FOR 25 YEARS THE OUTSTANDING NEGRO WEEKLY OF THE CAROLINAS

VOLUME 27—NUMBER 43 DURHAM, N. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29th, 1949 PRICE: TEN CENTS

ABC Officers Arrested For Tying Negro Up By Hands

SCOTLAND NECK Two Halifax County Alcoholic Beverage Control officers reverted from the usual pattern set by Southern law enforcement officers in handling Negro prisoners by hanging their prisoner by the wrists instead of by the neck.

Probably the only reason Lee Hill, 25 year-old tenant farmer, was not hanged by the neck was that the officers, S. E. Ewell and W. A. Kilpatrick, wanted him to feel the beating they administered to him with a flashlight, a pistol, and a stick.

For their part in the coercion, the officers have been arrested by Sheriff H. A. House and placed under bonds of $250 each. Ewell, Chief ABC Officer of this county, and Kilpatrick are scheduled to be given hearings before Magistrate William Howard on Monday night. Both deny Hill's charges.

Hill said he was arrested at a liquor stall, where he had gone with two companions about 8:00 Friday night, by Ewell, Kilpatrick, and two other officers. The ABC officers returned to Scotland Neck about 10:30 where Hill claimed Draper and Baisley, the other two officers in the arrest, left the car and went inside a cafe.

He was not taken to jail immediately because the officers awaited the Night Policeman. When the Night Policeman, W. Z. Moore arrived, Hill said, Ewell got the car key from Draper and drove off with him and Kilpatrick.

Hill said the officers stopped about four miles northeast of Scotland Neck, handcuffed him to a tree, and alternately beat him with a flashlight and a pistol to make him tell the names of the two companions who had escaped in the raid of the still.

School Agrees To Teach White Supremacy For $50,000,000

By CAL JOHNSON Special to CAROLINA TIMES NATCHEZ, MISS.

How even an educational institution can prostitute its soul came to light here this week when it was discovered that a rich planter and oilman had given a grant of $50,000,000 to the little-known Jefferson Military College located here.

The school bears the reputation of being the place where Jefferson Davis, president of the United Confederate States, studied.

The joke of the whole thing is that the grant specifies that the college must teach and disseminate through every medium possible the "true principles" of Jeffersonian Democracy and the Constitution, Christianity and the superiority of the Anglo-Saxon and Latin-American races.

Judge George Armstrong, donor of the grant, is a typical power-drunk land-owner of the old South. He was careful to make acceptance of the terms in his grant certain. He demanded that the Board of Trustees be reduced from 12 to five members and that he be given the right to name three of them, and the other two by retiring trustees.

Armstrong named his son, A. J. Armstrong, as one trustee and the son immediately announced acceptance of the grant.

It was further stipulated in the grant that the school must change its charter to exclude "Communists or persons with Communist connections and any person of African or Asiatic origin."

The faculty and student body must primarily be constituted of "persons of Anglo-Saxon or Latin-American origin and of the Christian faith and advocates of free enterprise."

The gift includes five-sixths of Judge Armstrong's mineral rights on 42,000 acres in Adams, Jefferson and Wilkinson Counties, all strung along the Mississippi River and around this crossroad city of the Old South.

Some 26,000 other acres were conveyed outright to the school. Oil experts estimated that the properties and rights will eventually yield more than $50,000,000.

NAACP Spurred On Failure Of Congress To Act

NEW YORK

Spurred by the adjournment of Congress without passage of a single civil rights measure, the national office of the NAACP moved speedily this week to rally the Association's membership in a nationwide drive for enactment of this legislation early in the next session.

Instructions for carrying out the plans developed last week by the NAACP national emergency committee on civil rights were sent today to the 1600 branches and 29 state conferences of the Association.

The state conferences were urged to call a meeting of all branch presidents within their respective jurisdictions for the purpose of formulating plans for observance of national civil rights mobilization period, November through January 17.

Local branches were asked to send delegations to call upon members of Congress while at home and upon local political leaders; to solicit the cooperation of trade unions, churches, fraternal groups and other organizations; to organize mass meetings; and to select delegates to attend a three-day conference in Washington, January 15-17.

"This project," Roy Wilkins, acting NAACP secretary, said in announcing the plans, "has been initiated in response to a resolution passed at the 40th annual conference in Los Angeles. In this drive we intend to touch every member of our organization, to make him aware of a personal responsibility to work actively for passage of civil rights legislation."

GREENSBORO

A suit was filed here Tuesday by two Negro students in the Middle District Court, against officials of the University of North Carolina, charging violation of their constitutional rights when their applications for entrance to the university law school were turned down.

The students, Harold Thomas Epps, Asheville, and Robert Davis Glass of Belmont, are now enrolled in the law school at the North Carolina College at Durham.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the University held last June 2, following the filing of Epps' application in April, 1948, along with those of James Robert Walker of States-

Broadcast To Be Concluding Event In Founder's Week

By Staff Correspondence A nation-wide broadcast dedicated to the memory of the late Dr. James E. Shepard, founder-president of North Carolina College, will be the concluding event in the college's Founder's Week Celebration, it was announced here this week.

The Southernaires, world-famed musical quartet, will dedicate their broadcast of Sunday, November 6, to Dr. Shepard and the Shepard Memorial Foundation, according to James T. Taylor, director of the foundation. The program will be broadcast over ABC at 10:30 a. m.

The Southernaires will devote the full program to Dr. Shepard's life and work, interspersing narrative commentary with some of the late educator's favorite selections.

Although final arrangements for the College's Founder's Day observance, which is held annually on November 3, Dr. Shepard's birthday, have not been announced, Taylor said here this week that the program would feature a public service followed by the annual trek to Dr. Shepard's grave.

Contributions to the Foundation's fund raising campaign are coming into the director's office in "gratifying amounts," Taylor said. Taylor said the response from national organizations had been "surprisingly" (Please turn to Page Eight)
