

MD. U. ORDERED TO ADMIT NEGRO

Joe Louis May Fight Ezz. Again

New York — Well, it looks as though the old Brown Bomber can't make up his mind. He, this week, reversed his dressing room statement of September 27, following his defeat at the hands of Ezzard Charles, that he was all "washed up" and said Monday that "what you say in the dressing room right after a fight can't always hold. I can't say definitely about not fighting again, either officially or in exhibitions. I won't make any decision for a month."

Joe has returned to New York to resume his duties as boxing director of the International Boxing Club.

FARMER MURDERS LANDLORD AND THEN ESCAPES

Goldsboro — A Negro farmer who shot and killed his landlord when the latter insisted that he keep a dog for him was still at large Wednesday after escaping from the scene of the slaying near here Sunday. Police stated that their investigation revealed that James Henry Garner, owner of the farm became angry when his tenant Aaron Artis sent the dog back to him by his son and a nephew, protesting that he kept too much noise at night and that because of it his family had been kept awake for a week.

The dog had been kept in a barn near the home of Artis. When Gardner went to the barn later and discovered the dog was gone an argument with the Negro ensued. During the argument Gardner is reported to have stated that the barn was on his land and that he would see to it that the dog stayed in it.

Gardner left the scene but returned a few minutes later with the dog and a double-barreled shotgun. As he entered the yard Artis shot him with a 22 rifle, the bullet entering the heart. Artis then told his son to call the sheriff and to tell him that he would find him down in the cornfield.

Sheriff Paul Garrison stated that when he, Deputy Roy Percise and Jailer L. R. Cobb arrived on the scene that they found Gardner lying on the ground across the dog chain with the dog at his feet. The shotgun which had not been fired contained two shells.

Klan Chief And Four Others Held In S. C.

Conway, S. C. — As an aftermath of the August 26 Ku Klux Klan parade and rioting in which a robed off-duty policeman was slain, five men including the KKK grand dragon of the Carolinas, were ordered held for General sessions court here Saturday.

Nine other men who were also arrested and charged at the time with participating in a conspiracy to commit mob violence were released at the preliminary hearing when Sheriff have enough evidence to hold them.

Slaying of the policeman, J. D. Johnson, took place in front of a Negro dance hall at Myrtle Beach following two Klan parades. The policeman was wearing his uniform under the robe at the time he was fatally shot.

Sheriff Sasser stated that Thomas L. Hamilton confessed to leading the parade in front of the Negro dance hall on both occasions. Hamilton is a Klan leader from Leesville, S. C. He stated he led the parade by the dance hall the first time and then returned a second time after being warned that another parade by the hall would cause bloodshed.

Sasser stated that at least 300 shots were fired into a dance hall which was almost totally wrecked by the rioting Klansmen. Chas. Fitzgerald, owner and operator of the place, was at first held by the officers but when it was discovered that the Klan had seized him and locked him in a trunk of one of the automobiles while the shooting was going on, he was released.

Sheriff Sasser said that information uncovered in the investigation was to the effect that none of the shots were fired by Negroes.

Muriel Kahn, famous soprano and graduate of Palmer Memorial Institute, cancelled an engagement in Baltimore recently when she discovered that the theatre maintains a jim crow policy. Miss Kahn is playing in the musical play "The Barrier" with Lawrence Tibbett and William Clary.

La. Names First Negro 4-H Agent

Miss Gloria Bell has been appointed first State 4-H club agent for Louisiana rural Negro boys and girls, according to a report received this week by the U. S. Department of Agriculture from the Louisiana State Extension Service.

The report says that Miss Bell's duties will include promoting 4-H club work among the State's 17,000 colored clubbers, and assisting the colored parish agents with the development of plans for an expanded club program.

Miss Bell was graduated from Southern University, Baton Rouge, La., in 1948. Since that time she has served as a home demonstration agent in Webster Parish, La., and as a teacher of vocational home economics at the Couchatta, La., high school.

R. J. Courtnie, State leader of Negro Extension work in Louisiana, points out in the report that there is tremendous need for a State club agent. He says that plans are underway for the construction of a new and larger Negro State 4-H camp. Also, says that club enrollment in Louisiana can easily be doubled.

With the appointment of Miss Bell in Louisiana, all of the Southern States now have Negro 4-H agents except Florida, Oklahoma, and Tennessee.

Miss Bell has already assumed her duties in the State office at Southern University.

Wants Annulment; She's White And Not 25

Los Angeles, Calif. — Leon Bryant filed suit in Superior Court last Saturday for annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Jean Ann Bryant on the grounds that she deceived him as to her racial identity and age, and falsely represented herself as a Negro.

Bryant claimed that after their marriage in Yuma, Ariz., last November, he discovered that his wife was not a Negro but a Caucasian and that she is 24 years of age rather than 25, as she claimed.

GOP Candidate Makes Bid For Votes

Goldsboro — Edwin L. Gavin, Republican candidate for United States Senator, made the deepest stab of his campaign into traditionally Democrat Eastern North Carolina last Monday of both parties at a rally at the night as he made a bid for votes Wayne County Courthouse here.

Gavin called in his hearers to vote for the man and what he stands for rather than vote for a party name. He emphasized that it is not the label but the product that is important as he urged the crowd to vote for him in the general election on November 7, when he will oppose Willis Smith for the Senate seat now held by Senator Frank P. Graham.

The Sanford attorney charged that the Democrat Party of today is not the party of a few years ago. He pointed out to the audience that the Democrat platform of 1932 called for balancing the budget and economy, and then he called attention to the similarity of the Socialist Party platform of 1932 and the avowed aims of the present administration.

Gavin did not condemn all of the New Deal and Fair Deal policies. He said, "I am in favor of examining all of the legislation passed under the previous administrations, and throwing out the bad, but retaining and enlarging upon the good parts of their programs." He cited the Social Security program as one of the good measures which the New Deal extended to all of the people although it was a Republican idea in force for the benefit of government employees before the New Deal. He termed the Social Security fund as a "sacred fund" which has been exploited as a tax measure.

Gavin will return to the Eastern part of the State later in his campaign to speak in Smithfield and Wilmington. His native Roseboro was as far East as Gavin had spoken during the campaign before Monday night.

DECISIONS IN SCHOOL SUITS POSTPONED AGAIN

Greensboro — Judge Johnson J. Hayes of the Middle District Court announced here Wednesday that the decision in the equal education suit brought by three Negro students against the University of North Carolina and State officials would be handed down sometime next week.

Mrs. Moore had been a resident of Durham for a long number of years and was the widow of the late Alex Moore. She is survived by two nephews, William and Beverly Shearin and several distant relatives.

Mrs. Moore died Friday night, September 29, at Lincoln Hospital. She had been in failing health for quite some time. She was believed to have been the oldest member of St. Joseph Church.

Baltimore — Judge John T. Tucker of the Baltimore City to its graduates classes here Court directed the University of Maryland to admit a Negro Tuesday. The decision was handed as the opening round in a fight for Negroes to gain admission to the College Park Campus of the university.

Parren J. Mitchell, 27-year-old Negro of Baltimore is seeking solution through the courts after being refused entrance by the university officials. Although the university has admitted them at College Park school in Baltimore it has never admitted Negroes to its law. It has also attempted to establish graduate courses in sociology in its Baltimore schools.

Judge Tucker ruled that special courses denied Mitchell of his constitutional rights to equal opportunity, because he would be denied the right to exchange views with other students and participate in seminars and other campus activities.

Said Judge Tucker further: "The law is pretty well settled in that respect. It is not known whether the case will be appealed or not. The fine decision in that matter rests with the board of regents which will meet about the middle of October. Attorney General Hall Hammond stated that he would not recommend appeal as 'the law is pretty well settled in that respect.'"

The decision of Judge Tucker was based on the recent ruling of the United States Supreme Court in the McLaurin case brought by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in behalf of the defendant in Oklahoma.

Claims Prejudice In Text Books Aid To Racial Troubles

The failure of our schools to come to grips with many of the significant issues of the day may be attributed in part to gaps and omissions in our textbooks and courses of study according to the current Public Affairs Pamphlet, Prejudice In Textbook. This pamphlet summarizes an American Council on Education study, made possible through a grant of funds from the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and offers a number of concrete suggestions for improving the teaching of intergroup relations at every school level.

The study shows that the textbooks and courses of study are, with very few exceptions, from intentional bias toward group in the American population, the pamphlet reports. It discloses, however, many instances of careless wording which tended to perpetuate antagonisms now current in American life.

Among the serious omissions found in our texts, the pamphlet comments on "the failure to stress sufficiently the worth of the individual," and the failure of the texts to personalize our United Nations to formulate basic civil liberties. It is suggested that "the attempts of a statement of human rights that will be applicable to every country presents an opportunity for vivid teaching and wider experimentation in the field."

The American Council study also found that most textbooks failed to give a satisfactory picture of group organizations in the United States. "While the textbooks do not neglect groups altogether," the pamphlet says, "they usually present far too simple a picture. The tendency is to type the group member rather than to emphasize the variety of individuals within the group."

A related error creeps in in connection with the treatment of Americanization. "A few texts," the pamphlet declares, "treat Americanization as a process by which immigrants are transformed into carbon copies of established Americans," and "an even larger number present the 'melting pot' idea which was popular during the 19th century."

It is noted, however, that the more modern texts stress "cultural democracy" which recognizes that the differences in the background of Americans of various descent may be an asset instead of a liability.

In treating the various minority groups within the American populations, the textbooks are found to err chiefly in failing to stress the contributions of these groups to our modern life. After dealing with the Reconstruction Period, for example, many history books tend to ignore the Negro altogether. Descriptions of the religious, family, social, and general cultural activities of Negroes are either not given or are so general that they are almost without meaning.

Similarly, little is given about the present-day problems and contributions of the American Indian, the Chinese-American, the Japanese-American, or our Spanish-speaking minorities. "Most of the material about Jews in the texts," the pamphlet points out, "is about the ancient Jews. Less than 12 per cent of the texts even mentioned the existence of the Jews as a modern religious group."

These basic weaknesses, the pamphlet concludes, lie "not in texts alone but in the courses of study for which textbooks are prepared. Only as courses of study demand the inclusion of topics on intergroup relations, some of which are inevitably controversial, will the textbooks be substantially improved. A remaking of curricula must precede the revision of textbooks. That revision involves, first, the writings of passages focused directly on the description and exposition of contemporary intergroup relations, and, second, careful scrutiny of the indirect references now in the textbooks."
