COUPLE BEING SUED AFTER BUYING HOME

LOS ANGELES, (A N P) — Because they bought a home on the north side of East 92nd street where property is restricted against non caucasians, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lofton, have been sued by neighboring white residents of Goodyear Tract Unit Number 2.

On the South side of East 92nd street and across from the Lofton property a large number of Negroes now own and occupy homes where the district is known as Central Avenue gardens.

Property involved in the injunction suit has been occupied by the Loftons and their children since last October without any disturbance. When asked by their attorney, Thomas L. Griffith, if they could account for the delay of almost one year in bringing suit, the Loftons replied that reliable sources had informed them the time was required in raising funds because caucasians in the tract did not have enough money to start action earlier. Griffith, answering the injunction suit on behalf of the Negro

GOING TO VISIT MAMA: 80 YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER INJURED

MOBILE, Alabama, — Mrs. Mary Singleton, 80-year-old Mobile woman, was struck down by an automobile here this week while attempting to cross a street and suffered a fractured leg.

When hospital attendants inquired concerning where she might have started she stated that she was taking clothes to her mother. "My mama," she said "is 107 years old."

MACON, Miss., Berry Walker, 70, was tried and convicted of first degree murder last week for a crime he committed 19 years ago when he killed Tube Tolland on a street in Brooksville, Miss. He was indicted at that time by the grand jury, only four of whom now are living, but escaped immediately after the murder.

A bloodhound hunt was conducted by the Sheriff and Deputy for several weeks after the murder, but Walker remained at large until this spring when Sheriff Charles Fraley received a wire from a small town in Oklahoma stating that he had been arrested there.

Source of the information which led to Walker's arrest was not learned, but reports are that a three hundred dollar reward offer was kept alive by use of a "grapevine telegraph" known only to Negroes. Upon his arrival in the town where the arrest was made, officers were waiting to apprehend him.

WESTERN CAROLINA HIT BY FLOOD

RALEIGH Flood conditions in the Asheville, Boone, North Wilkesboro, Elkin and other sections of the west, then in the Roanoke Rapids, Weldon, Wilkesboro and other areas in the east, caused waiving of rights and a record time decision of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission in determining rights of workers in mills and plants in which work stopped as a result of the floods.

Also, it brought into the lime light an amendment to the Unemployment Compensation Law adopted by the 1937 General Assembly, which prohibits payment of unemployment benefits to claimants "if unemployment is due to a fire, which where found by the Commission to constitute a catastrophe, a flood, a cyclone or a tornado or other catastrophe."

The Commission, within six days after the floods began to subside in the North Wilkesboro area, on August 21, rendered a decision which held, in effect, that while the mill or plant was not operating because of flood waters in the buildings, then the workers were unemployed due to the flood; but from the day on which the flood waters had subsided, then the flood "ceased to be efficient, immediate or active cause of the claimants' unemployment and thereafter said unemployment was not due to a flood." The decision ordered that the claims of such unemployed workers be processed and that they be paid such benefits as they are entitled to under the law if otherwise eligible.

Employers involved waived their rights of time allowed for appeals in order that test cases might be disposed of expeditiously, and in most cases agreed that benefits should be paid to their employees under such conditions, even though a strict interpretation of the law would raise the question of whether or not they are eligible for benefits, and even though such benefits are charged to the employers' individual account and having a bearing on their record under the State's "Merit Rating" system.

The decision, in effect, allows payment after the waters subside, even if it should take weeks or even months to yet the mills or plants and their machinery in condition to resume operations. It was reached after conferences with Governor Hoey, Attorney General McMullan, Social Security Board officials and employ-ees involved, based on the topic that the workers are or were unemployed "through no fault of their own."
