(Continued from Page One) that has been handed down since the foundation and setting up of America needs a psychoanalyst to do something with him.

Governor Scott gave little comment when interviewed by newsmen after the statements made in regards to him by Hamilton. He said that Hamilton has a right to say what he says. "What he's trying to do," the Governor said, "is to get an argument so he can have a springboard to start from."

"I'd be dignifying his statements, if I answered," the Governor said.

Attorney General McMullen said that the people of the state are not going to support the Klan. He said also that no action is being planned immediately against the Klan but added that investigations by the State Bureau of Investigation may be forthcoming.

Miss H. E. Murray Succumbs Here At Hospital

Miss Harriett Ethel Murray of 609 Dunbar Street, died Monday, December 12 around 12:30 p. m., at Lincoln Hospital where she was scheduled to undergo an operation. Miss Murray had been in declining health for the last few years, according to her sister.

A native of Greenville, South Carolina, Miss Murray came to Durham some 20 years ago and had been employed at the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company for about the same length of time.

Miss Murray received her education at Union High School and Sterling College in Greenville. She held the Bachelor of Science degree in Commerce Commerce from Sterling College.

An active member of Saint

Matthew C. M. E. Church, Miss Murray was Connectional Officer of the Woman's Missionary Society of the C. M. E. Church and Vice-President of the Annual Conference of Women's Missionary Societies. She was also member of the Junior Dorcas Club of Durham.

Trigg—

It is pointed out here that a "recognized Negro spokesman" is needed at State level to continue to oppose aggressive Negro movements toward integration into the education and economic life of the state.

Dr. Trigg, it is believed here, can be depended upon to oppose the entrance of Negroes into the State University and to oppose court action to equalize educational facilities within the state.

Probe—

(Continued from Page One) adopted by several of the state hospitals, Dr. Young said that the number of admissions has been determined to large extent by the available space rather than by the needs. He added that approximately 1,400 more persons are being cared for now in the State hospitals, including the one at Butner recently established, than were being cared for four years ago.

Dr. Young pointed to the increase in staff personal and the areas in which the staffs work. He said that the number of positions has increased since the end of the war when a low figure of about twelve and thirteen doctors were struggling to take care of the hospitals to a figure of about thirty-five. Many of the physicians, he added, are certified specialists and have considerable experience as psychiatrists.

In referring to the planned physical expansion of the state hospitals, Dr. Young said that $22,000,000 had been granted in appropriations from the General Assemblies of 1947 and 1949. Not half of this amount has been placed under contract, however, but buildings are being planned for expenditure of other funds from the Permanent Improvement appropriations. He also cited the fact that improvement has been made in the maintenance appropriations.

The State Legislature has also made an appropriation for a mental hygiene fund and this, together with the Federal funds, is being spent in educational, informational, training and other clinical activities outside of the State hospitals in the communities, he said.

Kennedy—

Gore was elected chairman for next year's Conference. Anderson acted as toastmaster at the banquet and J. C. Hubbard, chairman of the Oconeechee divisional committee, introduced Kennedy.

Kennedy, who is also on the board of directors of the local John Avery Boys' Club, told the group that he was impressed with the necessity of staying with the fundamentals in a given situation. He stressed the fact that only in this way can we hope to get at the "grass roots" of a condition.

He voiced his opinion to the fact that boys who come into contact with Scout movement become new creatures. In view of this, he said, and we see the helplessness and vulnerability of the human race, we realize that we are doing something of great value. He urged the leaders not to become weary but realize that the worth of their work was great.

The Durham County Grand juror said that he thought that there was enough literature, enough speeches made to adequately express the philosophy of the movement; but, he added, "there is not enough honest, straightforward, hard-hitting work on these problems.

He exclaimed, "unless we love people, irrespective of color, or race, we're not going to do much to help people."

Walker Honored In California

An original woodburning by Douglas R. Walker, formerly of Durham, is being shown in the windows of J. C. Penny Company of San Bernardino, California, where Walker is now residing.

The picture is Mr. Walker's conception of the "Garden of Bethsemane," and shows Christ kneeling in prayer in the garden. Detailed trees and flowers surround the lone figure of the Savior.

Walker is a former newspaper carrier of the CAROLINA TIMES.
