

Hawkins Is Named To Head North State Dental Group

Dr. J. D. Hawkins of Henderson was named president-elect, of the Old North State Dental Society here at North Carolina College Wednesday afternoon during final sessions of the two day meeting of the third annual conference of the state-wide Negro dental organization.

Other officers elected at the concluding session were Dr. M. L. Watts of Raleigh, secretary-treasurer; and Dr. F. W. Jones, Elizabeth City, assistant secretary.

Among those named to the executive committee were Dr. H. M. Dowdy, Washington; Dr. L. I. Strickland; Reidsville; Dr. J. D. Martin, Charlotte; Dr. C. B. Jones, Elizabeth City; and Dr. A. L. Cronwell, Winston-Salem.

According to the society's organization, retiring president E. P. Norris, Sr. of Durham, turned the presidency this year over to Dr. W. L. T. Miller of Greensboro, who will hold office until 1952 when Dr. Hawkins will take office.

The sessions here were highlighted Tuesday with the President's annual address and the reading of a paper by Doctor George S. Kirkland of the North Carolina Dental Society.

In Wednesday's concluding session, Dr. T. Mitchell Bundrant, instructor of oral surgery at Columbia University's Medical School gave an illustrated lecture on "Oral Surgery and Surgical Care."

All session were held in North Carolina College's Science Building.

"D DAY PRAYER" WRITTEN BY NEGRO COMPOSER

PHILADELPHIA — Walter Anderson, 33 year old Negro composer and head of the music department at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O., had his new tone poem, "D Day Prayer" played here this week in a gala world premiere celebration of the 6th anniversary of the invasion of Europe. The "Prayer" is based on a 1944 address by the late President, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The tone poem, sung by the fifty-voiced choir of Temple University, was under the direction of Mrs. Elaine Brown of Philadelphia. The solo part was read by Robert Grooters of Iowa Falls, Iowa who is a student at Temple.

A. T. Spaulding Named NCC's "Alumnus Of The Year"

Asa T. Spaulding, vice-president and actuary of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, was named North Carolina College Alumnus of the Year here Monday night at the end of the college's Annual Alumni Day.

The award was presented to Mrs. Spaulding, who represented her husband in his absence. Dr. J. M. Hubbard, alumni trustee, was the main speaker during banquet ceremonies honoring 1950 graduates in the college dining hall.

J. T. Taylor, Director of the James E. Shepard Memorial Foundation, was master of ceremonies.

President Alfonso Elder of North Carolina College; M. S. Johnson, Director of Alumni Relations; and representatives from alumni chapters throughout the nation, were among the other speakers.

Senior class president, Perry Gilliard, of Philadelphia, responded to the welcome address. Several North Carolina College faculty members who have served the college for 20 years or more, were heard in brief speeches. Among the speakers were Miss Ruth G. Rush, professor of education and former Dean of Women; Mrs. J. W. Harris, and Miss Pauline N. Newton, both of the Department of English; and Mrs. Frances M. Egleson, Registrar.

Dr. Hubbard, in the main speech of the evening paid high tribute to the late Dr. James E. Shepard, the college's founder.

Sen. Glen Taylor To Ask Review Of Ala. Conviction

Washington, D. C. — Senator Glen H. Taylor (D. Idaho) announced that his attorney last week filed a Petition for Certiorari in the Supreme Court of the United States requesting review of his 1948 conviction and six months prison sentence for disorderly conduct by the Circuit Court of Jefferson County, Alabama.

The case grew out of the Senator's arrest and prosecution when, in response to an invitation to address a meeting of the Southern Negro Youth Congress in Birmingham, Alabama, on May 1, 1948, he attempted to enter the church where the meeting was being held through the door marked "Negro entrance" for the purpose of testing the Constitutionality of the Birmingham ordinance requiring separate entrances, exits and seating arrangements for Negroes and whites at all meetings, theatres, entertainments, etc.

Although the charge preferred against the Senator by the City of Birmingham was disorderly conduct, he contended at the trial that the entire purpose was to enforce the segregation ordinance. He challenged the constitutionality of the ordinance on the grounds that it violates the provisions of the 14th Amendment guaranteeing the equal protection of the laws, and on the further grounds that it placed an illegal restriction upon the rights of free speech and assembly.

The Trial Court refused to consider the Constitutional issue on the ground that this was an ordinary case of disorderly conduct in which the question of segregation was not involved. The Alabama Court of Appeals sustained the conviction on the theory that the church had a right voluntarily to make provision for separate entrances, and that the Senator's attempt to endanger someone who may not realize how dangerous these tubes can be."

Most practical way to dispose of spent tubes, he added, is to dig a disposal pit at some spot where it is not likely that anyone will dig into it, place the tubes to be broken in this hole, cover with four or five inches of soil, pour water over the soil until it is saturated, and then use the point of the shovel to break the tubes by stabbing. While doing this the person should not stand directly over the hole. After the job has been finished, the point of the shovel should be cut into the ground several times to rid it of anything from the tube that may be kept away from the disposal pit where the tubes have been placed.

"Should a tube be broken in a room," he asserted, "get out at once and stay out until all dust has settled. Do not attempt to pick up broken bits of tube with the fingers. Never place discarded tubes with garbage or other rubbish, because you will to ignore these "arrangements" and to "override established custom" had a tendency to breach the peace. In reaching these conclusions, the Court ignored the fact that separate white and Negro entrances were provided for only after the minister of the Church was arrested on the afternoon preceding the incident and charged with violating the ordinance by failing to arrange for segregation at the afternoon session.

The brief in support of the Petition for Certiorari points out that even if the theory on which the Court of Appeals decided the case were valid, it would not circumvent a decision of the basic constitutional question. For, as the Supreme Court recently held in the restrictive covenant cases (Shelley vs. Kraemer), the State cannot constitutionally use its power to enforce an agreement for segregation voluntarily made by private individuals.

The brief stated that this is the first case before the Supreme Court to question the Constitutionality of segregation laws of the Birmingham type, prohibiting the comingling of Negroes and whites at entertainments, public meetings and the like.

The brief further states: "The fact that here it was a white person, and not a Negro, who was the victim of the State's discriminatory action in no wise diminishes its importance of the case or weakens the claim of constitutional right here invoked."

"On the contrary, the very fact that petitioner is white serves dramatically to demonstrate that compulsory racial segregation infringes the civil rights of the white person, as well as the Negro. For it denies to those white citizens, who, like petitioner, desire freely to assemble and associate with Negroes the right to do so. It discriminates against the growing number of white Americans who utterly reject the doctrine of racial superiority as false, undemocratic and alien to all that is best in the American tradition. It penalizes those whites who wish voluntarily to practice the principle of racial equality which the Fourteenth Amendment was designed to secure and which has now become a part of international law, under the U. N. Charter and Declaration of Human Rights, setting a pattern of conduct for all nations.

The brief also urges that the segregation ordinance is unconstitutional because, as in the case of Senator Taylor, it makes acquiescence in racial supremacy through the use of a segregated entrance a condition on the exercise of the individual's rights of free speech and free assembly. Such a previous restraint on the exercise of these fundamental rights, the brief argues, can be justified only to avert "a clear and present dan-

Juan Hernandez and Claude Jarman, Jr. are two of the chief protagonists in the "Intruder In The Dust," MGM's much-discussed filmation of the powerful William Faulkner novel, which comes to the BOOKER T. THEATER screen this week.

Produced and directed by Clarence Brown, the picture was filmed on location in Oxford, Miss. Also in the cast are David Brian, Porter Hall, Elizabeth Patterson, Charles Kempner and Will Geer.

Deadline Set For GI Bill Training

The majority of the World War II veterans who have started and actually are pursuing GI Bill training on that date, however, have the right to continue their courses. Furthermore, the veteran who has started a course and who has continued in it will be considered to be in training even though he has temporarily interrupted the course for the summer vacation or for other reasons beyond his control.

The GI Bill provides that generally training must be initiated by July 25, 1951, or four years after a veteran's discharge, whichever is later, and it must be completed by July 25, 1956.

In view of the provisions of the law, the VA has ruled, the only exception to the rule will be those who were discharged after July 25, 1947, and those who enlisted or reenlisted under the Armed Forces Voluntary Re-enlistment Act.

Those veterans who have started and actually are pursuing GI Bill training on that date, however, have the right to continue their courses. Furthermore, the veteran who has started a course and who has continued in it will be considered to be in training even though he has temporarily interrupted the course for the summer vacation or for other reasons beyond his control.

Once a veteran completes or discontinues his program of GI Bill training after the 1951 date, he may not start another course. Veterans who enlisted or reenlisted under the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act (between October 6, 1945, and October 5, 1946) are not bound by the entry or completion deadlines. Instead, they have four years from the end of that enlistment or reenlistment period in which to start, and nine years from that time in which to complete their courses of training.

Now's The Time For Bathing Suit Figure

By KAY VAUGHN

It's June and time for you to go out to the seashore. But remember those bulgy figures stuffed in bathing suits last year... and how you laughed? Well, you don't want to join that boxon brigade on a beach this year. It's still time to pare down that figure by merely cutting your diet in half and doing 25 to 50 bends and stretches, according to where you need to lose excess. Begin by trying on last year's suit. If it's too tight, don't pamper yourself by buying a larger size. Make up your mind to slim down and be the bathing beauty you were in '49.

By all means don't neglect the electrolysis treatments of removing unwanted hair from legs, arms and underarms. The electrolysis is guaranteed permanent but there are many temporary ones on the market. Remember, hairy legs and arms never bring male approval.

Another warning to the 1950 miss is a choice of bathing suits. The best looking ones don't necessarily have to be the modest. French bathing suits require a special type model figure. Remember, even on the beach, there is beauty in some concealment.
