject for revisal and correction at a time of greater tranquility, while those specified in the preceding resolutions call for immediate redress.

8. Resolved, That the preceding resolutions be transmitted to the Senators and Representatives in Congress from this commonwealth, who are enjoined to present the same to their respective houses, and to use their best endeavors to procure, at the next session of Congress, a repeal of the aforesaid unconstitutional and obnoxious acts.

9. Resolved lastly, That the Governor of this commonwealth be, and is authorized and requested to communicate the preceding resolutions to the legislatures of the several States, to assure them that this commonwealth considers union for special national purposes, and particularly for those specified in their late federal compact, to be friendly to the peace, happiness, and prosperity of all the States: that faithful to that compact, according to the plain intent and meaning in which it was understood and acceded to by the several parties, it is sincerely anxious for its preservation: that it does also believe, that to take from the States all the powers of self-government, and transfer them to a general and consolidated government, without regard to the special government, and reservations solemnly agreed to in that compact, is not for the peace, happiness, or prosperity of these States. And that therefore this commonwealth is determined, as it doubts not its co-states are, to submit to undelegated and consequently unlimited powers in no man or body of men on earth; that if the acts before specified should stand, these conclusions flow from them: that the general government may place any act they think proper on the list of crimes and punish it themselves, whether enumerated or not enumerated by the constitution cognizable by them, that they may transfer its cognizance to the President or any other person, who may himself be the accuser, counsel, judge and jury, whose suspicions may be the evidence, his order the sentence, his officer the executioner, and his breast the sole record of the transaction; that a very numerous and valuable description of the inhabitants of these States, being by this precedent reduced as out-laws to absolute dominion of one man, and the barriers of the constitution thus swept from us all: no rampart now remains against the passions and the power of a majority of Congress to protect from a like exportation or rather grievous punishment the minority of the same body, the legislatures, judges, governors, and counsellors of the States, nor their other peaceable inhabitants who may venture to reclaim the constitutional rights and liberties of the States and people, or who for other causes, good or bad, may be obnoxious to the view or marked by the suspicions of the President, or to be thought dangerous to his or their elections or other interest, public or personal: that the friendless alien has been selected as the safest subject of a first experiment, but the citizen will soon follow, or rather has already followed; for, already has a sedition act marked him as a prey: That these and successive acts of the same character, unless arrested on the threshhold may tend to drive these States into revolution and blood, and will furnish new calumnies against republican governments, and new pretexts for those who wish it to be believed, that man cannot be governed but by a rod of iron: that would be a dangerous delusion, were a confidence in the men of our choice to silence our fears for the safety of our rights: that confidence is everywhere the parent of despotism, free government is founded in jealousy and not in confidence; it is the jealousy and not confidence which prescribes limited constitutions, to bind down those whom we are obliged to trust with power, that our constitution has accordingly fixed the limits to which and no further our confidence may go; and let the honest advocates of confidence read the alien and sedition acts, and say if the constitution has not been wise in fixing limits to the governments it created, and whether we should be wise in destroying those limits? Let him say what the government is, if it be not a tyranny; which the men of our choice have conferred on the President, and the President of our choice has assented to and accepted over the friendly strangers, to whom the mild spirit of our country and its laws have pledged hospitality and protection: that the men of our choice have more respected the bare suspicions of the President than the solid rights of innocence, the claims of justification, the sacred force of truth, and the forms and substance of law and justice.

In questions of power then let no more be said of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution. That this commonwealth does therefore call on its co-States for an expression of their sentiments on the acts concerning aliens, and for the punishment of certain crimes hereinbefore specified, plainly declaring whereby these acts are or are not authorized by the federal compact. And it doubts not that their sense will be as announced as to prove their attachment to limited government, whether general or particular, and that the rights and liberties of their co-States will be exposed to no dangers by remaining embarked on a common bottom, with their own. But they will concur with this commonwealth in considering the said acts as so palpably against the Constitution as, to amount to an undisguised declaration, that the compact is not meant to be the measure of the power of the General Government, but that it will proceed in the exercise over these States of all powers whatsoever. That they will view this as seizing the rights of the States and consolidating them in the hands of the General Government, with a power assumed to bind the States (not merely in cases made federal) but in all cases whatsoever, by laws made, not with their consent, but by others against their consent; and this would be to surrender the form of government we have chosen, and live under one deriving its powers from its will, and not from our authority; and that the co-States recurring to their natural rights not made federal, will concur in declaring these void and of no force, and will each unite with this commonwealth in requesting their repeal at the next session of Congress.

Virginia Resolutions, 1798-'99.

1. Resolved, That the General Assembly of Virginia doth unequivocally express a firm resolution to maintain and defend the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of this State, against every aggression, either foreign or domestic, and that they will support the Government of the United States in all the measures warranted by the former.

2. That this General Assembly most solemnly declares a warm attachment to the Union of the States, to maintain which, it pledges all its powers; and that, for this end, it is their duty to watch over and oppose every infraction of those principles, which constitute the only basis of that Union, because a faithful observance of them alone can secure its existence and the public happiness.

3. That this assembly doth explicitly and peremptorily declare, that it views the powers of the Federal Government, as resulting from the compact, to which the States are parties, as limited by the plain sense and intention of the instrument constituting that compact—as no further valid than they are authorized by the grants enumerated in that compact; and that in case of a deliberate, palpable and dangerous exercise of other powers, not granted by the said compact, the States who are parties thereto, have the right and are in a duty bound, to interpose, for arresting the progress of the evil, and for maintaining within their respective limits, the authorities, rights and liberties appertaining to them.

4. That the General Assembly doth also express its deep regret, that a spirit has in sundry instances, been manifested by the Federal Government, to enlarge its powers by forced construction of the constitutional charter which guarded them; and that indications have appeared of a design to expound certain general phrases (which have been copied from the very limited powers in the former articles of confederation), were the less liable to be misconstrued), so as to destroy the meaning and effect of the particular enumeration which necessarily explains and limits the general phrases, and so as to consolidate the States by degrees, into one sovereignty, the obvious tendency and inevitable result of which would be to transform the present Republican system of the United States into an absolute, or at best, a mixed monarchy.

5. That the General Assembly doth particularly protest against the palpable and alarming infraction of the constitution in the two late cases of the "Alien and Sedition acts," passed at the last session of Congress; the first of which exercises a power no where delegated to the federal government, and which by uniting legislative and judicial powers to those of the executive, subverts the general principles of free government, as well as the particular organization and positive provision of the federal constitution, and the other of which acts exercises, in like manner, a power not delegated by the constitution, but on the contrary expressly and positively forbidden by one of the amendments thereto; a power more dangerous than any other, ought to produce universal alarm, because it is leveled against the right of freely examining public characters and measures, and of free communication among the people thereon, which has ever been justly deemed the only effectual guardian of every other right.

6. That this State having by its convention, which ratified the federal constitution, expressly declared, that among other essential rights, "the liberty of conscience and of the press cannot be canceled, abridged, restrained, or modified by any authority of the United States," and from its extreme anxiety to guard these rights from every possible attack of sophistry and ambition, having, with other States, recommended an amendment for that purpose, which amendment was in due time annexed to the constitution, it would mark a reproachful inconsistency, and criminal degeneracy, if an indifference were not shown to the most palpable violation of one of the rights thus declared and secured, and to the establishment of a precedent, which may be fatal to the other.

7. That the good people of this commonwealth having ever felt, and continuing to feel, the most sacred affection for their brethren of the other States, the truest anxiety for establishing and perpetuating the union of all, and the most scrupulous fidelity to that Constitution, which is the pledge of mutual friendship, and the instrument of mutual happiness, the General Assembly doth solemnly appeal to the like dispositions in other States in confidence that they will concur with this commonwealth in declaring, as it does hereby declare, that the acts aforesaid are unconstitutional; and that the necessary and proper measures will be taken by each, for cooperating with this State in maintaining unimpaired, the authorities, rights and liberties reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

8. That the Governor be desired to transmit a copy of the foregoing resolutions to the executive authority of the other States, with a request that the same be communicated to the Legislature thereof, and that a copy be furnished to each of the Senators and Representatives, representing this State in the Congress of the United States.

Black Republican Platform.

Resolved, That we, the delegated representatives of the Republican electors of the United States, in convention assembled, in the discharge of the duty we owe to our constituents and our country, unite in the following declaration:

1. That the history of the nation during the last four years has established the propriety and necessity of the organization and perpetuation of the Republican party; and that the causes which called it into existence are permanent in their nature, and now, more than ever before, demand its peaceful and constitutional triumph.

2. That the maintenance of the Federal Constitution is essential to the preservation of our republican institutions, and shall be preserved; that we solemnly re-assert the self-evident truths that all are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are those of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that governments are instituted among men to secure the enjoyments of these rights.

3. That to the Union of the States this nation owes its unprecedented increase in population, its surprising development of material resources, its rapid augmentation of wealth, its happiness at home and its honor abroad, and we hold in abhorrence all schemes for disunion, come from whatever source they may; and we congratulate the country that no Republican member of Congress has uttered or countenanced a threat of disunion, so often made by the Democratic members of Congress without rebuke and with applause from their political associates; and we denounce those threats of disunion in case of a popular overthrow of their sectional party, as denying the vital principle of a free government, and as an avowal of conspiracy to repeal the constitutional law, or resist it by force.

4. That the maintenance inviolate of the rights of the States, and especially the rights of each State to order and control its own domestic institutions according to its own judgment exclusively, is essential to the balance of power on which the perfection and endurance of our political fabric depends; and we denounce the lawless invasion by an armed force of any State or Territory, no matter under what pretext, as among the gravest of crimes.

5. That the present Democratic Administration has far exceeded our worst apprehensions, in its measureless subserviency to the exactions of a sectional interest, as is especially evident in its desperate exertions to force the infamous Lecompton constitution upon the protesting people of Kansas, in construing the personal relation between master and servant to involve an unqualified property in persons; in its attempts at the enforcement everywhere, on land and sea, through the intervention of Congress and the federal courts, of the extreme pretensions of a purely local interest; and in its general and unsparing abuse of the power intrusted to it by a confiding people.

6. That the people justly view with alarm the reckless extravagance which pervades every department of the federal government; that a return to rigid economy and accountability is indispensable to arrest the system of plunder of the public treasury by favored partisans, while the present startling developments of fraud and corruption at the federal metropolis show that an entire change of the administration is imperatively demanded.

7. That the new dogma, that the Constitution of its own force, carries slavery into any or all of the Territories of the United States, is a dangerous political heresy, at variance with the explicit provisions of that instrument itself, with the contemporaneous exposition, and with legislative and judicial precedent, is revolutionary in its tendencies, and subversive of the peace and harmony of the country.

8. That the normal condition of all the Territory of the United States is that of freedom. That as our republican fathers, when they had abolished slavery in all our national territory, ordained that no person should be deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law, it becomes our duty, by legislation whenever such legislation is necessary, to maintain this provision of the Constitution against all attempts to violate it. And we deny the authority of Congress, of a territorial legislature, or of any individuals, to give legal existence to slavery in any territory of the United States.

9. That we brand the recent reopening of the African Slave trade, under the color of our national flag, aided by perversions of judicial power, as a crime against humanity, a burning shame to our country and age; and we call upon Congress to take prompt and efficient measures for the total and final suppression of that execrable traffic.

10. That in the recent vetoes by their Federal governors of the acts of the Legislatures of Kansas and Nebraska, prohibiting slavery in those Territories, we find a practical illustration of the boasted Democratic principle of non-intervention and popular sovereignty, embodied in the Kansas and Nebraska bill, and a denial of the right of the people to establish or prohibit slavery in the Territories, is a wicked invasion of the rights of the people and a flagrant violation of the spirit and letter of the national compact. Our exiled legislators may receive as Lincoln's Letter of Acceptance.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 23, 1860.

Hon. Geo. Ashman, Pres. Rep. Nat. Convention:

SIR:—I accept the nomination tendered me by the Convention over which you presided, and of which I am formally apprised in the letter of yourself and others, acting as a committee of the convention, for that purpose.

The declaration of principles and sentiments, which accompanies your letter, meets my approval; and it shall be my care not to violate or disregard it, in any part.

Imploring the assistance of Divine Providence; and with due regard to the views and feelings of all who were represented in the Convention; to the rights of all the States and territories and the people of the nation; to the inviolability of the Constitution, and the perpetual union, harmony and prosperity of all, I am most happy to co-operate for the practical success of the principles declared by the Convention.

Your obliged friend and fellow-citizen,
ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

50 DOLLARS REWARD!—Look out for the Rascal!—The subscriber will pay the above reward for the apprehension and delivery to him, or for the confinement in the Raleigh jail, of a negro boy named HENRY BAILEY. Said boy was once free, but was sold for jail fees, in January, 1860, having been convicted of housebreaking, and was bought by the undersigned. He ran away in May last, and is supposed to be lurking about Charlotte, N. C., where his mother and sisters reside. He is about five feet nine or ten inches high, is spare built, of light complexion and pox marked in the face. He has free papers, is a great liar, and is no doubt trying to pass for a free negro.

Don't forget the place, No. 161 Main street, one door below Kent, Pain & Co's.

COLLEGE HOTEL.
THE Undersigned having taken charge of the house, formerly occupied as a Female College in the city of Raleigh, on Hillsboro' street, 200 yards west of the Capitol, and near the N. C. Depot, and having opened the same as a PUBLIC HOTEL and BOARDING HOUSE, respectfully solicits the patronage of the TRAVELING PUBLIC.
Hillsboro' street is noted for good water and beautiful shade during the summer months. The Proprietor designs keeping a House for BOARDERS, during the summer and fall months for FAMILIES, who can have the benefit of the Mineral Water from the Kirkham Spring, which is equal to any in the State in medicinal properties, and which is well known to all who have tried the water.
The public are respectfully solicited to call and judge for themselves. Its promise will be fulfilled and not complied with. Stable room attached.

$50 SEWING MACHINES.—The Quaker City Sewing Machine works with two threads making double lock stitch, which will not rip or ravel, even if every fourth stitch be cut. It sews equally as well the coarsest Linsey or the finest Muslin, and is undeniably the best machine in market. Merchant Tailors, Manufacturers of Clothing, Shoe makers and Housekeepers, are invited to call and examine for themselves.
M. C. L. LEE.
Having purchased the right to sell the Quaker City machine, in any of the towns in North Carolina, except in the county of Wake, which is reserved to Messrs. Tucker & Co., of Raleigh, and the county of Forsyth, taken by P. A. Wilson, of Winston, should apply soon to the undersigned agents for the State. We will pay a reasonable per cent. to all persons taking agencies.

LAND FOR SALE.—The subscriber wishing to remove to the Southwest, offers for sale the tract of land on which he now resides, lying eight miles south of Raleigh, and one mile north of Rand's mill on the waters of Swift Creek, and in a healthy and intelligent neighborhood.
Said tract contains about 640 acres, three fourths of which is cleared, and has a high state of cultivation for a farm. It has a good two story dwelling house containing eight rooms, and a basement, newly finished off, with all the necessary outhouses of a well regulated farm, with a well of excellent water on the yard. The farm is well watered, and is adapted to the growth of Corn, Cotton, Wheat and Oats, and is admirably adapted to the growth of Grass.
