Inside Dope On The Champ, Gleaned In Visit at His Quarters

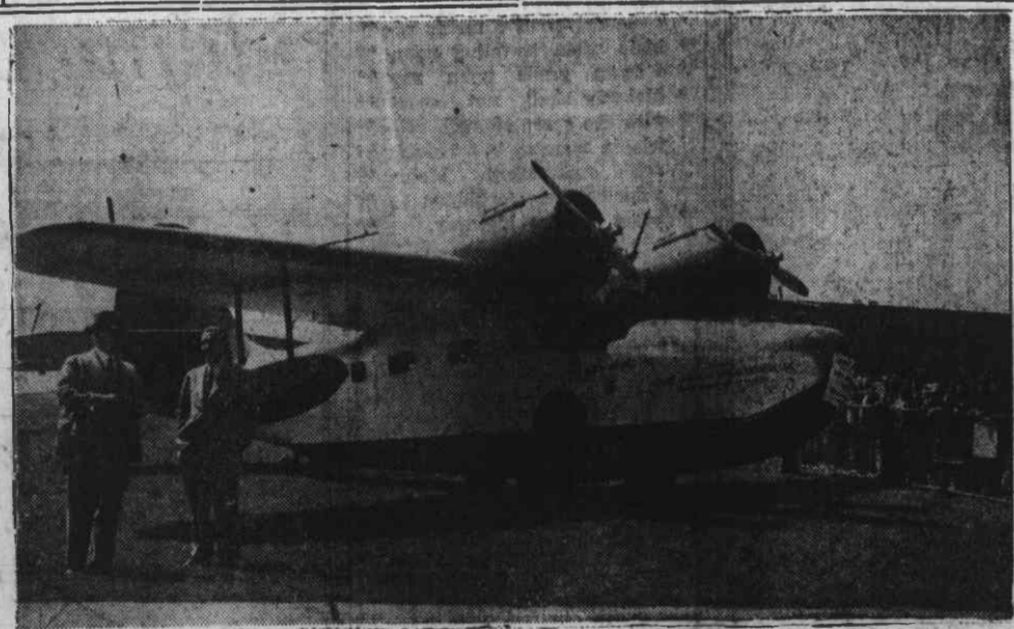

By Bernice Calvin New York — Hotel Theresa Somewhere near 12:00 in the afternoon a tall, broadshouldered guy, flanked by a solemn bunch of fellows and snappily attired in a coca brown straw hat, a taupe silk gabardine suit, brown striped shirt, figured tie, brown and white shoes and dark glasses, a lighted from a black sedan and he insouciantly strolled into the foyer of Hotel Theresa, which is centered in the heart of Harlem. Was he expected? Yes, sir! Why, almost all Harlem had an inkling he would stop off at the Theresa and already a crowd was gathering to glimpse him when he blew into town. For this rich, brown skinned personage was none other than Joe Louis, the champ of champions. Assigned to Suite 1002, the Louis coterie was immediately whisked to the 10th floor in the better of the two elevators. And for 3 minutes, after the champ was safely ensconced in his room, elevator operator, following strict orders, answered no button pushers so as to assure the safety and privacy of the Hotel's most precious guest.

Louis' first act after his arrival was to have a rub down. To the luck masseur he gave a $25 ringside seat in the 6th row. Following the limbering up, it was time for the weigh-ins at the Polo Grounds, at the scene of the fight. To avoid being detained by the rapidly multipl crowd, Joe and managers went to car, not through the main entrance, but through the bar and were likewise unrealized until after they drove off.

Nationally Known Leaders In New Orleans

Nationally known business leaders were in New Orleans last week to attend the commencement and business seminars of the YMCA School of Commerce, directed by W. H. Mitchell, Jr., executive secretary of the YMCA. There were 103 graduates. Dr. Harry H. Pace gave the commencement address. J. B. Blayton and A. L. Holsey were among those speaking on seminars. Reading, left to right: Dr. Harry H. Pace, Chicago, president of Supreme Liberty Life Insurance Co.; J. B. Blayton, C. P. A., Atlanta, professor of accounting at Atlanta University and vice-president Citizens Trust Co., and A. L. Holsey, Tuskegee, secretary, National Negro Business League.

The Theresa didn't see Joe again until 12:36 that night, or the next morning, however you take it. And then it was unexpected anticipating a huge reception, Louis planned at first to sleep at a private apartment on the hill, but suddenly changed his mind. And this would have been a wise decision, for it seemed that they were all there. An immense sea of human faces, all awaiting their champ, who had almost disappointed them this night. Mounted policemen strove hard to keep the people in check but when the black sedan suddenly drove up to the curb, men and women, a like screamed, "He's here." And no horses, feet could keep them from encircling their hero.

Once more, he and attendants, one carrying a brown and white bag probably containing the fighting togs were on their way to the tenth floor. Then, two policeman jealously guarded the doorway, but we could hear the champ draw, "That sure was a mighty close one."

34,444 Babies Born In State During Five Months of 1941

Raleigh — From January 1st, through May, this year, there were 34,444 babies born in North Carolina, which was just 1,973 in excess of the number born during the corresponding period of 1940, the State Board of Health reports.

Furthermore, births during that period exceeded the 14,424 deaths in the State by 20,020. Maternal deaths were shown to be on the decrease, there having been only 161 during the first five months of 1941, as compared with 188 for the same period last year, a decrease of 27.

But the mounting toll of deaths from preventable accidents also comes in for consideration. From January through May, vital statistics figures show, 709 persons in North Carolina were accidentally killed, as compared with 543 for the same period a year ago—an increase of 166. Most of these deaths resulted from traffic accidents. There were, during the period of the compilation, 104 fewer PL—I learned this house where I am living at the present time is going to be up for sale. Should I buy it or move farther into the city? Which would be best for me? Ans.—Buying a home is a worthwhile investment, but don't buy it just because it is for sale—consider the matter from a business angle entirely. If you want it exceptionally bad, and the price is cheap, it might prove to your advantage to buy. However, if it is your desire to have your daughter change her present company, it would prove to your advantage to get a place closer into the city. She will then make new friends which seems the most important thing in your mind right now.

Mrs. L. M. — I am married and the party whom I love is married also and has a family. Please tell me whether this is real love they has for me? They also I will soon be theirs and we will be together. What will be the result of this matter? Ans.—Several broken hearts if you don't use your will power and discontinue your friendship with this man immediately. You aren't in love—you are probably infatuated but don't you realize that you are doing wrong to be seeing this man when you know he is married and has a family. What about your husband? Stop this silly affair at once and you can't hope to gain anything from it.

CRN—Does this boy mean me any good? He says he loves me and wants to marry me. Tell me how to write you so you will answer in a private letter to me? Ans.—This friend of your is sincere and is anxious to make his wife at an early date. If you have the same feeling for him, June 1, there had been only 28 deaths from pneumonia than occurred a year ago, 39 fewer deaths from tuberculosis and 23 fewer from diphtheria.
