

DEAN KELLY MILLER PASSES

Noted Educator Buried Tuesday; Ill Ten Days

By Staff Correspondence
 WASHINGTON — Dean Kelly Miller of Howard University both columnist and scholar died Friday at his home, 2225 Fourth Street N. W.

Eulogies were given by Dr. Mordecai Johnson, President of Howard University; Dr. Dwight O. W. Holmes, president of Morgan College; Bishop Monroe H. Davis of the AME Church; and Drs. Francis Gregory, W. A. C. Hughes and Walter H. Brooks.

He was born July 23, 1863 in Winnsboro, S. C. The son of Kelly and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller. Early in his youth he manifested an unusual ability in mathematics with his lightning like calculations. This aptitude led him to the University "On the Hill" Howard University—where he lived up to the reputation and graduated with flying colors in 1886. His brilliance attracted the interest of the professors John Hopkins University in Baltimore and brought about his acceptance into this science—famous mathematics and physics there for two years 1887-89.

Dean Miller found employment

after leaving John Hopkins University teaching Mathematics in the Washington Colored High School. But not for long—his alma mater called him back to take the professorship of mathematics there at Howard University he was appointed dean of the College of science and arts in 1906—and later professor of sociology.

In this field he rapidly flashed forth across the nation's thought centers as a leading logician and thinker of the race. The wealth of material and clarity found in his two books, "Race Adjustment" and "Out of Bondage" have caused them to be used in leading universities in the country. In addition to these and other books his various pamphlets, "As to the Leopard's Spots," and "The Disgrace of Democracy," which was an open letter to President Woodrow Wilson ran to approximately 250,000 copies or more.

He also wrote a chapter on "The Education of the Negro," in a report to the U. S. Bureau of Education, 1901.

Dr. Miller also wrote a syndicated weekly release which has

JANITOR ADMITS SLAYING B. T. WASHINGTON STAMPS TO GO ON SALE APRIL 7TH

Farley To Speak At Tuskegee Same Day

TUSKEGEE, (ANP) — Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee institute, announced last week receipt of a formal notice from the United States Post Office department in Washington that April 7, will be the official date for the first day's issue of the Booker T. Washington Commemorative stamp and that the Tuskegee institute post office will be the official office for the first day's sale. The stamps will go on sale in all other post offices in April 8.

"April 7 is the date for our observance of founder's day," said Dr. Patterson, "and we are happy to state that Postmaster General James A. Farley will be the founder's day speaker. It is significant in Tuskegee's history that the postmaster-general will be our speaker on the same day that the Booker T. Washington Commemorative stamps are placed on sale."

Arrangement have been made for the founder's day address to be broadcast over a national hook up and the program will include selections by the Tuskegee choir.

The Booker T. Washington stamp will be of the 10 cent denomination and a special commemorative envelope will be available at Tuskegee institute for postmarking on the first day of issues and sale.

Dr. J. W. Young Dies

CHARLOTTE — Dr. J. W. Young, financial secretary of the AME Zion church, died on New Year's Day at Good Samaritan Hospital where he had been nursed, seriously ill. Doctor Young was in his office in the AME Zion Publication House earlier in the day, and was taken ill, apparently from indigestion about three o'clock. He was rushed to the hospital by Dr. J. S. N. Tross whose office is next to that of Dr. Young.

Friends who visited him shortly afterward found him cheerful, but he failed to rally and died quietly at six o'clock. Dr. Young was sixty five years old, a graduate of Johnson C. Smith

University and Iowa State College. He had studied law and served as president of Greenville College in Greenville, Tenn.

Upon the retirement of Dr. S. G. Atkins, he became General Secretary of Education for the Church, and when that office was merged with the Christian education department, Doctor Young was made treasurer of Livingstone College. In 1936 at the General Conference in Greensboro, Dr. Young was elected financial secretary, the first layman ever to hold the office. His unquestioned honesty as well as his training and experience admirably fitted him for the position which he filled with efficiency and dignity.

Dr. Young is survived by his wife, and two sons, J. W. Young Jr., a student at Virginia State College and Jesse W. Young. He was buried Thursday after funeral services at Soldier's Memorial church of Salisbury, of which he was a member.

Hornets Honored With Banquet

DURHAM — As a reward for finishing the 1939 football season undefeated and for the excellent sportsmanlike spirit shown throughout, the entire squad of Hillside Park high school was honored in a testimonial banquet Thursday night, January 4, at the Algonquin Tennis Club on Fayetteville St.

Frank Burnette, Principal of Burton School and former coach of Hillside as was master of ceremonies and introduced several leading business and professional men of the city as guest speakers. After the dinner and speeches were over and the men to let their training in football create in them the ability to cooperate in all things and to take advantage of the numerous opportunities which were now existent in his day.

Other speakers were: Dean James T. Taylor who brought greetings from North Carolina College; F. D. Marshall, E. R. Merrick, H. M. Michaux, Dr. Swift of Lincoln Hospital, Editor L. E. Austin of the Carolina Times, J. M. Schoeter, assistant principal of Hillside school, and W. D. Hill, chairman of the "Tobacco Bowl" committee which sponsored the New Years day game here. Responses came from Coaches Cole and Riddick who complimented the boys again for the excellent spirit shown and the ease with which they worked together. Coach Riddick said: "We have no regrets, we didn't lose." The players gave a rousing yell for their beloved coaches.

The Hillside squad elected William Pike and Blount Co-captains for the 1940 season, and Russell Durrah was unanimously acclaimed the most valuable player. Durrah played at his center position for the full 60 minutes of almost every game played and kept his teammates in the fighting spirit when the going was tough.

Bloodstains Lead To Arrest Of 'Gangster' Killer

NEW YORK, (ANP)—Bloodstains noticed on a suspect's clothing by an alert detective while questioning him, led to the solving this week of a murder which police had termed a "gangster" slaying. Major Greenfield, 34 year old apartment house superintendent, made a full confession to police after being confronted with evidence found near his basement apartment.

The slain man was Vincent Cangro, white, 45, ex-convict and policy runner whose record dated back to 1917. Greenfield told police that he killed the ex-convict a f t e r they had quarrelled over a colored girl who was in his apartment.

According to the confession, the slayer told how he killed the white man and then wheeled his body through the streets in a baby carriage, to the vacant lot where the body was discovered by a passerby.

The Bronx Gardens section of New York was busy with late minute shoppers at the peak of the Saturday night's rush, as Greenfield trundled his gruesome load past crowded stores, illuminated Christmas trees, and radios from which came strains of Christmas carols. Greenfield wheeled the body for more than five blocks, but the body was so folded up and covered with blankets that no pedestrian could possibly tell what the carriage contained.

On reaching the vacant lot, Greenfield dumped the body and then hid the carriage in another lot nearby. Detectives recovered the carriage later.

The janitor stated in his confession that a colored whom he knew only as Annabelle, and whose address he did not know, visited him Saturday night, visited him Saturday night, Cangro, with whom he was well acquainted, dropped in on Greenfield.
