station was an applicant before In addition to Kennedy, other members of the Management Advisory Committee, elected by unanimous vote of the prospective television stockholders at the Hope Valley Country Club were: Noble L. Clay, E. J. Evans, Robert G. Hurst, Worth A. Lutz, and William Multhead. (The contest for WTVD's Channel 11, VHF, was long and vigorous and was waged between Durham Broadcasting Enterprises, Inc. and Durham Radio Corporation representing the Herald-Sun newspaper interests here. It is generally believed that one reason for success of the winning candidate is the broad structural base composed of many different financial and community interests.

The stockholders symbolize considerable economic strength in the state and throughout the South. Kennedy is President of North Carolina Mutual, Spaulding is vice-president and actuary and controller of the organization, and Merrick holds the post of treasurer with Mrs. Turner assistant treasurer. Wheeler is president of Mechanics And Farmers Bank. Stewart is secretary-treasurer of Mutual Savings And Loan Association.

(Continued from Page One) mers were Negroes. I was asked whether or not I made deliveries to Negroes and I replied that I did, except on holidays—when I made deliveries to no one, either white or Negro. I emphasized to the person on the other end of the telephone line that I had some very good friends

Pvt. Samuel Becton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Becton, Sr., 1914 Cecil Street, Durham, has completed eight weeks of basic training at the Replacement Training Center, Camp Gordon, Ga.

During his training, he received instruction in infantry tactics and weapons, and other subjects designed to prepare the individual for his military duties. He is now ready to continue an Army specialist's school.

among the Negroes, and that I enjoyed my Negro business and appreciated it. The conversation ended pleasantly, with each of us to the best of my knowledge saying "Goodbye." I didn't "explode", as was stated in the article in the Carolina Times erroneously.

The Carolina Times article contains several positively untrue statements. In the first place I pointed out expressly that my additional help for the holidays was not for delivery purposes, I never said "I don't deliver to niggers", or any words to that effect, as stated in the Carolina Times. Further, I never said anything to the effect that my Negro customers "order flowers but when they arrive refuse to pay for them." I would have no occasion to say something like that for it is not true. My Negro customers have a good credit record and I sell to them just as quickly as I would to white customers. On the contrary I did say that I had some good Negro customers. Naturally I did not say "I have some good nigger customers, but I make them come down and get their flowers and pay for them in advance." Actually I sell to many of my customers, both white and Negro, on credit. If it becomes at all material I can submit a list of various Negro customers to whom I have previously sold on credit. Obviously whether as to white or Negro customers, I would consider their credit rating if I were selling on credit, but I can't recall any customer whom I have turned down when a credit delivery was requested, and only one Negro customer has "beat" me out of a debt during the time that I have been in business, which is a better record than my white customers. The whole point is that I would have no reason to offer a free and false insult to one of my best group of customers.

One of my Negro customers immediately recognized that the Carolina Times article concerning me was false when it appeared in that paper and phoned me about it. I might otherwise not have seen the article immediately because, like many white and Negro inhabitants of Durham, I do not subscribe to the Carolina Times. Naturally I wish to correct any false impression, and I feel that I am entitled to an immediate apology from the Carolina Times, and I demand a retraction by that paper.

I might add that I know of no reason why the "Advertising Manager" of the Carolina Times might have any grudge towards me, but the telephone connection was not so good that it could make what I actually said sound like what she said I stated to her, and there seems little possibility that an innocent mistake was made by her. I do not know the name of the woman who called me, but I do know that the easiest way to injure any good will among Negro customers is to make a false charge that I am anti-Negro in viewpoint. No matter what is done by way of retraction or apology, a number of people will always retain the impression that the charge was true.

Anybody who makes a false charge or helps make such a false charge is participating in one of the most unhappy processes in American life today, and I regret that the Carolina Times has engaged in the same process with reference to me. Further, the untrue statements that have just been published about me in the Carolina Times are not of the sort that will encourage good relations between white persons and Negroes. After all, if a person like me who has always enjoyed good relations with Negro citizens is to be "smeared" this way, it is going to be hard to draw tighter the bonds between all Americans, whether white or Negro. My many Negro friends will know that the Carolina Times has printed a gross lie. I demand that to the maximum extent possible the Carolina Times take steps to correct the misconception that may have been created among people who do not know me, and I request that this affidavit be published in full and in a place equally conspicuous as that where the false charge was made.

And further this deponent saith not. Signed: Mrs. J. L. Upchurch Sworn to and subscribed before me this 2nd day of April, 1954. Signed: Kathleen J. Morris, Notary Public. My commission expires on Aug. 12, 1955.

When Mrs. Tatum was found in the well at approximately 3:30 a.m. Monday, by her cousin, Mrs. J. E. Adams, the teenager volunteered to tease the watery depth when rescue workers of the Greensboro Fire Department announced that the sides of the well were too narrow for any of them to enter it. Martin was lowered into the well and fastened a rope under the shoulders of Mrs. Tatum, who had remained shoulder-deep in water for over an hour. Lack of oxygen at one time nearly caused Martin to faint during the venture. When the pair reached the top, Mrs. Tatum was rushed to a hospital for treatment. Burns on Martin's T-shirt showed signs of friction made by his shoulders against the narrow curbing. No information has been learned of how Mrs. Tatum fell into the well. Her predicament was discovered by Mrs. Adams whom she was visiting, after Mrs. Adams heard her go onto the back porch during the night. Martin remained calm during the entire rescue, but admitted afterwards that the going was a little rough at times.
