S. C. Law School Approved By ABA

ORANGETOWN, S. C. The Law School of State A. and M. College was approved for accreditation by the American Bar Association at their annual session held in Chicago according to a telegram received by Benner C. Turner, Dean of the Law School.

The telegram to Dean Benner C. Turner from John G. Hervey, Advisor to the Section of Legal Education and Admission to the Bar of the American Bar Association read "Association approved your school by unanimous vote today. Congratulations. (Signed) John G. Hervey."

The Law School began operation at State A. and M. College September 17, 1947 and is now in the third year of its operation. In September, 1949 the Law School occupied quarters in a new building erected for that purpose. Application was made to the American Bar Association and to the Association of American Law Schools for approval as an accredited Law School.

In November, 1949 inspection was made by Mr. Hervey on behalf of both Associations. A report was made by Mr. Hervey to the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar, and as a result of recommendations made by it the American Bar Association voted approval of the Law School of State A. and M. College.

Herbert U. Fiebelman, Associate Editor, Commercial Law Journal in the February, 1950 issue, writing on new law school buildings referred to the new law school building at State A. and M. College as one of America's important law schools. In the article it was stated that the State A. and M. College, Orangeburg, S. C., has just completed the building for its new law school at a cost in excess of $200,000. (Please turn to Page Eight)

Collins Charges Secrecy Used By NCTA Officials

In a statement released to the CAROLINA TIMES this week Prof. W. R. Collins, chairman of the Northeastern District of the Nominating Committee of the North Carolina Teachers' Association charged that the present administration of the organization is guilty of "secret maneuvering" to discredit the Northeastern District's choice for president of the Association, Dr. F. L. Atkins, president of Winston Salem Teachers' College.

Prof. Collins is principal of the Negro high school in Smithfield where he has made an enviable record as an educator.

The Smithfield educator charges that the Northeastern District nominated Dr. Atkins and the nominating committee of the association placed his name on the ballot but that the present administration of the Association is losing no time in sponsoring its own choice for president.

As partial proof of the secret maneuvering, M. R. Collins charges that "even before the official ballot could be officially presented to the public, at least one representative of the Executive Committee had discussed the ballot before the organizing teachers in the unit discrediting the Northeastern District's choice because of his health."

Said Prof. Collins further, "Dr. Atkins became disturbed over the possibility that he had requested the consideration . . . and had requested that his name be taken off the ballot," until he was assured that it was the unanimous choice of the Nominating Committee.

"There are those of us who recognize his present physical handicap from its inert effect only, which would be less in value than the contribution he has been able to make in spite of his handicap to the educational growth of the State — which to us makes him one of North Carolina's leading educators justly deserving of your favorable consideration on election day," said Prof. Collins.

Judge Bolin Resigns From NAACP Board

NEW YORK Declaring that the 20 vice-presidents of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, of which she is one, are merely names on letter-heads, Judge Jane B. Bolin, justice of the Domestic Relations Court of New York City, announced her resignation here Thursday, March 9.

Announcement of the resignation came as no surprise to newspaper circles in New York, due to the present rumors over the past several months that Judge Bolin was at odds with the powers that be in the NAACP.

In a telephone conversation Tuesday night with Roy Wilkins, acting secretary of the NAACP, requesting a statement on Judge Bolin's resignation, the Carolina Times was told that evidently Judge Bolin had sent copies of her letter to the press several days before it was actually mailed to President Spingarn and consequently the Board had not had time to prepare a statement on same. Following the Tuesday night telephone conversation, the Carolina Times receiving the following telegram from the NAACP Wednesday, March 15 at 1:35 P. M.: Regret that comment on Judge Bolin letter by Chairman of our Board being held up and cannot reach you by your deadline tonight. Signed: ROY WILKINS.

In a lengthy letter, addressed to President Arthur Spingarn of the NAACP, Judge Bolin charged that "vice presidents cannot participate in determining policy or program" of the association and that the twenty vice presidents' names are merely used to "lend prestige to the association and to mislead the public that these persons have responsibility in formulating policy."

Said Judge Bolin further: "I am further of the belief that the NAACP program has been . . . (Please turn to Page Eight)"

Mississippi Seeks Death Penalty For Negro Slayers

KOSCIUSKO, MISS. For the first time since 1890 and the first time in the history of Attala County, the State of Mississippi is asking the death penalty for the slaying of a Negro by a white person.

Windol Whitt and two other white men are charged with the brutal massacre of three Negro children and the wounding of a fourth and the children's stepfather, near here on the night of January 8.

Whitt and the two other men, Leon Turner, 38, and Malcolm Whitt, 27, brother of Windol, have all entered pleas of "not guilty." Whitt went on trial Wednesday and trial of the other two men will follow in consecutive weeks.

Windol Whitt is charged with the slaying of four-year-old Ruby Nell Harris, daughter of Thomas Harris, 50-year-old tenant farmer. The other two children murdered are Frankie, 10 and Mary Burnside Thurman, 8.

The white men also critically wounded Harris, shooting him in the back and lung, from which he is now paralyzed and Harris' stepdaughter, Pearlina, whom they also attempted to rape. Pearlina is recovering from a bullet wound received at the time of the slaying. Harris' wife escaped by fleeing in her night clothes with her two-week-old infant. Harris and his stepdaughter, together with 19 other witnesses will appear for the State.

Described as a vengeance slaying because they believed the Negro family reported them to Negroes To Seek Entrance To Delaware U.

WILMINGTON, DEL. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People today sought admission of Negro students to the University of Delaware, in a suit filed in Chancery Court here.

All of the plaintiffs in the case, except one, are students of Delaware State College, a Negro institution. Alleging that Delaware State is vastly inferior to the University of Delaware, they point out that accreditation of Delaware State has been withdrawn by the Middle States Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, on grounds of inferiority in curricula, physical facilities, library, laboratories, dormitories, and financial support. The college has never been accredited by the Association of American Universities.

Governor, University Trustees, Named The complaint, served on approximately forty persons comprising the Board of Trustees (including Governor Elbert N. Carvel of Delaware), the President of the University and the Committee on Admissions, charges that these defendants have denied the plaintiffs' "right and privilege to obtain college education in the only college of accredited standing maintained by the State of Delaware."

By placing the plaintiffs and others similarly situated "at a grave disadvantage with regard to obtaining a college education within the State of Delaware," the NAACP asserts, the defendants' action "amounts to denial . . . of the equal protection of the laws; is unequal, oppressive, and discriminatory; deprives the plaintiffs . . . of liberty and property without due process of law, and is unconstitutional and violative of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution and the law of the land."

The NAACP requests the court to order the trustees of the university (1) to issue application blanks to plaintiffs; (2) to consider such application blanks, when returned, without regard to plaintiffs' race or color; (3) to admit plaintiffs to the University of Delaware on the same basis as all other students if plaintiffs are found qualified.

The attorneys handling the case for the NAACP are Louis L. Redding of Wilmington and NAACP Assistant Special Counsel (Please turn to Page Eight).
