Stanford L. Warren Library Closes Current Series Of Book Forums

The Stanford L. Warren Public Library brought to a dynamic close the third in its current series of Book Review Forums Monday evening, April 21 when John Hervey Wheeler, vice-president-cashier of the Mechanics and Farmers bank, addressed an eager audience of about 50 local citizens for an hour in a review and discussion of "Civil Rights In The United States" by Alison Reppy.

Mr. Wheeler was introduced by Mrs. Ray N. Moore, chief librarian of the Stanford L. Warren Public Library, who presided at the meeting.

Wheeler described first the broadness of the field of American civil rights law. Mr. Reppy's book is a survey of court decisions in the broad field of civil rights during the period 1948 to 1950. In discussing it, Wheeler indicated the fundamental importance of sound and sympathetic attention by the courts to the rights of the individual citizen in the preservation of American democracy; he pointed out that respect on the part of the state for the personal rights of its inhabitants is one of the characteristics of our form of government by which it is distinguished from the Russian ideology. He further pointed out that citizenship rights are set forth in our federal constitution and thus form a part of the basic law of the land.

Because these constitutional pronouncements are necessarily stated in broad, general terms, there is opportunity for much diversity in the interpretation of their meaning by various persons and groups at different times and under diversified circumstances. This diversity of interpretation has led to a large volume of litigation.

Taking the areas of the broad field in turn, Wheeler described the facts of the leading cases, gave their decisions, and then set forth the legal principles upon which they are based. Thus, he gave an up to date statement of the state of the law in the several areas. In several instances he discussed cases which have been decided since the book under review was written.

As the speaker anticipated, his discussion of the area of denial of certain civil rights to members of minority races proved the topic of greatest interest of the audience as shown during the question and "bull session" periods indicated the timeliness of the forum topic.

The Book Review Forum is an established adult education program sponsored by the Stanford L. Warren Public Library. It has as its purpose that of not only calling to the attention of individuals and groups outstanding books that are not necessarily best sellers but it aims to present topics of the time and to encourage wholesome discussions on current issues discussed in books. The program further aims to present authors in a discussion of their writings and to stimulate views on important public questions.

Crowe To Keep First Base With Braves If Trades Comes Off

BOSTON
Ever since the Giants acquired veteran Bob Elliott from the Braves in a surprise move this week, it has been hoped that the get first baseman Earl Torgeson. Should this materialize, Manager Tommy Holmes has in mind to put the Negro rookie, George Crowe on first base permanently. The Braves would prefer to let the veteran Torgy go in their "youth-must-be served" campaign and Crowe as heir apparent would take over.
