The report suggested that such facilities as would be needed for carrying on an up-to standard YW-YMCA character building program under qualified professional leadership would give first considerations to the following:

A mass activity room or so-cial hall with kitchen facilities, several small club or group meeting rooms; A gymnasium with lockers and showers; Ad-play space; An indoor swimming pool, and Hobbycraft rooms.

Although such a joint-us building would be cooperatively administered, there would be no integration of merger of the two policy making management committees.

An expected, near 1,000 freshmen will move through long lines of registration at A. and T. College beginning Monday morning, September 14. A full week of orientation for the entering students will mark the official opening of the 64th year

A special freshmen orientation committee at the college has worked out a minute sche-dule of activities for new students to cover the five day ori-entation which concludes on Friday evening, September 18.

The Monday schedule calls for medical examinations which will be handled by a special crew of eleven advanced medical students from Howard University in Washington, D. C., placement tests in English and mathematies in Engines and matterna-tics and a formal welcome pro-gram later that evening, fea-turing greetings by Dr. F. D. Bluford, president and other top college officials.

On Tuesday the new students will be assigned their faculty advisors, will be acquainted with college rules and regulations, learn about the Army and Air Force ROTC programs at the college, get first hand informa-tion on traditions for which the college is noted.

Actual registration will take place on Wednesday and Thurs-day and the whole orientation process will be concluded on Friday with a tour of the campus facilities and the first freshnan class meeting that night.
