BOSSING

(Imperial Magazine)

We attended a testimonial dinner at $2 a plate and sat next to a priest. While we were waiting for dinner to be served, the priest told a waiter to get him some water. The waiter mumbled that dicated that the place to quench one's thirst was at the bar. The priest told the waiter that he'd have water or he would not eat. He got the water.

This led the priest to utter some philosophical observations about the bossing that Americans stand from people whom they hire to serve them.

Next day we noted that Christopher Billopp, writing in the Baltimore Evening Sun, was indignant about the kind of bossing that so infuriated the priest. His subject was "Folks."

"Folks," said Mr. Billopp, "are people who spend their time being asked to:

"Listen."
"Step this way, please."
"Be patient for a few minutes."
"Please don't crowd."
"Give me your attention for a moment."
"Move up a little closer."
"Stand back."
"Make a contribution, however small."
"Look this way and hold it."
"Let's have a smile."
"Show your tickets."
"Please stop talking in the back of the hall."
"Pay the man at the door as you go out."
"Take advantage of this wonderful opportunity."
"Give the little girl a hand."
"Take your time."
"Please move over to the next aisle."
"Sit down in front."
"If in favor, raise your hand."
"Don't forget the waitresses."
"Please don't smoke."
"Have your change ready."
Buy a souvenir program from the gentlemen who will now pass among you."
"Remain seated."
"Rise during the singing of the anthem."
"And to perform other annoying, inconvenient, unreasonable or objectionable acts at the request of a noisy but insignificant individual whom the folks, if they were not so docile, long suffering and obedient, could in some moment of rebellion stampede and crush."

Man Prefers Jail Than To Face Wife

A 50-year-old man walked over to a city patrolman in Minneapolis, yesterday, and calmly told the policeman that he wanted to be arrested for robbing a bank. "Arrest me," the man told the cop, "I am a desperate criminal."

Finally, after thirty minutes of questioning, the man confessed that the bank robbery was a hoax. That he had spent the money he was to bring home to his wife, and he thought of the bank story because he was afraid to go home and tell his wife that he had spent the money he was to bring home.

The man, being a little tipsy, was then locked up in the city jail, and marked, "Held for wife."

What happened after friend wiew got a hold of her "bank roober husband," can't be told here. But you can use your own judgement as to that.

Outdoor Yule Lights Spread Joy For All

Clever Use of a Few Strings of Christmas-tree Lights and Well-placed "Projector" Floodlight Lamps Can Transform a Home into a Glowing Greeting of Good Will.

By Jean Prentice

NEVER before have world events so meaningfully driven home to Americans the desire for "Peace on Earth... Good Will Toward Men". Before the era of electric lights, men were obliged to confine the expression of their Christmas spirit indoors. Symbolizing this spirit were the be-candled indoor tree, sprigs of holly, gaily wrapped gifts, and the common greeting card.

Came a new day, the advent of the colorful multiple burning Christmas-tree lamps like glowing jewels on a string. Came "projector" lamps designed for outdoor flood and spotlight use. Last holiday season entire neighborhoods, through light, were transformed into veritable fairylands. The custom of expressing the Yule spirit outside has grown by leaps and bounds. This distinctly American tradition will doubtless reach a new peak this season.

Black-outs may be the order in lands less fortunate than ours. Over here, countless thousands of home-owners, unafraid, again have the opportunity to join up with the millions who each year at this time illuminate their holiday spirit, letting it flow outside for all to enjoy.

Quite a display can be created by simply attaching some evergreens around the front door and windows. By fastening strings of Christmas-tree lamps to the greens and by running an extension cord to a nearby electrical outlet, most of the job is done. An added note of beauty may be had through use of the new 150-watt "projector" lamps. Reflector, lens, and filament are hermetically sealed into each of these rugged all-glass lamps. They may be placed close to the house to silhouette a theme message or to spread their light upward in striking lamp patterns. Used at a distance, these lamps will "flood" or "spot" larger areas. Holders are available for these bell-shaped lamps.

And now, just one more hint. When shopping for your Christmas lighting equipment, see a reliable retailer of electrical goods. Tell him your plans. Buy only high quality lamps of American make. They must burn under adverse weather conditions, you know. Besides, the best lights prove to be the cheapest in the long run.

Marie Downing BEAUTY AND ROMANCE

SPONSORED BY LARIEUSE BEAUTY BUREAU

The Larieuse Beauty Bureau was established by the Godefroy Manufacturing Company to study methods of preserving women's natural beauty, and to make the results of this research available to the public.

You want the admiration of others, don't you? Then, use your head! Dull, dingy hair has a repellent influence on people. You yourself know that you don't turn your head and look a second time at someone whose hair is unkempt, discolored and drab-looking.

Despite the popular saying that "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" it is my belief that "Gentlemen Prefer Women" no matter what the color of their crowning glory. If it is a color—one color—any color that is attractive.

Look at your hair in the front, on the back of your head, and lifting several strands, look underneath. Is it streaky and vari-colored, is it spotty? Is it lovely because of its well-groomed appearance?

If you are disappointed in the way your hair looks, if the coloring does not suit you, apply an accredited coloring and see for yourself how much improved your appearance will be.

Don't be a stay-at-home, don't lose opportunities for happiness and romance, simply because you may have overlooked the appearance of your hair. It's so much a part of you but that is all the more reason for taking care of it—beautify your hair with regular treatment and a well-rounded diet.

The subject of proper foods for general health, as well as hair health, will be considered in a later column, so for the time being we shall think only about what daily routine will help to develop your hair so that you will be the envy of your friends, and the admiration of your masculine associates.

The small amount of effort expended in brushing your hair daily will pay handsome dividends. Use a strong bristled brush. Divide the hair into small sections (as if you were going to brush it) all over your head, and taking one part at a time, brush upward and outward with vigorous strokes. Keep this up until your scalp fairly tingles with life—you have already improved the circulation, and good circulation to the roots of your hair will result in stronger and healthier hair.

If your hair is dry, try oil treatments or shampoos. Keep out of the sun—on windy days, remember to wear some kind of covering on your head because the elements are hard on hair and render the problem of caring for the hair a most difficult one.

If your hair is oily, use egg shampoos to help brighten it, to bring out the sheen which is ordinarily hidden by the accumulation of oil from the scalp.

It is never good to scratch the head—instead, place your fingertips on your scalp and gently, but firmly, move the scalp backwards and forwards, and from side to side. This exercise has a stimulating effect and will reward you in hair beauty and health.

For the next several weeks, concentrate on your hair. It is a lot more beneficial to follow a few rules for beauty regularly, than to confuse the mind with many which, in the end, are forgotten because it is too hard to remember so much.

Don't go around envying others' beautiful hair when it is so easy to have beautiful hair yourself.

What are your beauty problems? Write: Marie Downing, Larieuse Beauty Bureau, 3309 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis, Mo., and she will be glad to answer them. Be sure to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

I just robbed a bank in Wisconsin.

The patrolman obliged, and took the man to police headquarters.

For thirty minutes, headquarters detectives questioned the man trying to obtain minute details of the "bank robbery," but the facts as told by the strange man, didn't seem to jibe.

Then there are people who insist that they enjoy hard work.

Don't be misled by what some people refer to as an investment.
