Cong. Wm. Dawson Sure Of Democratic Victory

WASHINGTON

Back from a 15-day trip of 11,200 miles, covering eight states where he made 25 speeches in key cities and at whistle stops, Democratic National Committee Vice-Chairman William L. Dawson expressed full confidence in victory for the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket.

Reports from key leaders and analysts, the Congressman said, indicate a Democratic victory of landslide proportions.

Everywhere the Congressman met a rising enthusiasm. To experienced observers, this indicated victory for the Democrats.

"As Governor Stevenson said in his after TV speech in the Cleveland arena before a cheering crowd of 16,000 Ohioans — he regrets to announce that the Republicans have an outside chance to carry Maine and Vermont."

Throughout the long California campaign from San Francisco to Los Angeles, Congressman Dawson said he discovered a "rebirth of faith" in the Democratic Party and its candidates. Andrew T. Hatcher, assistant to the California Democratic State Committee Chairman, who had done a terrific job in his state says "This year, ninety percent of California's Negroes are going to vote Democratic."

Attorney A. T. Walden, in Atlanta, Georgia, whose chain of Democratic clubs reaches across the state, has sent in reports on his meetings indicating nothing less than a clean sweep there for the Democrats.

Riding across Ohio on Governor Stevenson's campaign train, John P. Davis, publisher of Our World said "In town after town, Democratic leaders came aboard with enthusiastic reports of registrations and interest in the Democratic candidates."

Dr. Charles L. Franklin, director of Research of the Democratic National Committee said his studies indicate that a majority of the independent vote has now shown its preference for the Democratic Party platform and candidates.

Venice Spragg, of the Women's Division of the Democratic National Committee, who has covered the entire country speaking to groups, joins the group reporting new interest and enthusiasm for the Democratic ticket.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL VICTIM OF ATTACK

CHAPEL HILL

A Carrboro Man received sentence here today, October 28, on charges of assault on a Negro girl.

The defendant, Jack Lloyd, pleaded no contest in Chapel Hill Recorder's court, to a charge of assault on a female, which was amended from the original count of assault with the intent to rape.

The World War II veteran, and father of one child, was charged August 18, with committing assault on 14-year-old Shirley Reavis, after he had allegedly hired her as a baby sitter.

Attorney James R. Patton, prosecuting attorney, said that his investigation into the matter showed that Lloyd was apparently looking for a baby sitter. He found one girl who refused him when he put certain proposals to her.

He took this girl home and picked the Reavis girl up, the attorney continued. Driving about a mile out of town, he began fondling the girl and suggested that they have sexual relations.

The girl escaped from the car and ran. Lloyd followed in his car and caught her again. She (Please turn to Page Eight)

The woman, Miss Mattie Boney, a servant of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Sloane, was the first Negro to attempt to register at West Highlands.

According to reports of white citizens present at the time, Chambers remarked that he never had registered a Negro and "didn't intend to".

The registrar later denied the statement to the chairman of the Elections Board and said that "I said I had never (registered) a Negro."

Louise Beavers Gets "Beulah" Role On CBS Radio Station Of The Late Hattie McDaniel

NEW YORK

Louise Beavers, veteran actress-comedienne of stage and screen, today took over the role of "Beulah" in the CBS Radio series, succeeding the late Hattie McDaniel.

Miss McDaniel died Sunday at the Motion Picture County House in California's San Fernando Valley after an illness of more than a year. She had a distinguished career in motion pictures, including a performance in "Gone with the Wind" that earned her the first Academy Award ever attained by a member of her race.

Principal roles in the "Beulah" series are played by Ernest Whiteman, Ruby Danbridge, Mary Jane Croft, Hugh Studebaker and Henry Blair. Tom McKnight produces and directs.

The Negro Vote In The 1952 Election

For the first time in its history, the eyes of the nation are turned on the Negro vote in the South and for the first time in its history, that vote may be the deciding factor in the election of the President of these United States. That it is going to be necessary for every Negro who has registered to vote on November 4 is no question, but how they vote is an important one. For after all, it is the Negro who has one of the greatest stakes in this year's presidential campaign and is subject to lose most if the Republican party comes to power under the leadership of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, which in the end will be that of the Old Guard of the GOP.

Negro voters, especially, should pay little or no attention to the campaign speeches of either the Republican candidate or the Democratic candidate and their supporters. For in the heat of a political battle things are said and promises are made that will mean little or nothing once either party comes to power. There is a means, however, to determine about what to expect by either party once the election is over, and that is the past record of each candidate and the men who surround them.

In the matter of General Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, the record shows that so far as the Negro is concerned, he has done little or nothing to assure the race he believes in equal rights for it or is even friendly toward it. In addition, Eisenhower is surrounded by a group of reactionaries who would not permit him to promote a liberal program on the race question even though he desired to do so. Such men as Taft, Byrd, Byrnes, McCarthy and Jenner are a millstone around the neck of the Republican nominee. For even though Byrnes and Byrd are Democrats, the mere fact that they

Durham Banker Featured In Series Of Addresses, Stevenson For President

J. H. Wheeler, president of the Mechanics and Farmers Bank, was heard over stations WSSB, Tuesday October 28 at 7:15 P. M., WDNC, Wednesday October 29 at 6:25 P. M., and will be heard over station WTKI Friday, October 31 at 5:55 P. M. in a series of broadcasts in support of Governor Adlai Stevenson for president of the United States.

In his address, Mr. Wheeler cited the fact that the Democratic party during the 20 years in office has "worked consistently for the establishment of a stabilized economy". He referred to Governor Stevenson as a man of "great stature, deep convictions and strong courage". In referring to Stevenson's stand on Civil Rights, Mr. Wheeler said "Civil rights is of necessity a major issue in our campaign. That America is the most despised nation in the world is a fact which should be alarming to all of us. We are despised by other nations largely because of discriminations against our own citizens based entirely upon race. Two billion black people in the world are wondering how a country as great as ours can preach democracy abroad and boast of not believing in it at home. Adlai Stevenson has been forthright and fearless in his stand upon this important issue. He has stated his position in the north, south, east and west with equal force, whereas General Eisenhower has off peddled the question of civil rights, wherever he thought his views might be unpopular.

"Can you imagine what he and Governor Byrnes of South Carolina have been able to find in common, if the General believes, as he says he does in the importance of civil guarantees for every citizen of our country. Channing Tobias, a delegate to the United Nations Assembly is quoted as saying that the news of bombing of Jews, Catholics and Negroes in Miami, Florida erased in one night all the good will built up among European and Asiatic nations by the billions of dollars spent through the Marshall plan. As for me, I would rather a thousand times over see Governor Stevenson in the White House because of his stand on this important world problem."

Said the bank president further, "I am an American Negro, born in the south, educated in the south and casting my lot in the development of a new and better south. In North Carolina there are many others like me who have decided that it is their duty to stay in the south and work courageously to develop a greater sense of tolerance, understanding and fair play.

Our interest in full and unrestricted employment, civil liberties and first class citizenship for all of the people are strong and deep seated. In these views, we have found many sympathetic allies among southern democrats. Negroes from Durham County are members of the State Democratic Executive Committee and all other important party committees in the state level. As members of the party, we are proud, therefore, not only of the platform and achievements of the Democratic nominees for state and federal offices, and most of all for the election of a great and courageous statesman as president of the United States, Adlai Stevenson."
