

INTERRACIAL LOVERS JAILED

College towns all over North Carolina took on some of the hustle and excitement that they usually exude from September to June when wide-eyed freshmen and cocksure upperclassmen completed their exodus back to the campus. The above scenes, taken from two of the State's largest schools, were typical of those duplicated throughout the nation last week. In first photo at left, freshmen co-eds of A. and T. College at Greensboro find the juke box at the college canteen just the thing to pass away lighter moments during a break in orientation procedures. Co-eds shown are, left to right, Nancy Davis, Winston-Salem; Joan Saunders, Clinton, South Carolina; Cordelia Hairston, Winston-Salem; and Claudia Mean, Whitmire, South Carolina. In the second photo from left, Madeline Simpson, freshman at A. and T., gets help in filling out one of the myriad of forms which orientation brings. Giving assistance are upperclassmen Esther Hart (left), Rocky Mount, and Colleen McCullough (right) of Greensboro. Photo at right shows the two sets of twins which turned up among North Carolina College's 550 freshmen last week. The twins are shown talking with Dr. Alfonso Elder, President of the Durham institution. They are, left to right, Stella and Ella Robinson of Wilson and Helen and Evelyn Capp of Scotland Neck.

Crackdown On Area Moonshiners

Federal Judge Gives Stiff Fines, Terms To Eight As He Declares Intention Of Breaking Up Traffic

DURHAM Two men were nabbed by ABC officers as they operated their home made still in a wooded area near the county line. Judge Hayes, in pronouncing sentences on the defendants in Durham, served notice that his court intended to "put an end" to whiskey making and bootlegging in the middle district area. In between cases, he heaped praise on law enforcement officers who were responsible for bringing the defendants to trial. "Why can't people see they haven't a chance to make whiskey around here," the Judge remarked as he lectured the deendants before imposing the sentences. "They'll get caught every time," he warned, "what with the combined operations of Federal officers, ABC officers and local police. It's stupid to try to make whiskey around here," he declared. Those receiving sentences on whiskey charges were: John Hubert Parker, charged with possession of distillery, mash and whiskey, one year and a day in prison; Perry W. Fogle, charged with removing and concealing non-taxpaid whiskey, $300 fine plus six months in prison, prison term suspended for two years probation; Hovon Marsh, charged with removing and concealing non-taxpaid whiskey, year and a day in prison, sentence suspended for two years probation; Percy Degraffenreid, charged with removing and concealing non-taxpaid whiskey, $300 fine, plus a year and a day in prison; Orles Alston, charged with removing and concealing non-taxpaid whiskey, $350 fine, plus a year and a day in prison, term suspended on two year probation; William Brown, charged with removing and concealing non-taxpaid whiskey, not pros. A 50 gallon steel drum type still and 300 gallons of mash were discovered at a home made still in Great Swamp Township in Wayne County near the Wilson County line as Wilson County ABC Officers nabbed two men operating the Wylie H. Whisonant, Jr., has just been appointed to represent the American Tobacco Company on the staff of the Student Marketing Institute, retained by the Company to handle its campaign among leading colleges throughout the country. A graduate of Lincoln University, Whisonant will coordinate all phases of the college program for the company. He will make regular visits to each campus each year to confer with student representatives and faculty supervisors.

Trio Of Whites Face Trial For Slaying Negro

DOBSON Three white men were scheduled to be brought to trial in Surry County Superior Court here this week for the murder of a 63-year-old Negro. The defendants, Lex Moorefield, Robert Hall and Orville Hill, are charged with the murder of Sam Brim, a farmer of Westfield, Route One. Brim was found by R. E. Cook in his barn suffering from a loss of blood and taken to a Winston-Salem Hospital where he died on the same night. State Highway Patrolman Tony Gwaltney found Brim's automobile wrecked on the border of Surry and Stokes Counties. His investigations showed that Brim's throat was cut and Moorefield, Hill and Hill were arrested. It was surmised that Brim staggered from his wrecked car into the barn where he was found by Cook. Reports gave no explanation as to how Brim's car was wrecked or the connection between the slaying made with the three white men.

KKK Type Activities Said Pranksters' Job

CONCORD Crosses were burned in Mecklenburg County near Concord during the week-end but law officers attributed the Ku Klux Klan type activities to pranksters. Several crude crosses were burned at various places in Concord during the past week-end but Police Chief A. M. Murr ruled out any possibility of bona fide Klan activity in Concord, attributing the burnings to pranksters. "We are positive the whole thing resulted from somebody's idea of a joke, but those who participated probably don't know that they are liable to indictment and sentence for such actions," Murr said.

Mrs. Emma Bell Stone, who, according to all available records, is around 101 years old, lays claim to being one of Durham's oldest residents. The centenarian can be seen on any fair day sitting on the swing on the porch at the residence of Mrs. Ella Monroe, sewing or making quilt matchwork. Mrs. Stone, who has been married three times, was born in Chapel Hill sometime in the late 1840's or early '50's. She told a TIMES reporter this week that she remembers very vividly when the Yankees came through. "Wheeler's Cavalry came through on a Saturday . . . I was just big enough to tote a tin bucket of water from a pump . . . Julius Carr's folks raised me in Chapel Hill. . . My folks were free men . . . a brother, Elijah, fought in the war (Civil War, she doesn't remember on which side). Mother died in Kingston . . . I's small then." Aunt 'Em, as she is called by Hickstown residents, has been living in Durham for more years than she can remember and has been staying with Mrs. Monroe for about 40 years. She said her first husband's name was King Oiler. She doesn't remember the name of the second one, but says her last husband, Joe Stone, was a Baptist preacher. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Bell of Chapel Hill and she was a member of a big family, though she can't remember the names of her brothers and sisters. In excellent health, Mrs. Stone is pictured above taking a light lunch in between her sewing chores. Her eyesight is still good enough so that she can thread a needle by herself. The authority for her age is her sister's daughter, Mrs. Stella Foole, who also lives in Hickstown.

Bond Issue OK Is Expected

Voters Go To Polls Saturday

FROM TIMES REPORTS North Carolina's voters will go to the polls Saturday to decide whether or not to put the State into 72 million dollars debt for its schools and mental institutions. The bond issue referendum, calling for 50 million for schools and 22 million for mental institutions, was passed by the state legislature in its session last Spring and left the date for the election up to Governor William B. Umstead. (Please turn to Page Eight)

WOMAN CHARGED WITH KILLING OF 14 YEAR OLD NEIGHBOR

HIGH POINT A 32-year-old High Point woman must face a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of her 14-year-old neighbor who she claimed was a "Peeping Tom." Mrs. Desoline Wheeler Wood is being held in jail here without bond after Henry Mack, young resident of 503 Spring St., died of a bullet wound in his head at a Winston-Salem Hospital Tuesday morning. The shooting took place last Saturday night. Mrs. Wood admitted firing a 32 calibre bullet through the shade and window at her home Saturday night. She said the youth was peeping into her home. Young Mack was found by police about ten o'clock Saturday night lying in an alley soon after the shooting incident at Mrs. Wood's house at 421 Spring Street. (Please turn to Page Eight)

Mrs. Frank Grady, resident of Hines Cross Roads, was handed a 30 months jail sentence by Judge Charles P. Gaylor after being found guilty of adultery on two charges. Her Negro paramour, Jim Lane, was given a six month's sentence for his part in the love affair. Both have served notice of appeals from the sentences and the woman was ordered held under $500 bond on each charge for the Wayne County Superior Court term. In testimony before Judge Gaylor, three teen-aged boys stated that they saw Mrs. Grady and Lane have relations at the woman's home last . . . (Please turn to Page Eight)

31 Nominated In TIMES Holy Land Subscription Contest

At the time of going to press this week, Wednesday, September 30 at 6:00 p. m., a total of 31 persons had been nominated in the CAROLINA TIMES "Everybody Wins" Subscription Contest that gets under way October 5. All contestants will be mailed receipt books and other material needed for soliciting subscriptions in the campaign, Friday, October 2.

Three brothers of Durham, the Mangum brothers, are serving in two branches of this country's Armed forces. Sons of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Mangum, Sr. of 1406 Glenn Street, they are, pictured above left to right, Pfc. Elmo Mangum, Seaman Billy Lee Mangum, and Pfc. Carl Edward Mangum. Elmo, a former Hillside student, has completed two years of Army enlistment and is scheduled to return to the U. S. A. soon. He is now stationed with the 33rd Medical Holding Company in France. Billy, a graduate of Hillside in 1951, has seen 27 months service in the Navy and is currently serving aboard the heavy cruiser USS Rochester. The Rochester was used extensively off the Korean shores during the fighting. Billy has 21 more months to serve. Carl, also a former Hillside student, has nearly finished a three year hitch in the Army. Now serving with the 631st F. A. Battalion at Hamburg, Germany, Carl plans to work for an Officer's Commission. He made a good record at the non-commissioned officers' academy.

Each week during the contest the relative standing of each contestant will be published.
