Johnson C. Smith's School of Theology Ranks With Best

The Theological Seminary of Johnson C. Smith University was founded in 1867. In this beginning it shared the name Biddle Memorial Institute, later Biddle University, and later still, Johnson C. Smith University.

The purpose of the founders of the seminary was to locate a Christian college in the midst of a people whom it was to serve. As to how wise they were in their planning, they, perhaps, never dreamed.

The founder's ultimate objective was to develop an educated Christian ministry capable of making known the principles and teachings of the Holy Bible in such a way as to lay a sure foundation for the growth and development of Christian character.

Hundreds of men have gone out from the seminary all over the world. Many have come from and returned to points as far distant as the West Indies and the Gold Coast, West Africa.

Many have served as teachers and preachers. In rare instances a few, without turning away

Poultry Flocks Need Ample Green Grazing

Only the person who grows poultry for his health's sake or as a hobby can afford to neglect the production of green feed for the flock, says T. T. Brown, extension poultryman of State College.

On the other hand, he went on, if profit is the person's motive, then green feed has a definite and important part to play in feeding chicks and growing pullets and layers. Grazing crops not only cut feed bills but promote health.

The poultryman who will take a look around his neighborhood will find an amazing difference in favor of pullet flocks raised on clean land where an ample supply of green feed was available over those raised on bare, dry lots without grazing crops.

The pullets confined to the dry bare lots usually are pale-faced, pale-legged, and appear unthrifty. In sharp contrast to this condition, pullets grown on clean range on which no chickens have been for two years carry a generous supply of rich yellow pigment in their shank and around their faces and have bright red combs and wattles.

When the cost of developing pullets for layers is figured, almost invariably it has been found that those grown on clean range and having ample succulent grazing crops have cost their owners less money up to laying time than pullets produced on bare lots without green feed.

Yet this lessened expense is not the only important difference, Brown said. Egg production records show that green ranged birds far surpass the pullets raised without benefit of range.

Naturally, Brown explained, when the average number of eggs per bird goes up, the feed cost per dozen eggs comes down.

A type of tobacco that looks, smells, and tastes like burley but is almost completely free of nicotine has been developed by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

North Carolina ranks forty-eighth in diphtheria death rate, but Dr. Thomas Parran, U. S. Surgeon General is of the opinion that the 1939 compulsory vaccination law shortly would afford some remedy for this situation.

Three persons are brought in to some jail in North Carolina every twenty minutes of the day and night, making a total of some 80,000 a year.

Civic Contributions Of Smith Personnel

The energies of the faculty of Johnson C. Smith University are not directed into educational channels alone but the members of that administrative body are known throughout the length and breadth of this land and other lands for their interest in and contributions to civic life and progress.

A shining example for the institution and race he has so faithfully served since before the turn of the century is President H. L. McCrorey. One of the most influential political and religious leaders of the south, Dr. McCrorey is President of the Charlotte Citizen's League, a member of the local Federal Housing Authority, and was recently elected President of the College Union of the Presbyterian Church, USA, and has received the highest awards and citations that the Presbyterian Church affords.

Dean T. E. McKinney is also a national figure. He is President of the Negro Trade Association, and a member of the Voters' Alliance, Citizen's League, NAACP among others organizations.

Dr. R. L. Anderson has received international recognition for his contributions in the world of science and was recently invited to speak before a meeting of the world's most eminent men of science to report certain findings that had made in the Biology field. Dr. Anderson is also Vice-President of the Citizen's League and former President of the Parent-Teacher Ass'n.

One of the most versatile members among the Smith faculty is Prof. J. J. Adams of the Department of French. Well versed in international affairs, Mr. Adams was former interpreter in the

Mrs. McCrorey a Civic Influence

CHARLOTTE — As a leader in civic action both locally and nationally Mrs. H. L. McCrorey, wife of President H. L. McCrorey, is well known. Reviewing the activities of national significance in which she has participated during the past year, one observes with interest and respect that Mrs. McCrorey has attended the annual sessions of the National Association of Colored Women and the International Council of Women of the Darker Races, both of which met in Boston, Mass., the National Council of Negro Women which convened in New York City, the Interracial Commission which met in Atlanta, Georgia, and the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers which held its sessions in Atlantic City, N. J.

Locally, Mrs. McCrorey has made her presence felt in many ways. She is active in the Citizens League, the Voters' Alliance, the NAACP, and wields a vast influence in the Red Cross, to mention only a few of her civic connections.

Widely known and respected for her interest in the underprivileged and unfortunate, Mrs. McCrorey has directed her efforts toward relieving suffering humanity. One of her prize undertakings has been the establishment of a Sunday School class for the underprivileged children living in the vicinity of Johnson C. Smith campus. An important feature of the program is found in exercises held from time to time at which clothing, food, and toys are distributed among the youngsters.

Charlotte's Negro Trade Association

CHARLOTTE—By Charles E. Cobb, Charlotte Correspondent
In a most colorful setting at Lee Jackson's Restaurant, the Negro Trade Association met to further discuss and solve problems pertinent to Negro business. A delightful luncheon was served after which greetings were brought from the President, Dean T. E. McKinney of Johnson C. Smith U. In short order reports from Mr. William Hairston of Hairston Funeral Home who was chairman of special seating committee and William Malone, former North Carolina College athlete who is secretary of the Association. Discussion as to visitations in the interest of the employment of Negroes in various 'white owned' businesses followed the reports. Rev. H. M. Moore of the Ebenezer Baptist church was guest speaker for the occasion and in his remarks he emphasized those qualities necessary for the success of an organization as the Trade Association. Rev. Moore's points were: Knowing people, Courage, Reliability and Experience, these were all used in arriving at his general topic, "Getting the progra mover."

There was an introduction of visitors and new members after which the meeting was adjourned with invocation by the Rev. H. M. Moore.
