not be ascertained. The above estimate is based on information received from deans, faculty members and published reports."

Some of the state university figures included, and the number of Negroes enrolled are: University of Oklahoma, 60; Texas 21; Arkansas 12; Kentucky 15; Virginia 3; Missouri 9.

One municipal institution, the University of Louisville, admitted 18 Negro students, while four private colleges in Kentucky accounted for more than 30.

In most instances the change in policy with respect to admissions was effected through court action, but a notable exception is the University of Arkansas where the action was taken voluntarily.
