

AROUND THE TOWN

Sweethearts will be sweethearts, but who were the sweethearts at the "Sweethearts Dance." It seems as if a bit of amorous attention were given to the following attendants.

F. Foster doesn't brag—but Amos Clay says that no one else on earth can beat his time with her.

Boulah Rowland says that Abraham Graham can dance. And How!

"Hello Cote" says Harrison Davis to Wilhelmina Morrison. There seems to be another romance starting there. Tee-Hee.

Well, our noted surgical doctor have thought of such! When a young man is supposed to escort a young lady home from a dance, it isn't considered ethical for another one to take his place without permission. Beware of a wolf in sheep's clothes, T. B.

If L. A. would use a sense of humor may be she would find her new love. Don't be offended please.

There seemed to be plenty of admirers for Thelma Beatty. And who should be one but E. G. S. and C. D. Now you have something there, Thelma.

"Pip" Weaver seems to be an all-around dancer. He has been teaching some of the steps to L. A. Better watch out L. B.

Well, our noted surgical doctor, Henry Gunn, was at the dance. A kind remark was that he came to examine who were present.

Nannie Neely was the "Queen of the Night" with Alphonso Clements. Well, what do you have to say about that Miss Neely.

The charming Miss M. Burton has caused a certain young man to be the victim of the "Dipsy Doodle." Yet he'll never have a ghost of a chance. Just a silent admirer.

Virginia Foster and her friends from Greensboro were visiting the city Wednesday. It seems that G. Perry, E. Truitt, and P. Green, were the only escorts the could find. Watch E. Truitt, M. Southerland and M. Watkins.

"The Reverend H. Burnett" went to the dance last Friday night, and he danced too. Members of his class were surprised to see the "preacher out".

Bir Mir Bist Du Shon" seems to be the general theme song of C. D. May be he does wish to explain how grand you are T. B.

Who's the dame that always keeps you sweating over Marshall Henry, Miss Wooten?

There must be something between Josephine T. and C. Alton, M. H.

We wonder why Grace B. keeps the iron hot. Is it love R. B?

L. D. Suitt says she has a "swell" boy friend. If you recall his identity Miss Suitt, it would not be a suspense to you friends.

A dream here has come into the life of Mary Blackwell. Is it Thomas W?

M. Taylor seems to be having a hard time keeping B. H. from E. McRae.

Dock Dixon and M. M. seems to be in the "Mood for Love."

It appears that Clifton Thompson is taking Midge Cooke from Nathaniel Adams.

What physical, mental or spiritual emotion did G. Durham have when she saw B. Jones with W. Moore last Thursday. Maybe it was pride or anger that made tears come to her eyes.

Why does G. Perry go to Winston Salem so much is it because of the cute Miss Hyman.

Who were the girls E. T. and G. P. had at the Carolina Thurs. Look out E. W. and D. A.

West End Dope
Mr. Lenwood Taylor or "Ham-bone" rather, you are warned for the last time to stay off Milton Ave. That's all.

A True Confession—Hallie why do you get so many phone calls here lately from Wall Town? Gilford is getting suspicious so young lady watch your step.

With a bit of a toodle loo and a short-so long I will end this bit of gossip gathered from here and there.

We Negroes

(By Ruth Buchanan)

We Negroes are victims of an illusion of inferiority. When the slaves were brought here from Africa, the slave masters drilled into the minds of the ignorant slaves, the fact that they do they think that the Negro children can grow up in a respectable environment and still uphold the standing of the communities at large? They say that the Negro's mental calibre is not inferior. Why do the whites of the South think that a Negro can graduate from High school and have sufficient knowledge of academic work and enough credits to enter college with only eleven grades while the whites have twelve years of high school. CATHOLICS ATTACK COMMUNISM AMONG NEGROES

WORCESTER, Mass. (C)—"Communism is exerting every influence to enlist the Negro as an ally," declared George Hutton, white, editor of the Interracial Review of New York, a Catholic monthly, in a speech before the Catholic Women's Club, Sunday. "We need to spread the Catholic doctrine and philosophy of living to areas where the Negro lives, in the midst of discriminations and where education is at a low ebb," the speaker continued.

"The work of bringing religion to more of the Negro group is primarily the task of the Catholicity," said Mr. Hutton. "Racial prejudice against the Negro is evidenced in his exclusion from labor organizations, denial of commensurate wage, and exclusion from some schools and colleges. The Catholic is at fault in this problem in that he has either denied opportunity to the Negro, or quietly acquiesced when others have done the same thing."

On the same program appeared Dr. Hudson J. Oliver, president of the Catholic Interracial Council of New York who said that prejudice in America has permeated the structure of American Society. "The Negro," said Dr. Oliver, "has justified the educational opportunities offered to him in some parts of America. But though he has absorbed the culture and justifies his opportunities by advancing in the arts, sciences and other fields, he does not today enjoy full rights of citizenship. He is still in a state of secondary economic bondage. Justice for the Negro in some states is a mockery."

"This is the major reason that the mind of the Negro. His ear is attuned to any philosophy that will lead the way out. He probably doesn't believe in its intrinsic value as a substitute for the American tradition of life, but it is one of the two forces in American life that cry out against prejudice. The other is the Catholic church."

Farm Woman Whose Bravery Helped Save Four Gets Award

WITH photographers' lights flashing and an announcer describing the scene over a radio hook-up, a blushing Wisconsin farm woman stood in the executive offices of Governor Philip F. La Follette, of Wisconsin, and received a certificate for life saving awarded by the Light for Life Foundation, national safety organization.

The recipient of the award, one of ten made every year, was Mrs. W. J. Murtha, of Baldwin, Wis., who was responsible for saving the lives of four persons.

Last March 11, Mrs. Murtha, awakened to see if her children were covered, saw a light flashing from a point about a quarter mile away. It occurred to her instantly that an automobile had tried to negotiate the road leading to her house, which was covered with ice, and had broken through. Mrs. Murtha awakened her husband and they ran to the scene.

Shivering on top of an automobile, the car submerged in ice and icy water, were a neighbor, his wife and their two children. Their calls for help had not been heard. Finally the father began signalling with a flashlight—and Mrs. Murtha saw its beams.

Because the ice near the car was not strong enough for them to walk in unaided, the Murtha's police dog became the hero of the rescue. With a rope in his mouth, he fought his way to the car. The rope was tied around one of the children. With Mr. and Mrs. Murtha pulling, the child struggled and was dragged to safety. This operation was repeated until all were saved.

Mr. Murtha and the three children were present at the Light for Life Foundation ceremony. On this trip the Murtha family were guests of the Foundation.

TROUSSEAU LUGGAGE

Ready for the honeymoon with new luggage of lightweight duck with leather bindings. Both hat and shoe case and large suitcase have removable trays. Overnight case of woven striped duck.

A BRAND new trousseau and an exciting honeymoon all scheduled mean one more "must" for the bride—namely, brand new luggage. And what fun to choose sleek and smart new pieces to take the place of the battered relics of school days, pieces to be proud of now and to use for many years to come.

Since the average wedding trip is for two or three weeks at most, hand luggage will fill the bill. If carefully selected, it will be easier to pack and much easier to handle on route. Besides, the new hand luggage will accommodate an amazing amount of clothing with a minimum of wrinkling or other disasters.

A wise nucleus for a luggage wardrobe is a large wardrobe case with hangers, or a large suitcase with tray. This will take eight or more dresses or suits, with a good bit of space for shoes, hats, and underwear in the body of the case. Another necessity is an overnight case. Unless you have a number of pieces of luggage, don't buy the smaller size case. A 23 inch or 24 inch case will be far better. These sizes will take not only actual overnight necessities, but a change of underwear, an extra dress and pair of shoes. If you go on your trip by motor, stopping at a hotel at night, you need take only this case up to the room, leaving your other large case undisturbed until your destination is reached.

For a slightly larger budget, the logical addition to these pieces would be a hat and shoe trunk. This will take six pairs of shoes and several hats, and has a tray and roomy pocket that are ideal for all sorts of extras—sweaters, bathing suits, etc.

All sorts of materials are being shown for luggage this year, but the fabric cases come in such attractive colors and are so light in weight, that they continue as favorites with the majority of women. If they have been treated to make them waterproof (and all good cases are) these cases will give years of good service and are naturally quite a bit less expensive than leather.

But whatever you buy, take care in your selection. In the past few years, large quantities of shoddy and inferior luggage have flooded the market, and many a bargain, has turned out to be far from that when handles fell off, locks refused to stay shut and corners mashed in. Good luggage is an investment and should be bought as you would buy your silver or linens—either from a dealer whom you know and trust, or made by a manufacturer whose name you know and whose integrity has been established by years of honest business. It's sturdy materials and good construction that you are buying, for in luggage, as in many other things, beauty is more than skin deep.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Old Glory now floats over the field in a new way. Symbolic of all that is fine and unified in American life it is shown here, probably for the first time, created from a field of wheat—the basic food of the American people. And again the flag floats over all; the high and well-filled heads matted together form the red stripes, the blue star field and the staff, towering above other plants in the field.

This project, located in one of the wheat fields on the farm of Millard F. Morgan, near Bailey in Nash County, is the result of applying American Nitrate of Soda to the wheat plants forming the red stripes, the blue star field and the staff, while the white stars and stripes received no Nitrate and made little growth.

The sketch for the flag was made by L. O. Armstrong, Associate Professor of Vocational Education, North Carolina State College, and the project was conducted by T. H. LeCroy, Teacher of Agriculture at Spring Hope, with the assistance of his class of young Tar Heel Farmers.

Soon after graduating from Duke University in 1915, Millard Morgan answered the call to the colors. He saw all the horrors of war and recently made this statement, "My crops need American Nitrate, as shown by the flag project in my wheat field. I need to purchase this kind of Soda because it helps to keep money at home and because it has made the price lower to the American farmer. In time of war America will need the plant at Hopewell, Virginia, which is constantly ready to produce an ample Nitrate supply."

Mr. Morgan, while managing his large farm which includes 150 acres in Cotton, 125 in Tobacco, 50 in Corn and 100 in Wheat, keeping annually 80 beef cattle and 50 hogs, still finds much time for public service. He has served as County Commissioner for eight years and is Director of the Rocky Mount Production Credit Association.
