

Indianapolis, Indiana Captures Sunday School Congress

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. Information has just reached this city sent to the Committee from the Baptist Ministers Alliance by Rev. Henry A. Boyd, Secretary of the Sunday School Congress, saying Indianapolis had been chosen as the entertaining city for the 1953 session of this Summer School of Methods. A committee of three, consisting of Revs. J. O. Clark, J. A. G. Jordan and F. F. Young, was appointed by the Baptist Ministers Alliance to notify the Congress Secretary that this city was anxious to be host "once more to this great Organization. They met here some years ago, and their headquarters were the Mt. Paran Baptist Church and the High School.

In speaking about the matter Rev. C. Henry Ball, the moderator of the Indiana Baptist Association, said the entire state would cooperate with and support Indianapolis in giving a royal reception to this forty-ninth gathering of the Summer School of Methods, whose slogan years ago was "You cannot teach what you do not know; you cannot lead where you do not go." The Baptist of this section have supported the Congress for many years.

Indianapolis has representation among the departmental workers; and among those actively engaged in helping to put over the program each year, are Mrs. Blossie Jones, Mrs. Patsie Jackson Thomas, Rev. J. O. Clark and others.

The official announcement reached this city from the Congress Secretary this past week. He canvassed the members of his Board and all of them agreed that Indianapolis is the Place, Wednesday before the second Sunday in June, 1953 is the Time.

NEGRO FARMER SEES NEED FOR SMALL COTTON PICKER

"If someone would only make a small practical cotton picker, my labor problems would be solved," says Booker T. Marrow, Negro farmer of the Tillery Chapel community in Halifax County.

D. J. Knight, Negro county agent for the Extension Service, reports that Marrow is one of the three farmers in the Tillery Chapel area who have helped beat the labor shortage by purchasing corn pickers.

"It's a marvelous thing," Knight quotes Marrow as saying. "I am getting tired of begging people to work for me..." Now, Knight reports, the farmer is looking for a solution to his cotton picking problem.

The other farmers who have saved about 75 per cent in corn harvesting labor by purchasing pickers are Raymond Moore and Ray Marrow.

Each machine picks the corn and loads it in a trailer wagon. After the wagon is filled, it is taken to the barn where the corn is unloaded by a power conveyor.

plan this outstanding event. Lowell Henry is president of Delta Lambda Chapter and Douglas Martens is president of Pi Chapter, the undergraduate group.

Mrs. Carolyn Chaney, Basileus of Gamma Delta Zeta Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, and Miss Phyllis Hammonds, Bous Marshall, carried the greater portion of the load for their organization while their National Basileus, Dr. Nancy B. Woolridge was on a six month sabbatical in Europe.

Upon Dr. Woolridge's return home last month she met with members of the local chapter and was extremely pleased with reports of convention progress. Zeta Phi Beta Sorority has had wonderful response to the plan for a convention and a record attendance is expected.

Mrs. Janet Hamilton of Chicago, Mid-West Regional Director of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority met with Omega Chapter's six-member Convention Coordinating Committee, for the purpose of advising them of plans formulated by the Advisory Committee in its August meeting. Mrs. Hamilton worked with the Cleveland group on planning the agenda for the sorority's biennial convention. The Grand President of Delta Sigma Theta, Miss Dorothy Height, will return to this country from India, by non-stop flight to New York on December 25 in time for the registration day of the 1952 Joint Convention on Dec. 26th.
