

SOUTHERN WILDLIFE

They Start 'Em Young in Texas!

In the Lone Star State they don't count you in the population unless you fish or hunt. And it's getting to where they start out being a qualified citizen pretty young these days.

F. C. (Fishcatcher) Hall of La Feria, Texas, purchased a license for his son one hour after the youngster's arrival at the Mercedes hospital. When Forest fires illuminated the skies "Just as soon as the weather clears," the proud father answered.

The Soil and Conservation

Conservation of the soil is largely a matter of using the land in accordance with the dictates of nature.

One of our conservation departments has in its position an editorial published by a newspaper in 1854 denying the possibility of any wildlife scarcity, would he take the boy fishing at night and did no harm. Twelve tons of quail were shipped to market. A shooting match was held with prizes for hunters who dropped the largest number. They should have had just this one conservation measure in those days—a law enabling game hogs to shoot each other thus obtain the expired hunter's game tag. Why didn't someone think of that?

What an Idea!

Look, fellows, let's get this started! One of our large eastern cities is conducting a campaign to open a fishing pond for youngsters in each of the city's parks. The idea is to stock them with pan fish and allow only kids under 16 to fish. The NYA is supposed to supervise the fishing and teach the youngsters sportsmanship.

This is the best idea we've heard in a long time. Every city, town and village should have it. Why not get the sportsmen of your town together and see what they think?

Transplanting Game

It's a pity to see so much available forest lands fields and thickets that would support game—and one thing authorities have been increasingly successful of late in "transplanting" game animals from districts where they are numerous to places where they're unknown, scarce. By the use of "catch-em-alive" traps, even full-grown elk and antelope have been transplanted. Seven beavers were moved into Kentucky several years ago where none had been seen for a long time. This may not seem enough to repopulate the state, but remember that the many thriving colonies of beavers now found in New York state all came from seventeen beavers which were brought there from Yellowstone Park in 1907. If you haven't much to hunt for, get sportsmen of your vicinity together and "transplant" some game!

"House-Keepers" Of Army Have Important Job

Much has been said in these strenuous times of the new weapons of defense and offense about one of the hardest, most important, and most fascinating jobs in this defense effort of ours.

Few words of praise have been said of the task of clothing and feeding the men, furnishing transportation, gasoline, and routings for the army—the "house-keeping" of our all-out effort.

This job is that of the Quartermaster Corps of the Army. In the current maneuvers in Louisiana between the Second and Third Armies, the Quartermaster of the Fourth Corps Area has the gigantic duty of supplying the 303,000 men of the Third Army with subsistence, clothing, and the gasoline needed for a mechanized Army.

The amounts of food that will be consumed in these maneuvers is stupendous. Enough coffee will be drunk to float a 20,000 ship. A freight train two and one-half miles long would be necessary to carry the 6,696,300 pounds of beef the boys will eat.

It would take a champion, egg-a-day hen 100,000 years to lay enough eggs to supply the boys with breakfasts.

QUALITY

The bombing and fighting planes of the Army are equal in quality to any in the world, according to Robert A. Lovett, Assistant Secretary of War for Air. He says that production is beginning to roll and that the United States is now able to equip combat units at the rate of about one squadron every other day.

By selling on the Henderson tobacco market, the farmer is assured of prompt sales of his tobacco with no blocks. Therefore, his tobacco will reach the buyers in the best possible condition, free from damages resulting from having the tobacco carried over on a block sale, and eliminating the necessity for long stayovers in town while waiting for the sale of his leaf.

SILK SHORTAGE BEING FELT IN NORTH CAROLINA

—RALEIGH—The silk shortage has affected the jobs of approximately 10,000 North Carolinians, the state employment service disclosed Thursday in announcing the results of a survey conducted as of September 1. The industry normally employs about 30,500 Tar Heels.

Because of the shortage, 4,300 workers have lost their jobs and more than 5,000 others are on a part-time basis, the survey showed. Employers expect 1,400 additional workers to lose their jobs by September 15 and 3,250 more by the end of the month.

"The silk mill employers are uncertain as to future operations the employment service said in a how much substitute fiber can be obtained and even if the supply is sufficient, no one can foretell the trend of the future tastes of the American woman. Will she accept mesh, nylon or rayon hose?"

The employment office is attempting to place the workers in related occupations.

Henderson Tobacco Market Again Using Half-Day Sales Plan

Smith H. Young, Sales Supervisor of the Henderson Tobacco Market states that the half-day selling system is again in effect on the Henderson tobacco market during the 1941 season. Since its adoption three years ago the warehousemen, buyers and farmers have been so well pleased with it that it has been used exclusively since.

By selling on the Henderson tobacco market, the farmer is assured of prompt sales of his tobacco with no blocks. Therefore, his tobacco will reach the buyers in the best possible condition, free from damages resulting from having the tobacco carried over on a block sale, and eliminating the necessity for long stayovers in town while waiting for the sale of his leaf.

On the Henderson market with its two sets of buyers, four full half-day sales are guaranteed every day throughout the season. By eliminating the blocks,

THE HERITAGE OF HISTORY

Historians are familiar with what happened thousands of years ago. They know that even at that time there was almost a complete framework for all our present-day experiments in politics, economics, literature, drama and government.

But the average man of today has an idea that the ancients were simply "a bunch of heathens", ignorant and depraved, unmindful of the fact that however limited they may have been in some respects, without the use and enjoyment of the telephone, the radio, the motion picture, the automobile and the airplane, they were really very similar to ourselves.

"History repeats itself" only in the application or the results of certain fundamental principles of human behavior. It does not mean that the world is going on like the endless swinging of a pendulum, getting nowhere in particular. The whole character and life of the people as a whole have gone steadily upward, whatever may have been the outward form of culture and manner of living. What is of greatest interest and value today is not so much the actions of particular individuals in history, as it is the movement and trends of the people as a whole, as humanity kept marching on.

Just what historians 5,000 year hence will think of our present civilization, no man can tell. It would probably be a confusing picture if they should deal exclusively with what many of us regard as the most important events of the day. Some of our leaders in journalism, politics and industry are saying that the second world war will be "the end of civilization". There have been many such "ends", but the world has gone on, because beneath these "catastrophes" there has been a basis for progress which could not be halted.

HOME OWNERS FORUM

PLYWOOD is proving the practical solution to many home renovation problems, both inside and out. Being strong and easily installed by direct nailing to the studs and joists, it is equally serviceable for walls and ceilings as well as partitions of every description.

Unlimited decorative treatments are possible with plywood as it forms an excellent base for painting. Following the filling, taping and sanding of the joints, a couple of coats produce a beautiful finish, rivaling the more expensive plaster or panel installations. And, what is equally important, the paint styling can be altered periodically at low cost according to decorative trends.

For cleanliness as well as maintenance economy, mix all the paint on the job from soft paste white lead and the pure vehicle ingredients secured according to the finish and color desired.

White lead paint is the ideal wall decoration as it is impervious to the action of moisture, dirt and grease, any stains which may result being readily removed by simple washing. This assures cleanliness as well as the utmost in service and durability from every styling treatment.

How can torn awnings be best repaired?
—Undoubtedly the most durable repairs are achieved by sewing patches to the underside of torn sections.

However, rubber cement patches require far less time and labor and appear equally effective for all practical purposes. Lay the awning face down on a flat surface and apply the cement freely to the patch as well as to the awning area which it is to cover. When the cement has set sufficiently to become strongly tacky, force the patch into firm adhesion by heavy pressure.

There is one sure way for young people to get ahead in life: Work and save.

Prize Hen Eggs Will Be At Fair

Raleigh, September—North Carolina hens will have something to cackle over this year—their eggs will be on display for the first time at the State Fair to be held at Raleigh, October 14-18.

Dr. J. S. Dorton, manager of the fair, today announced the "Egg Department" as new division of the fair, expressing the hope that the exhibits will stimulate greater interest in promoting the production of "more eggs for national defense".

The "egg show" will be in charge of C. W. Sheffield, marketing specialist of the State Department of Agriculture; Dr. Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department, State College and C. P. Parrish, State College extension poultryman.

This is about the time of year when every youngster still has a chance to lead his grade. Many individuals are so anxious for something that they haven't got that they haven't sense enough to appreciate what they have.
