and the study of the stars. "I'd like to have the feeling that you graduates will go out with a dedication of competent and competent and trained lives for useful service—the essential spirit of dedication—Life has its ordeals and agonies but thank God, it has its challenge. Add to your qualities the stabilizing quality—faith, I prefer to be guided by the faith of our forefathers than by the whittings of the Lindbergs, Nyes and Wheelers. God in Heaven rules and will rule. I predict for you, if your lives be grounded rightly, an important place in the world."

Dean W. W. Pearson of the University of North Carolina Graduate School and a member of the faculty of the North Carolina College for Negro, presided while Governor Broughton conferred the degree of Master of Arts on Lewis Van Dorn Graves. Dean Pearson said: "This is a notable experiment in education."

Dr. R. L. Flowers, president of Duke University and chairman of the board of trustees of the Negro College, presided and awarded the degrees to the other 95 members of the graduating class. Dr. Flowers has been a member of the board since 1923. Presents Bibles

Dr. Shepard presented the Bibles to the graduating class and introduced the various speakers on the program. In presenting each graduate a Bible President Shepard said: "May these Bibles serve as a guide to your feet over the troubled road, and may they be guiding lights. Nothing will strengthen you more."

President Shepard announced that the class of 1941 has given the college dining room an amplifying system. He expressed his appreciation for the faculty and the efforts of the alumni units throughout the State. New Bern unit has sent $50 to be used by some worthy student. Other units were urged to follow the example.

Dr. Shepard expressed hope for a new pipe organ during the next year, which he said would be given by friends of the institution at a cost of $5,000. Friends have already pledged $1,000 of the amount. Another anticipated feature for the college is a correct timing system, which will cost about $2,500, Dr. Shepard stated.

Appropriate music was rendered by the choral group and the auditorium organ during the entire program.

Dean A. Elder of the undergraduate school at N. C. College presented the candidates for undergraduate degrees.

Whereup he went into the houses and secured a shotgun, at which time his wife, carrying the baby got out of the car and walked toward him, still pleading with him not to leave, and called to her father "Make Oris behave." This seemingly fanned the flames of McClama wrath; for this junction he fire away striking the woman in the abdomen, killing her instantly, and almost severing the leg of the child, whom she held in her arms, and who succumbed from loss of blood
