FEATURED AT 2ND ANNUAL JULY FIESTA

Back To Sax For Jimmie

Around The Town

WITH LIN HOLLOWAY

The bugs of this burg may well set their toolies atwinkling 'cause on the 23rd of the month which is now in our midst, Erskine Hawkins, the Twentieth Century Gabriel and his great band will arrive in the Friendly city of Industry and Education to hand out some mighty fine jive in the City Armory. The Hawk comes to town presented by Lin Holloway & Company featuring Jimmy Mitchell and Gene Rogers. The process is right and the night is right so Jack, don't you be wrong and stay away.

The cats are digging in for the monthly payday campaign. The chicks doll up for one week before that armored truck comes to town to pick up those cabbage leaves to distribute among the doughboys on the post. Yours truly over heard some chicks as far away as Richmond on a recent tour planning to come down to Durham and stake a claim on some of the gold which will be in the mits of the guys whose only hope in life for a while is to find someone or something to spend it on. Three days after the cats are laid out with that tip cash, they are propositioning on the subject of a personal loan. The schedule they follow is thus: The first day they are loaded and balling, the second day they are half loaded and half-way balling, the third they are broke and still wanting to ball, then comes the proposition for the personal loan.

While sitting in a local nite-spot one eve minding my own business, I was approached by a local youth who is making the inevitable sojourn to the army who started laying down a dissertation concerning a local teacher. Quoth he, "She used to teach me, but now she hangs out with me." As is natural, I told the lad not to tell me but so much 'cause he would see his utterances in print. He didn't seem to heed my warning so here is his story." Mrs. _____ who now teaches at school taught me when I was in the second grade in school. One night when I was sitting in the Inn, she came in laying on me a lot of stuff about some argument she had with her husband and telling me how she needed some moral support. I was fairly respectful to her because I always hold people in her position in the highest esteem. But when she became more 'friendly,' I followed suit. Soon I found her 'leading' me, not against my wishes into some of the more unsavory sections of our city, and found her out-drinking me so I loosened up. Man, a chick like that shouldn't be in the school system." (NOTE: All that has appeared in this paragraph has been what was told by a youth who is soon to leave the city to join the armed forces. It is printed only with his approval and in the files of the CAROLINA TIMES are the names of all persons concerned.)

WEEKLY LESSON IN JIVE JARGON

Preliminary Examinations

During the past seven years, yours truly blazed a trail down to the local slaughter house and had his frame lamped as a preliminary of taking the tour down to the Post at Bragg. A deuce of sawbones were in the optic division and layed a frantic blazer upon your bare frames. One M. D. gazed down your kisser and then did a scribble on a pad as to whether you were well layed out with grub-crushers. Another lamped you from the conk to the stomp to see if he could dig any queers in your construction. After the re-ragging session, all the cats out a cruiser to the Inn and picked up on a pop to cool their heated heads and to lamp the jockies hanging out with Johnnie Doughboy's old lady.

31 N. C. NEGROES JOIN AS BLUE JACKETS

GREAT LAKES, Ill. — Thirty one North Carolina men of the Negro Race have just begun their training to become Blue Jackets in Uncle Sam's Navy. They recently reported to the U. S. Naval Training Station here.

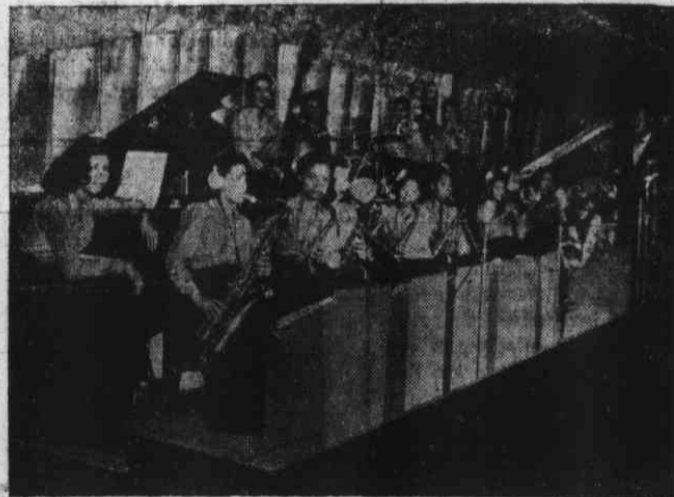

Now in "boot camp," these men are being given instruction in military drill, seamanship, and naval procedure. Soon they will be given a series of aptitude tests to determine whether they will be held for further specialized training, or assigned to active duty with the Fleet, or at a naval shore station. Upon completion of their "boot" training, they will receive a

HOW RUMORS SPREAD

Martinez, Cal. — A frightened woman telephone the Sheriff's office that she had heard seven shots, a scream and someone say, "You've shot his head off." Immediate investigation proved that the seven shots were fired at a raccoon in a chicken coop, with the result that the coop's head was shot off.

LUCKY MILLINDER

...THE DYNAMAESTRO...

LUCKY was a high school and college track star...

WHEN Capone lost ten thousand dollars at a dice game, Millinder said, "Let me rub the dice for luck." Capone won 50,000 dollars he christened him "LUCKY MILLINDER" and bought him his first band in gratitude.

MILLINDER, now one of the music world's top band-leaders, made a career out of being LUCKY! But he also created his own luck. He's currently making his fourth grub-stake on a sensational tour with the INK SPOTS, of the leading civic auditoriums for GALE AGENCY.

AT 17 he spread a story around Chicago that Lucius Millinder was the son of a millionaire New York showman. So the owner of the Cicero Cotton Club hired him at a fabulous salary!
