
IN VIEW OF THE HARD BLOW DEAL, sports by the basketball "field" scoundrel and the clouds of suspicion cast by the N. C. A. A. investigation of the recent charges of cheating, basketball is often the topic of conversation in this city. In other words, athletes may carry on, but what about the sportsmen who worry over the problems which arise, it is essential that they be reached by men who know solution to these problems.

"In this day and age, it's more important than ever before. The attitude of the coaching staff must be kept in mind to ensure the best possible relations between the school and its athletic activities. The coach and the student-teacher must be treated with respect. The president must be invited to the school for talks with the coaches and the athletes. The students must be involved in the sport, not just for grades but for the love of the game. The coach must take the lead in these activities and make sure that the players are well taken care of. The players must be given the best possible facilities and support to succeed. The coach must be able to motivate the players and build their confidence. The students must be given a chance to develop their skills and improve their game. The coach must be able to help the players to develop their skills and improve their game. The coach must be able to help the players to develop their skills and improve their game.

Several arguments are given for the promotion of sports as a means of recreation, education, and social development. The arguments are summarized as follows:

1. Sports promote physical health and well-being.
2. Sports contribute to the development of teamwork and cooperation.
4. Sports are a means of socialization and social development.
5. Sports provide a means of personal expression and self-fulfillment.
6. Sports can be used as a means of promoting peace and understanding.
7. Sports can be used as a means of promoting social equality and social justice.
8. Sports can be used as a means of promoting education and learning.
9. Sports can be used as a means of promoting economic development and growth.
10. Sports can be used as a means of promoting cultural and national identity.

In conclusion, it is clear that sports have a significant role to play in the development of individuals and societies. Therefore, it is important that sports be promoted and developed in a way that is consistent with the values and goals of society. This requires cooperation between the government, the sports organizations, and the public to ensure that sports are used to promote the well-being and development of individuals and societies.