Marie Downing BEAUTY AND ROMANCE

SPONSORED BY LARIEUSE BEAUTY FOUNDATION
The Larieuse Beauty Foundation was established by the Godfrey Manufacturing Company to study methods of preserving women's natural beauty, and to make the results of this research available to the public.

So many of us give hours of careful attention to our complexions and completely ignore the frame that sets off that complexion—our hair. No matter how lovely the face, hair that is dried out, streaked or too oily will mar the effect. Summer is the hardest season on the hair. Most of us neglect to take proper precautions against sun and wind. We go without hats and sit for hours in the broiling sun and then are distressed to find our hair parched and streaked. The hair should be washed more often in warm weather than in cool. Just because you have your hair washed regularly once a week or once every two weeks during the winter doesn't mean that the same rule should hold during the summer. Simple hot oil shampoos or oil treatments are invaluable during the summer to counteract the drying effects of the sun. However, streaked appearance of the hair brought on by over-exposure to the sun may require the use of a wise selection of hair coloring. For hair thus streaked an all-over application of coloring, matched with your original shade, will give a uniform effect.

Or, if graying hair, of course, can be colored by touching up only the gray strands, although it is usually wise to apply the first application uniformly over the head. After that you need only touch up the part nearest the scalp as the graying grows in, since the hair, as you know, grows from the scalp, not from the ends. It's as simple as that and well worth your while.

Be sure to brush your hair regularly. Why not arrange a set routine and stick to it? Pick out the most convenient time of day to brush your hair and the best day of the week to have it washed. In that way you are less likely to put it off as long as possible and in the end neglect the important hundred strokes of the brush. Nothing gives the hair a more gleaming, burnished look than regular brushing. Brushing removes accumulated dust and grime from the hair and stimulates the circulation. Be sure, however, to keep your brushes and combs immaculately clean.

And don't forget the ounce of prevention. Keep a hat or some protective covering on your hair when you are in the sun. These are all simple suggestions, but if you follow them they will reward you with a shining "Crown of Glory."

REMAKING THE HOME

Guest Room in the Attic
AN extra room or guest room is waiting for you in your own home: in that unfinished attic of yours.

All very well, you say, to have that extra space, but can you afford it? Oddly enough, you not only can afford it, but actually can save money by doing it in the proper way. There is no mystery about the process. If your attic is properly finished with a board that insulates as it builds, you will save about 50 per cent of the heat loss through your roof. Too many houses apparently are trying to heat the great outdoors by allowing their heat to leak out. The roof area of the house is the main culprit in this respect. By turning the attic into a finished room with insulation board walls, you thus obtain an extra room which will pay its own way and provide an annual dividend in fuel economy. The heat leakage which, with cold weather, takes big bites out of the family purse, will be reduced. The extra room which will so cleverly add living space and cut fuel bills may take many forms, according to the needs and tastes of the family. I know one that was turned into a game room, another into a children's library, a third into a photography dark room.

The simpler the wall finish of the extra room, the better. Large sheets of cane fiber board lend themselves especially well to the attic finishing job, since they cover a lot of surface with little carpentry. Left in the natural tannish color the walls will make pleasing background for any sort of furnishings. If color is desired, paint may be used. Calcimine and water paints should be applied directly to unsized Celotex though calcimine may be applied to the board over a varnish size to facilitate removal by washing. Celotex should be sized before oil or varnish paints are applied.
